Cromwell Warns Neutral Nations.

Senator Urges Recall

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] proposed today that James H. R. Cromwell be recalled immediately as minister to Canada because of his speech at Toronto.

Clark told reporters he thought Cromwell's address was "an outrageous, indefensible breach of his diplomatic duty."

"I think the bountiful Canadian dinner must have gone to his head," he added. "He should be recalled at once."

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (AP).—James H. R. Cromwell, American minister to Canada, expressed belief today that "the life, the liberty and the very safety" of neutrals was at stake in the European war and posed the question of what outlook would face the world if Germany won.

Cromwell asked what kind of rule was being applied in countries which had been placed under the German lebensraum [living space] plan of extension.

"Did the Austrians, Czecho-Slovakians or the Poles have a voice in the determination of their present form of government?" he asked.

Sees No Threat in Empires.

Cromwell said that if the empires won the war he could see no threat to the well-being of neutral democracies.

Speaking before a joint meeting of the Canadian club and the Empire club, Cromwell replied to comment he said had been evoked by a statement he made in Val d'Or, Que., recently, that Britain and France were fighting for the perpetuation of individual liberty and freedom.

Cromwell said that he was at a loss to understand how any intelligent citizen of any neutral democracy could state with conviction that he has no interest in the outcome of the war.

"To me," he said, "it is only too apparent that the life, the liberty, the livelihood, and the very safety of this same neutral citizen may be dependent upon the outcome of the present war. Whether he recognizes the fact or not, his future and the future of his children's children are in all probability now at stake."

Defends Right to Speak Up.

Of his Val d'Or remarks Cromwell said:

"Perhaps comment was occasioned because the diplomatic representative of a neutral nation expressed an opinion concerning the war aims of a belligerent power. Perhaps some people were surprised because they feel that the utterances of a diplomat should be confined to platitudinous pleasantries.

"Well, that is not my idea of the functions of a diplomat. To me a diplomat is still a citizen. The duty of every citizen is to uphold and defend the institutions and the social and economic order upon which the government of his nation is founded.

"Upon this interpretation of my duties as a diplomat I am content to risk my official head."

Assails Certain Americans.

Cromwell said the reason his Val d'Or statement was considered so significant was because "certain short-sighted and cynically-minded groups in the United States" declare there is little to choose between one belligerent and another.

"How easy it is," he said, "for unthinking people to proclaim that what happens in Europe is no concern of theirs and to pretend the dangers that threaten their future safety do not exist. How easy it is to shut one's eyes and thus seek to avoid the horrid sight of the bloody and seething world revolution which threatens to overwhelm us all."

Honest Statement, Says Envoy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 19.—After arriving with his wife in his private plane tonight at Newark airport, James H. R. Cromwell, United States minister to Canada, reiterated that his sympathies in the European war were with Britain and France.

"All I can say is that my speeches were honest statements of the facts as I see them," he said. "Altho we are neutral, we should analyze the situation."

French Cabinet Resigns Over War Policies

PARIS, March 20, Wednesday (AP).—The French cabinet resigned today. The cabinet held a short session at the war ministry early this morning before leaving in a body for Elysee palace, where the members presented their collective resignation to President Albert Lebrun.

The resignation came as an aftermath of a chamber of deputies vote of confidence which, because of the large number of abstenions, represented only a minority.

SUPPORTED BY MINORITY

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 20, Wednesday.—Premier Edouard Daladier today, after a hectic star chamber session of the chamber of deputies, won a vote of confidence from the French lower house with only 239 ballots for the cabinet out of more than 500 deputies.

This departure from a wartime policy of unanimity came after 11 deputies ranging in politics from Socialist Leon Blum to Rightist Pierre Taittinger had put Daladier on the spot in the 12 hour secret session for his government's conduct of the war and its diplomacy with regard to Finland.

The vote came after Daladier had been exposed to a barrage of questions that centered about the failure of Britain and France to get help to Finland before she was forced to sign a peace with Russia.

Criticism of the government's campaign was expressed in the motion's demand for immediate changes and greater effort.

Political observers before the session ended had forecast Daladier would win a good sized vote of confidence to guide him in revamping his ministerial team into a small "war cabinet." According to some circles, Daladier already had the lines of a new cabinet drawn up and was only awaiting the outcome of last night's debate to make it public. His cabinet changes were believed to embody a combination of ministerial departments, with a small group of experienced and energetic men actually directing affairs as a war cabinet.

BRITISH PLANES DROP TONS OF BOMBS ON SYLT

Attack in Waves Far Into Night.

BULLETIN.

TONDER, Denmark, March 20, Wednesday (AP).—Muffled detonations and flashes starting at 9 a. m. (4 a. m., Chicago time) in the direction of Sylt indicated today that the British had resumed their raid on that German fortified base after a six hour interval. Indications were that only two bombers attacked this morning before being driven off. Unconfirmed reports said one plane was forced down at Fanoe island, near Esbjerg, Denmark.

LONDON, March 20, Wednesday (AP).—Britain unleashed a grueling bomb attack on Germany's Sylt Island air base which for more than seven hours last night and today blasted at burning hangars, workshops, and slipways in by far the longest and most extensive air attack of the war.

The air ministry announced at 8 a. m. [1 a. m. Chicago time] that only one plane had failed to return from the raid, signifying the end of the attack.

The ministry communique said:

"Attacks made on Hornum [a military base on Sylt] last night were spread over a period of about seven hours. All our aircraft have returned safely with the exception of one which is overdue and must be presumed to have been lost. Information now available shows that damage reported earlier is very extensive and includes direct hits on slipways and hangars."

Sounds Ominous Warning.

The raid was ushered in by an ominous warning of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain that Germany must bear "responsibility for the consequences" of the Nazis' 85 minute raid on the admiralty's anchorage at Scapa Flow last Saturday. The attack stirred conjecture whether this was the overture of the great aerial offensives which have been predicted in any great modern war.

The attack, as described here officially, was carried out by successive, almost continuous, waves of bombers, guided by the fires set by the first bombs. Moonlight and scattered clouds permitted the planes to sight their objectives and dart to cover after delivering their blows.

[A German account of the raid issued by the official news agency, DNB, said one plane was shot down. The story, issued late last night, said three attempted attacks had been made, but denied any damage had been done except to fire one house. German authorities professed to have no later details.]

Witnesses See Flames.

Danish eyewitnesses who crowded the shore only five miles away from the Sylt air base told of a line of fires springing up across the island and said they counted 100 bomb explosions and four tremendous, earth shaking blasts, possibly from blownup ammunition dumps in the first three hours of the pounding attack, which began about 8 p. m. yesterday [1 p. m. Chicago time.]

Meanwhile the Exchange Telegraph agency [British] reported from Copenhagen that unidentified planes dropped bombs on four Danish towns on the west coast of Jutland, about 60 miles north of Sylt.

Dike Reported Bombed.

British news agency reports said the Hindenburg dam [dike] connecting Sylt to the mainland was bombed and that one British plane was shot down on the North coast of Sylt.

While the Sylt raid was in progress Chamberlain relayed wireless messages from a leading bomber to the house of commons. It probably was the first time in the history of warfare that the head of a government had relayed news of an action while it was taking place.

In his statement to commons on the Scapa Flow raid Chamberlain said the Germans dropped 121 high explosive bombs and 500 incendiary bombs over an area of 100 square miles. One civilian was killed and seven were wounded and there were seven naval casualties, he said. Only one battleship was slightly damaged.

[The Germans reported three of Britain's mightiest men-o'-war were believed to have been damaged.]

Also while the Sylt raid was being carried out a Labor peer, Lord Strabogli, told the house of lords that the Scapa Flow bombing "removed the obstacles to our bombing of German supply and naval bases." Lord Halifax, the foreign secretary, said he could not disagree as to the "very

Juke Operators to Face Inquiry by Grand Jury

State's Attorney Courtney yesterday promised a grand jury investigation of allegations that the operation of Chicago's 10,000 juke boxes is rapidly going into the hands of racketeers. Juke boxes are automatic nickel in the slot phonographs, and most of the 10,000 are installed in taverns.

The charges which Courtney is considering were made by six individual operators, five of whom are members of the Associated Phonograph Owners, Inc. They declared that political and police pressure is being put on tavern owners to force them to take the machines of two large companies, which are also association members.

Plea Sent to Commission.

These concerns, according to a petition sent to the Chicago crime commission and forwarded to the state's attorney, are the Century Music company, 2134 South Wabash avenue, and the Apex Cigaret Service, Inc., 4220 Lincoln avenue.

Dennis Cooney, night club owner and an important factor in 1st ward politics, was named as in control of Century, whose machines are in nearly all loop taverns. The petitioners declared that Eddie [Dutch] Vogel, referred to as an old Caponeite, was powerful in forcing the use of Apex machines all over Cicero and in the rural sections of Cook county.

State's Attorney Courtney said he would summon the protesting six before the grand jury tomorrow and that there would be a full investigation if they had definite evidence to support their charges.

Owners of 225 Jukes.

The six are Joseph J. McNicholas, 1616 Granville avenue; Carl H. Goertz, 1809 Lawrence avenue; George Pierantoni of Wilmette; Ben Eichell, 2109 Cornelia avenue; H. J. Tindall and William Boreman, both of 5711 Wayne avenue. At the headquarters of the Phonograph Owners' association it was said they owned a total of 225 jukes.

McNicholas and his associates said the business was going into "a stage of racket" and that police and state officers and ward heelers were intimidating tavernkeepers with the object of making them install Apex or Century machines.

A city council subcommittee headed by Ald. B. J. O'Hallaren yesterday began hearings on a proposal that a $50 fee be required for each location in which a juke box is operated. Several tavernkeepers appeared and declared that unfair methods were being used by certain juke owners.

Last evening Capt. Matthew Frolich of the South Chicago police district ordered that all the jukes in his territory, an estimated 200, be shut down. This was done because members of Michael J. Boyle's Electrical Workers' union started to picket the tavern of Joseph Hyzy at 8701 Houston avenue.

Hyzy had purchased and installed his own phonograph. His wife declared the union had demanded $5 a week to service it and claimed a monopoly right to do so. Capt. Frolich is enforcing an old ordinance barring the use of any coin operated amusement device in Chicago. Capt. Eugene Barry of the Englewood district has issued a similar order, but an investigation last night showed that many taverns in his district were running their boxes.

Aviator Dahl Jailed in N.Y. on Coast Check Charges

Wed 3 Years, She's Seized as Escaped Felon

Battle Creek, Mich., March 19 [Special].—Mrs. Beulah Bigger Shelton, a convicted robber who escaped from the Illinois women's reformatory in Dwight in August, 1934, was arrested here today. The arrest disclosed that she had been married to E. Arch Shelton since her escape and that they had been living in Battle Creek for nearly three years.

Mrs. Shelton, 31 years old, said with a smile that it was easy to escape from Dwight; that there were no bars or screens on the windows of the French Normandy cottages making up the prison and that she merely walked away. With her went Mrs. Vera Witte, sentenced to life for the murder of her husband. The Witte woman still is at liberty.

Accomplices Also Convicted.

Beulah Bigger, a young widow, was sentenced in March, 1934, to one year to life in Dwight for robbery in Chicago. Her accomplices were James Poague, who since has been sentenced to 199 years in Joliet penitentiary for murder, and Jack Kauffman, her sweetheart, who also was convicted.

"Vera and I went out the windows," Mrs. Shelton said in describing her escape. "We hid in cornfields one day. Then we hitch-hiked to St. Louis and on down into Texas. Vera went on. I stayed for two years, working first on a ranch and then as a waitress in an Amarillo hotel. Then I went to my old home in Dayton, Tenn.

Meets Old Sweetheart.

"Arch Shelton was an old sweetheart and we were married in Georgia in 1936. We lived for a while in McRoberts, Ky., and then in Huntington, W. Va. We've been in Battle Creek since April, 1937. My husband works in a factory and I have a job in a grocery."

The information on which the arrest was made came from Miss Helen Hazard, superintendent of Dwight reformatory. Miss Hazard said there had been 51 escapes in nine years, and that only Vera Witte and one other woman still are fugitives.

TELLS TYRANNY, RESIGNS; SINGLE VOTE SAVES BOARD

Proxy of Foe Used in Committee to Block Abolition.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 19.—The proxy vote of Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.], outstanding congressional foe of the National Labor Relations board as now constituted, was used today to defeat by a tally of 9 to 8 a motion in the house labor committee to abolish the board and set up a new five member tribunal.

This extraordinary development, which provoked glee among New Deal supporters of the present board and indignation among its opponents, occurred when Hoffman went to St. Louis, to fulfill a speaking engagement there. He left his proxy with a Republican colleague, Representative Clyde H. Smith of Maine.

Hoffman to Ask Reconsideration.

To the stunned surprise of other committee members, Smith voted both himself and Hoffman against the move to dissolve the present board composed of Chairman J. Warren Madden, Edwin S. Smith and William L. Leiserson. If Smith had voted Hoffman's proxy for the motion, as Hoffman would have wished, the vote would have been 9 to 8 in favor of the abolition of the board.

Reached late today over the long distance telephone, Hoffman said that he would be back in Washington tomorrow afternoon when the committee meets again and would immediately move to reconsider today's vote.

Smith said he was unaware of how Hoffman would have wished to vote. He opposed the abolition of the board, he asserted, because he felt amendments to the Wagner labor act would have a better chance of congressional approval if they were not too drastic.

Approve Increasing Members.

The committee approved by a vote of 14 to 3 an amendment calling upon President Roosevelt to add two new members to the three-man board. The three opposing votes came from Republicans in protest against defeat of the motion to abolish the board.

President Roosevelt, the committee was told, is willing to accept the enlargement of the board to five members but is strenuously opposed to discharge of the three present members who have been accused of prejudice for the C. I. O. of John L. Lewis.

The committee rejected an amendment suggested by Chairman Howard W. Smith [D., Va.] of the house committee investigating the Wagner act, which would have deleted from the preamble the statement referring to "the denial by employers of the right of employés to organize and the refusal by employers to accept the procedure of collective bargaining." Smith contended that this constituted a general indictment of industry.

Leiserson Accuses Colleagues.

Meanwhile, Leiserson was accusing Chairman Madden and Smith, his two colleagues on the board, of upsetting rather than encouraging collective bargaining relationships by one of their decisions. This incident was declared by some committee members to be a proof of the need for two new members to break the present 2-1 setup. Opponents of enlargement of the board asserted, however, that the appointment of two more "maladministrators" would not help the impartial administration of the law.

Justice Flaunted in Decisions, Asserts Trial Examiner.

Orange, N. J., March 19 [Special].—Charging that a majority of the National Labor Relations board's members "brazenly and openly foster communists" and practice and condone unfair methods, Mapes Davidson today announced his resignation as a trial examiner for the board.

Nathan Witt.

Davidson, an attorney living here, made public a letter addressed to the board in Washington, D. C., explaining the reasons for his resignation. The board's entire record, he said in the letter, "is replete with rotten radicalism."

Despite the fact he resigned last Sunday, Davidson received a telegram today from Nathan Witt, board secretary, saying he had been dismissed for writing a "scurrilous" letter.

His Patience Exhausted.

Asserting in his letter to the board he had contemplated resigning for many months, Davidson declared his patience was exhausted last Friday when he attended a meeting of trial examiners in Washington.

At that meeting, his letter charged, David Saposs, chairman of the NLRB's economic division, lectured the trial examiners on "what should be gotten into the record of a labor board hearing, aside from direct evidence, to show by inference that employers are fostering company-dominated unions."

This, said Davidson, was in defiance of the fact that trial examiners, as quasi-judicial representatives of the board, are bound by oath to be fair and impartial judges of the evidence.

Recalls Fansteel Decision.

Saposs' lecture, Davidson's letter added, "was quite in keeping with your smelly Fansteel decision in which you sought to bestow a paternal benediction on sitdown strikes."

[Following a sitdown strike at the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation plant in North Chicago in February, 1937, the labor board found the company guilty of unfair labor practices and ordered the rehiring of 92 discharged sitdowners. These findings were voided by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago in July, 1938, and by the United States Supreme court in February, 1939.]

Davidson's letter further charged that the review and economic divisions of the board "are loaded with Reds of various shades" and that "this communistic vermin infest even some of the regional offices" of the board.

Terms Dismissal Tyranny.

Upon receipt of Witt's telegram today, Davidson sent another communication to J. Warren Madden, NLRB chairman, and Edwin Smith, board member, charging his "dismissal" added to the board's "scarlet record of unjust and tyrannical practices." An employé who had resigned could not be dismissed, Davidson contended.

"I thought that was a custom confined to Stalinist Moscow and other spheres of totalitarian influence, but doubtless you have been taking lessons from these sources in more than one respect," Davidson said in his reply.

"You are truly a disgrace to the democratic processes of the nation. But for the outstanding wisdom of the Supreme court in overruling your putrid Fansteel decision, this country would have been thrown into the horrors of civil war over the labor question."

Would Welcome Quiz.

Davidson said he would be willing to appear before the house committee investigating the labor board to tell his story.

In his letter of resignation, Davidson specifically absolved Dr. William Leiserson, board member; Charles Fahy, NLRB general counsel, and Robert Watts, assistant general counsel, of responsibility for the abuses he charged.

Davidson joined the NLRB in 1937 as a part time employé. In January, 1938, he was given a permanent appointment at a salary of $4,600 a year.

BLASTS TO CLEAR WAY FOR $26,000,000 WAR DEPARTMENT BUILDING

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—A nine story apartment house will be leveled in two dynamite blasts—one tomorrow and the other some days later—to clear a site for a new $26,000,000 war department building.

Engineers set the charges today under every second pillar on the ground floor and expect the tall steel and concrete structure to crumble inward upon itself.

The first unit of the new government building, to cost $4,328,500, will house all major war department officials and do away with 20 office units now rented. Some agencies of the department will continue to occupy the rambling munitions building erected in the world war until other units of the new plant are constructed.

GIRL, 18, BOY, 12, BATTLE DEADLY BLOOD DISEASE

Both Aided by Donors in Fight for Life.

A girl 18 years old and a boy of 12 were battling for their lives last nignt against the blood stream ailment known to science as staphylococcus aurius septicemia.

Lorraine Falck.

Medical men say this is in reality a form of old-fashioned blood poisoning, for which the usual remedy is the blood of a person who has recovered. It develops ordinarily, they said, from cuts, scratches, blisters, or other skin injuries.

The Chicago patients are Miss Lorraine Falck of 1649 North Spaulding avenue and Sheldon Belaffsky of 2857 Kimball avenue.

Girl's Condition Grave.

Miss Falck, an office worker, has been ill for more than six weeks. Her illness developed from a throat ailment. Dr. Arthur J. Chaloupka, who is attending her at the Ravenswood hospital, said her condition is grave but that it apparently has improved since last Saturday, when she was given blood from a recovered woman sufferer.

Dr. Chaloupka said that he is also administering sulfamethylhiazol, a new drug not yet in general use. It is allied to sulfanilamide, the recent drug discovery which has been successfully used in fighting infections of various types.

Donor Flies to Aid Boy.

Young Belaffsky is at Mount Sinai hospital. Dr. Stephen Manheimer, director of the hospital, said the boy was given blood yesterday by Clinton Medbury, a recovered patient. Medbury, a war veteran and air conditioning engineer, flew here from Houston, Tex., to aid the boy.

Blood donations from two other persons who have recovered from the malady are being sent here by airplane for young patients. They are coming from the Rev. Paul Meinecke, a Los Angeles priest, and from a patient at Mount Sinai hospital in New York.

CONTEMPT RULE AGAINST PAPER AND THREE ASKED

St. Louis, Mo., March 19 (AP).—Circuit Attorney [prosecutor] Franklin Miller asked today for a contempt of court judgment against the Post-Dispatch and three members of its editorial staff on the basis of their answer to a citation issued by Circuit Judge Thomas J. Rowe.

The contempt citation was based on two editorials and a cartoon relating to the dismissal in Judge Rowe's court of a $10,000 extortion charge against State Representative Edward M. [Putty Nose] Brady.

In a motion for a judgment on the pleadings, Miller said the respondents' return, filed yesterday, failed to purge them of contempt or state a valid defense against the charge. Arguments will be heard Thursday.

If a judgment is returned by Judge Rowe, an application for a writ of habeas corpus probably will be the next step of the newspaper and the three staff members—Managing Editor Benjamin H. Reese, Ralph Coghlan, editor of the editorial page, and Daniel R. Fitzpatrick, cartoonist.

In their return, they denied the editorials and cartoon were part of any plan or purpose to defame, degrade or insult the court or the judge, as alleged in the citation, but asserted they were published in the interests of public service.

WOMAN INJURED IN $5,000 BLAZE IN LOOP BUILDING

One woman was injured last night when patrons of a beauty shop on the 18th floor of the Garland building at 58 East Washington street became alarmed by smoke from a fire on the 9th floor.

Chief Cornelius P. Minahan of the 1st fire battalion said one of the patrons broke the glass of a fire escape door. A piece of the glass fell upon Miss Kathryn Simmens of 3623 Pine Grove avenue, senior librarian at the public library. The glass cut Miss Simmens' ankle. She was treated at Henrotin hospital.

The fire was confined to the Farley Leather Goods store. Chief Minahan said damage to the stock and the building was $5,000. The fire broke out, apparently in waste paper, the chief said, while several employés were working in the leather goods store.

BOY, 9, INJURED IN FALL.

Richard Peterson, 9 years old, fell thru a trap door into the basement of a furniture store at 1921 Milwaukee avenue yesterday. Richard, who lives at 2348 Moffat street, escaped with cuts about the head.

BARKLEY BLOCKS CENSUS SNOOPING VOTE BY SENATE

Refuses Action Before Count Begins.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 19.—Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky flatly refused today to give the Tobey resolution, condemning census snooping, the right of way for senate consideration before the enumerators begin their work on April 1.

Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.], author of the resolution, which has been reported favorably by the senate commerce committee, told Barkley that he intended to get a vote on the census snooping issue before April 1 regardless of administration efforts to block it. This indicated that Tobey may call up the anti-snooping resolution as an amendment to some pending bill, such as the farm appropriation measure.

Called Illegal in Report.

Meanwhile, Senator Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.], chairman of the commerce committee, filed a formal committee report pronouncing illegal the two questions relating to personal incomes contained in the population schedule prepared by the census bureau. One calls for the exact amount of income from salaries or wages up to $5,000 and the other asks whether each person had income of more than $50 from other sources during 1939. The Tobey resolution calls for the elimination of these questions.

The committee report, filed by Chairman Bailey, supports Senator Tobey in his controversy with President Roosevelt. When the President last week charged that the senator had "openly advised the American people to violate the law," Mr. Tobey demanded to know "what law?"

Not Authorized by Congress.

"The chairman of the committee on commerce has at no time questioned the value of the inquiries objected to, nor has he questioned the power of the congress to obtain the information," said Senator Bailey's report. "But he does question their validity—that is, whether the congress exercised its power. Has it given to the census bureau of the department of commerce the necessary authority?"

Senator Bailey said he seriously doubted "that criminal prosecutions could be sustained upon refusal to answer the questions complained of."

"The duty is upon those who oppose the resolution to satisfy themselves that the congress authorized the questions complained of," the report added. "The majority of the committee, upon careful consideration, were not so satisfied, and, therefore, the resolution is favorably reported."

Owl Surprises Clerk

David Owens and the owl that visited his desk.

David Owens, junior clerk at the Methodist Book concern, 740 North Rush street, was surprised yesterday morning when he saw an owl sitting on the window sill beside his desk. He was more surprised when he reached out and picked it up without effort. The Lincoln park zoo, to which he took it, said the owl's presence wasn't surprising at all. The screech owl family, to which it, a saw-whet owl, belongs, is common in this vicinity. Officials were surprised, however, at the fact that the little mottled brown owl put up no resistance. It has a wing spread of 14 inches.

TRACE PICTURE OF NUDE CO-ED IN MAIL TO TVA AID

Knoxville, Tenn., March 19 [Special].—A beautiful co-ed- an amateur photographer, and a girl in the nude photograph gave a jolt today to the University of Tennessee and the Tennessee valley authority.

Uncle Sam discovered in the mails a photographic postcard of a glamorous nude posing beside a stream. Alongside the picture was the co-ed's name and address—and, federal officials said, indecent references.

Government agents said they traced the picture to Russell M. Maxey, TVA senior engineering draftsman. It took them no time at all to discover that his darkroom dabbling was no federal project. Result: Maxey was held in $1,000 bail for arraignment Saturday on a charge of sending indecent matter thru the mails.

A university official announced the co-ed had departed hastily from the halls of learning. The negative and prints were confiscated.

Ju Jitsu (and Police) May Have Trouble Outliving This

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 19 (AP).—A 36 year old oil company employé was charged today with tossing two 200 pound officers, including the police ju-jitsu instructor, out of his home. The two policemen, Hand Reid and Bill Krueger, identified the husband who gave them the bum's rush as Lawrence T. Sampson. He was charged with being drunk and interfering with officers. Reid and Krueger had entered Sampson's home to arrest his wife for drunken driving.

HERSHEY'S BOAST OF ORGANIZATION TIES MAKES HIT

City Machine Democrats Hail Downstater.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville, organization candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, made an initial hit with Nash-Kelly payrollers last night by telling them, "I'm an organization man myself, and I'm proud to be one."

Squired by Mayor Kelly, Hershey made his speaking debut before the workers at two massmeetings which supplemented those held on Monday. He talked first before north side ward organizations in the 122d Field Artillery armory, Chicago avenue and Fairbanks court, and then addressed west side workers in Paradise ballroom, Pulaski road near Washington boulevard.

Mayor Lavish in Praise.

The downstater, who is the choice of the mayor, P. A. Nash, and Gov. Horner for the gubernatorial nomination in the race against Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, was given almost overwhelming praise in the mayor's introduction.

"He will make a great governor," Kelly said, "and on his record as governor I predict he will be elected President of the United States!

"I want you to hustle for this [the Slattery-Hershey] ticket," the mayor continued. "We're for it from top to bottom, and no trimming, or knifing."

Hershey, when given the platform, responded to the Kelly encomiums by terming the mayor "the biggest and finest Roosevelt leader in the United States." He then added: "I predict he will have a larger sphere when Roosevelt is reëlected."

Beaming on the workers, Hershey said:

"I've been an organization man myself—from precinct captain to chairman of the state central committee. I'm proud to be an organization man."

Ignores Insurgent Slate.

Hershey gave scant recognition to the Stelle-Adamowski-Barrett insurgent slate by declaring he wouldn't indulge in mud-slinging.

"I will say nothing and do nothing to cause discord in the party," he declared. "Other Democrats are running in this primary, but I will not smear the name of any candidate to become the governor of Illinois. I will not appeal to dissension in the party.

"If I am elected, I will not be a downstate governor, but a governor for Chicago as well as the rest of Illinois. I have one ambition and that is to give Illinois a good administration—honest, decent, and liberal to labor, agriculture, and business. I will give impartial treatment and consideration to all."

When Hershey finished his armory speech the mayor returned to the microphone.

"How do you like him?" he called to the workers. The response was prolonged.

The candidate for governor attended the Monday meetings, but was prevented from talking by a bad throat. His voice was a little husky when he appeared at the armory, but he was in campaign style by the time he arrived at the west side meeting.

Courtney at Meetings.

State's Attorney Courtney also spoke before both gatherings, but, as on Monday, he and the mayor did not meet. The prosecutor talked first on the west side and left before Kelly and Hershey arrived. He got to the armory while the candidates were still there, but remained in the background until the mayor left the platform.

Courtney told of his record as prosecutor, which he said was based on a 57 per cent reduction in crime during his seven years in office.

In speaking of the state's attorney, the mayor said: "Altho we have not been friends in the past, I believe he is a fine state's attorney and I want you to support him for that reason and for harmony."

GARNER FORCES OPEN CAMPAIGN IN CHICAGO AREA

The Garner for President Committee of Illinois, which has been carrying on an intensive campaign downstate, moved into Chicago yesterday and appealed to independent Democrats to aid in spreading sentiment against a third term for the President.

A conference of workers for Vice President Garner, representing about three-fourths of the wards in the city, was held last night in the committee headquarters in the Congress hotel. Julius F. Smietanka, committee chairman and former Democratic collector of internal revenue, presided. He urged the workers to devote their time between now and the preferential primary to battling the regular Democratic machine, which is supporting a third term movement.

The committee announced yesterday that Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, a woman leader in the Democratic party, has accepted the chairmanship of the women's division of the Garner campaign.

G. O. P. ASPIRANT WOULD REFUND 2% SHAKEDOWN

Batesville, Ind., March 19 [Special].—David Hogg of Fort Wayne, Republican gubernatorial aspirant, said tonight if he is elected governor he will confiscate the funds of the Democrats' 2 per cent club and turn the money back to the people of Indiana.

"Before the little New Deal in Indiana gets thru this fall, there may not be anything left in their 2 per cent club," Hogg said, "but if there is, I will do everything in my power as governor to return their extorted money where it belongs. This racket is an insult to every Hoosier."

The "Boost Hoosier Products" caravan arrived here today on its third week of a stumping tour of the state. Hogg is touring every county in the state, except those where his opponents live. Other addresses will be made this week in Brookville, Cambridge City, and Rising Sun. Hogg spoke in Aurora last night.

Defense Worth Its Cost, Legion Chief Declares

Galesburg, Ill., March 19 [Special].—An appeal for completely adequate national defenses was made by Raymond J. Kelly of Detroit, national commander of the American Legion, in an address before an American Legion meeting at the armory here tonight. The people are willing to bear proper defense costs, he said, because peace is cheaper than war. American Legion members won't hesitate to fight again if necessary, he declared, but "if this country becomes involved, we want to be sure it is our war and not some one else's."

BROOKS REVEALS NEW DEAL FAILED GENERATION AGO

Tells Voters of Disastrous New Zealand Parallel.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Tax-and-spend-and-tax-again New Deal theories were a howling failure in New Zealand a generation ago and were discarded after an economic collapse, Wayland Brooks, Republican candidate for the nomination for United States senator, said last night. He spoke at a massmeeting in the Lowell school at Harvey, with his teammate, Richard J. Lyons, candidate for the governorship nomination.

"Nearly all of the tax deal schemes tried on America in the last seven years," said Mr. Brooks, "were, in fact, crackpot illusions which New Zealand tried 30 years ago and abandoned as unworkable.

Traces Disastrous Parallel.

"In seven short years—another remarkable parallel—New Zealand's export markets collapsed and the country staggered under a crushing burden of national debt. Finally there was no more money to be loaned to the government. By 1915—17 years in advance of the New Deal—one-sixth of New Zealand's population depended on the state."

Mr. Brooks said the day of reckoning came when Premier Coates, heading an anti-New Deal coalition government, told parliament: "Heavy borrowing, over-capitalization, and overbuilding of public works and excessive industrial regimentation are responsible for the grave difficulties in which New Zealand is involved. This could not continue without exhausting the reserve strength and dislocating national finances. Lavish government expenditures have maintained large bodies of men who have known no other employment but that of spending money."

Forecast Big Vote Gain.

A forecast that more than 1,275,000 Republican votes will be cast in the April 9 primary was made yesterday by Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, candidate for the nomination for secretary of state. Johnson figures downstate Illinois will cast 20 per cent more and Chicago 15 per cent more votes than were cast in the G. O. P. primary in 1936, when the vote was 1,077,295.

The Democratic party's New Deal is displaying its hypocrisy in the troubles at Springfield, Charles W. Hadley, candidate for the nomination for attorney general told Young Republicans at 6 North Hamlin avenue.

"The backroom boys," he said, "are showing themselves in their true colors. By their own charges they prove what the country has been suspecting—namely that while they were doling out a pittance to the needy they were using scoop shovels to fill their own coffers. If what they are saying about each other is only half true, it is no wonder that the public funds are being plundered."

HEIL ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR A SECOND TERM

Madison, Wis., March 19 (AP).—Gov. Julius P. Heil announced today he would be a candidate for reëlection on the Republican ticket. Political observers had been speculating for several months on a possibility that Heil might forego the opportunity for another term and seek to unseat United States Senator Robert M. La Follette in November, altho he never gave encouragement to the rumors.

MRS. ANN WISSOTZKY.

Mrs. Ann Sider Wissotzky, 32 years old, of 3110 Dickens avenue, settled a $4,117 claim for arrears in support money for a daughter, Estelle, 13, when her former husband, Louis Sider, 35, of 4822 South Kedzie avenue, paid her $1,000 yesterday in Judge Rudolph Desort's Superior court. In return, Mrs. Wissotzky agreed to dismiss an appeal from a ruling entered 11 months ago by Judge Oscar Nelson.

Judge Nelson refused to grant Mrs. Wissotzky a judgment for the arrearage when Sider said he had not been permitted to see his daughter and that the child's name had been changed to Wissotzky. Sider told Judge Desort that he would not object to Estelle's adoption by his former wife's present husband, Harry Wissotzky.

PLASTICS ON PARADE (2)

By CALEB

CELLULOID was the first of the plastics (1869); Casein the second comer to the scene (1899) . . . and a third, which met with popular acclaim and was widely familiarized to the public shortly after the turn of the century, was Bakelite. This substance was the research-child of a brilliant Belgian-American businessman and chemist, Leo Baekeland, who combined phenol with formaldehyde to evolve a new resin, extremely hard and fire-resistant, whose molding qualities introduced it into a wide range of commercial products.

With this trio of predecessors as background, the picture of plastics has assumed really startling and unguessable proportions since about 1929. Major reason for this, according to authorities, lies in the fact of stronger companies entering the field, the inauguration of wider and deeper research, and the application to numerous problems of fabrication of some of the country's best technical talent.

As a result, in little more than a decade, some thirteen different types of plastics have been developed—and production estimates run above 80,000 tons of these unique materials annually. The staggering investment in research and equipment represented can be best appreciated by pointing out that to produce just one new plastic requires from five to ten years' laboratory study and experiment, at costs running into hundreds of thousands, sometimes millions, of dollars.

For the benefit, at this point, of any one still dubious as to what a "plastic" is, I offer this composite definition, supplied by experts in the field, as both intelligible and adequate: "Plastics are man-made combinations of basic chemicals and materials, manufactured in a wide variety of transparent, translucent and opaque colors in the form of sheets, rods, tubes and molding powder, from which articles may be fabricated."

And since the variety of these fabricated articles is spectacular in its extent—penetrating into all manner of uses: automobiles, building interiors, airplanes, medicine, dentistry, household furnishings, the dairy business, costume jewelry, window and counter display, and a dozen other commercial applications—the reader will, I think, welcome, in another consideration of the subject, an elementary review of those uses, along with a description of several of the outstanding products already playing roles in the fast-changing industrial melange that are in many respects revolutionary.

DELAY HEARING OF SLUSH FUND SUIT FOR WEEK

Inquest in Smith Death Also Postponed.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 19.—The suit for accounting of the Horner slush fund was continued for a week by Judge L. E. Stone of the Sangamon county Circuit court here today. The litigation remained in its status of advantage to the gubernatorial candidacy of Lieut. Gov. John Stelle.

Judge L. E. Stone.

A temporary injunction, issued a couple of weeks ago, is tying up an estimated $200,000 campaign fund collected in a 2 per cent assessment against salaries of state employés. The defendants, eight Horner appointees headed by State Finance Director Samuel L. Nudelman, cannot spend any of the money.

Unless this injunction is dissolved in the meantime, none of this money can be spent in the primary campaign in behalf of the Horner-Nash-Kelly choice for the Democratic nomination, Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville. A motion to dissolve is scheduled for hearing next Tuesday.

Exposures Are Forestalled.

Also postponed for a week is a hearing on a motion in behalf of State Policeman Sylvester Steskal, the complainant, for the court to seize and to impound the books and records of these slush fund collections and disbursements. Until such action is taken the statehouse politicians are saved from exposures that, according to reports, might prove scandalous.

A third hearing, continued until next Tuesday, was a petition brought by Attorney D. Logan Griffin, a former Republican state representative, asking leave to intervene as a complainant. If this motion were granted it would change the complexion of a suit that to date appears to be a fight, or at least a sparring match, between the two factions of the Democrats.

Delays Smith Inquest.

An inquest into the death of F. Lynden Smith, state director of public works and former Horner campaign manager, was postponed until next week by Coroner W. L. Dragoo today.

Coroner Dragoo's investigation is going further than the pathologists' report. He said he will present to the jury all evidence relating to the reported attempt by Smith to kill himself with a butcher knife on March 7 as well as all evidence relating to his death 36 hours later.

MRS. ROOSEVELT GIVES SUPPORT TO 7 BOY STRIKERS

New York, March 19 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt lent moral support today to seven boy strikers who are demanding $1 a day for delivering lunch boxes in midtown Manhattan. She telegraphed local 254 of the Soda Fountain and Luncheonette Employés' union that she had investigated the dispute and found the boys' demands meritorious.

"I hope that something can be worked out which will soon bring this strike to a close and make it possible for them to earn a living wage under proper working conditions, as they need the work," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Charles J. Corbetoff, owner of the lunch service, said he worked on a basis of 6 cents' profit a box and could not remain in business if he met the demands.

Lyons Rakes Sales Tax Fight Critics; Green Hits New Deal

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Richard J. Lyons, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, replied sharply last night to critics of his fight to take the sales tax off food in Illinois. Swinging into the second day of his Cook county campaign, Lyons addressed meetings in Harvey and on the south and near north sides of Chicago.

His answer was directed principally at those who charge a constitutional amendment would be necessary to lift the tax. Branding these assertions as false, Lyons analyzed the tax structure and the section of the constitution his critics say would be violated. He also quoted figures to show no replacement levy would be necessary.

Explains Legal Provisions.

"The so-called sales tax is not a sales tax," Lyons said. "It is a tax on occupations. All that is necessary to remove the tax from food is to rewrite the law so that it specifies what merchants are to be included. The legislature has full authority to omit dealers in food.

"This would avoid any conflict with the 'uniformity clause' in the constitution which says that a tax must uniformly affect the class upon which it operates. It would not discriminate against other merchants because they would simply continue to pay the same tax as they do now. But it would make 17 million dollars a year available to the citizens of Illinois—17 millions that now go for taxes."

Hailed by Harvey Throng.

Enthusiastic crowds greeted the candidate at Lowell school in Harvey, Thornton township. Next he went to a precinct meeting at 3801 South Spaulding avenue, closing the evening at a rally at the Svithiod Singing club, 624 Wrightwood avenue.

An auxiliary drive against the tax was launched during the afternoon by several hundred Republican women from thruout the county who gathered at the Hotel Sherman. They were given the first of several thousand shopping bags, bearing legends opposing the levy, which are to be distributed during the next few weeks.

Mrs. Mabel Krutckoff, chairman of the woman's division of the Cook county Republican central committee, presided.

William Busse, for 38 years a member of the county board, was announced yesterday as statewide chairman for Lyons in his race for governor and for Wayland Brooks in his campaign for United States senator.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Dwight H. Green, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, took up the theme of a government balance sheet last night and charged that the ledger proves that seven years of New Dealism have been seven years of failure.

Green spoke before the Illinois Service Men's club, a 50th ward group, at 2323 Devon avenue, and at 4032 Milwaukee avenue in the 38th ward. He leaves today on a four day campaign in western and southwestern Illinois. He will visit seven Peoria county cities today and will make two addresses in Peoria tonight.

Calls Government a Business.

"Government is a business," Green said last night. "That business belongs to the people. If any business, private or governmental, is succeeding, the fact is shown in the balance sheet. If it is failing, the record is there—in red. The New Deal has been conducting our governmental business for seven years. Its ledgers are open for all to read.

"They show, in red, more than nine million unemployed Americans. They show a lower standard of living than 10 years ago. They show that the creation of new enterprises is virtually at a standstill, that modernization and expansion of existing enterprises has been deferred.

"The New Deal balance sheet is scarlet on those pages which are devoted to agriculture. Farm prices today are neither stable nor satisfactory.

Opportunity Blocked, He Says.

"The doors of economic opportunity are barricaded to youth by the sluggish condition of American enterprise.

"Remember also that the New Dealers promised us economy. They promised balanced budgets. They promised us lower taxes. But what does the ledger show in regard to these items? It shows government expenditures for 1939 were approximately triple the expenditures of 1933. It shows nothing of a balanced budget. It shows the heaviest tax burden in our country's history.

"The final entries are all in red."

Green's schedule for tomorrow calls for addresses in Moline, Aledo, and Rock Island, where he will again take to the radio. On Friday he will speak in Taylorville and in three places in Springfield. Saturday he will speak in eight cities in the vicinity of East St. Louis, appearing at the Belleville courthouse in the evening.

DIES TO SPEAK AT CARL SCHURZ SCHOOL TONIGHT

"The Subversive American Front" is the title of a speech which Congressman Martin Dies, Texas Democrat and head of a congressional committee investigating un-American activities, will deliver at 8:15 o'clock tonight in the Carl Schurz High school auditorium.

Sponsoring the meeting is the 7th district organization of the Illinois State Federation of Women's clubs. An admission fee of $1 will be charged. Dies has promised that his share of the receipts will be donated to organizations fighting subversive activities.

ROBBED OF CLOTHES AND $72.

A colored burglar awakened Frederick Franke of 1031 Laflin street early yesterday. But Franke roused too late to prevent the thief from carrying away his trousers, shirt, underwear and $72. The shirt and underwear were found a little later; the burglar kept the money and the trousers.

POETESS AND HER HUSBAND CONFER ON DIVORCE PACT

A court hearing on the divorce suit of Mrs. Jean Redfearn, poetess, against Harry Redfearn, a butter and egg merchant, was postponed yesterday while efforts for an agreed settlement were being made in a conference in Judge Rudolph Desort's chambers.

Redfearn and his attorney, Benjamin B. Davis; Mrs. Redfearn's counsel, Robert E. Cantwell Jr., and her uncle, Arthur Baxter, wealthy Indianapolis inventor, were the conferees. It was indicated that the hearing would be renewed today if no agreement on points at issue, including custody of two children, were reached.

Redfearn lives with his son, 11 years old, at 243 Moraine road, Highland Park. Mrs. Redfearn resides with her daughter, 12, at 610 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park.

FIVE DICTATORS BOSS ILLINOIS, STELLE CHARGES

Asks Voters to Smash Kelly-Nudelman Rule.

Rockford, Ill., March 19 [Special].—Illinois currently has five dictators—Kelly, Nash, Nudelman, Schwartz, and Arvey—Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, campaigning for the Democratic nomination for governor, charged here tonight in a radio speech.

"Democracy is dead when one or two or five men can say who shall be elected and the voters must vote the bosses' will or suffer dire consequences," Stelle said.

"Free ballots, free press, free education, you will have none of these if the bosses hold sway. While Boss [Mayor Edward J.] Kelly coerces the city employés in Chicago, Boss [Samuel L.] Nudelman [state finance director] puts the heat on the job holders downstate.

Way to Dictatorship.

"Control the ballot, intimidate the press, muzzle the free citizens! Are these not the steps by which tyranny rises to power? The people must free the employés from their political serfdom. They must free Illinois from the Kellys and the Nudelmans."

Stelle charged that Nudelman is engineering a move to force state employés in Springfield to mark primary absentee ballots there this week, in the presence of their bosses, even tho the employé intends being in his home town on April 9, primary day. This is a violation of the primary election law, he said.

Horner's Change Since 1936.

Turning his guns on Mayor Kelly, Stelle quoted from a speech Gov. Henry Horner made in his battle with the Chicago machine in 1936.

"'I'll give up the governorship' said Horner, 'and step out of politics before I will betray the people of Illinois and submit to the yoke of political serfdom decreed by Boss Kelly, self-styled overlord of Chicago and would-be dictator of Illinois.'

"Will any citizen believe now," Stelle demanded, "that the man who made that statement in 1936 is the governor of Illinois today?"

Then the candidate repeated his condemnation of the slate making conference in Springfield attended by Mayor Kelly, P. A. Nash, national committeeman; Charles K. Schwartz, chairman of the state tax commission; Nudelman, and Ald. J. M. Arvey of Chicago.

State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, a candidate for renomination, joined Stelle and Benjamin S. Adamowski in attacking the slate makers. Barrett said he could have been on that slate if he had turned over to Ald. Jake Arvey the closed bank business in Chicago. Adamowski, candidate for the nomination for United States senator, continued his attack on the Kelly-Nash machine and the clique surrounding the governor.

A FIRE MARSHAL GETS GOOD SERVICE; BLAZE JUST OUTSIDE HIS DOOR

Fire broke out yesterday just a few feet from the door of Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan's office. It got the kind of prompt attention you'd expect. In no time at all an engine, a ladder truck, and a rescue car arrived.

Firemen found the fire in rubbish behind a radiator grill in the Randolph street entrance to the city hall. They put out the blaze with a hand extinguisher, but weren't so certain what to do with a pair of old shoes and two empty whisky bottles they uncovered.

A pile of papers on a fire escape of the county building also caught fire yesterday, but called forth less heroic measures. A custodian splashed a bucket of water on it.

Germans to Melt Church Bells Into Armaments

BERLIN, March 19.—Bronze church bells thruout the reich will soon leave their steeples to be melted into German armaments, according to a decree published by Air Minister Hermann Wilhelm Goering in the official gazette today.

DUNHAM'S $40,000 CHECK RECEIVED FOR CONVENTION

Oliver Quayle, treasurer of the Democratic national committee, said yesterday he had received a check for $40,000 from Robert J. Dunham as part of the $125,000 pledged by Chicago to bring the national convention here on July 15.

Dunham, who offered to underwrite the city's bid for the gathering, will be called upon for the remainder of the pledge as it is needed, Quayle said. At the time the convention was given to Chicago, Mayor Kelly said Dunham would be reimbursed.

Treasurer Quayle said preconvention headquarters would be established in the Stevens hotel May 15, and that any state delegation wishing headquarters in that hotel could obtain them. In addition, the national committee has obtained blocks of rooms in the Blackstone, Congress, and Drake hotels.

Quayle reported that the party is now out of debt and would start the fall campaign without a deficit.

STELLE AFRAID TO OUST HORNER, CROSS CHARGES

Warns the Voters of Both Democrat Groups.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 19 [Special.]—Lieut. Gov. John Stelle today was accused of being a political coward who shirks the duty of acting as governor to avoid being classed as a treasury looter. His accuser was Speaker Hugh W. Cross of the Illinois house of representatives, who said this state is facing bankruptcy.

One Democratic faction is liquidating banks, the other is liquidating insurance companies, Speaker Cross asserted. Both are liquidating the state, he charged.

Cross, a Republican, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor in the April 9 primary. In a statement issued in his office in the statehouse here today he explained he felt it was his duty to warn all the voters of the state that one Democratic slate is no better than the other.

Hits Unelected Officials.

Samuel L. Nudelman, state finance director, and Arthur P. O'Brien, secretary to Gov. Horner, are at present in control of the state administration, Cross charged, adding that both have risen to their present affluence from humbler pasts.

Yesterday in a speech at Granite City Cross advocated a test of Stelle's right to act as governor. This could be brought about, he said, by the refusal of State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, a member of the Stelle faction, to sign Gov. Horner's pay check. Today the Republican leader said Barrett and State Treasurer Louie Lewis are ignoring their duties. Cross' statement said:

"Not only have the governor and the lieutenant governor failed to do their duty, but State Auditor Barrett and State Treasurer Lewis are also sacrificing the interest of the people for their own candidacies in the coming primary. The Democratic state administration has collapsed.

Calls It Invisible Government.

"Instead of a state government we have an invisible government. Unelected officials are ruling, and ruling with an iron hand. They care not what happens to the public and the individual, the worker and the taxpayer. They care only about their own jobs. Every one has the highest admiration for a man who wants to keep his job and I am no exception to the rule. But I do say when men are elected to office they should give the people some return for the trust placed in them.

"These men—all office holders and drawing nice fat salaries—are not giving the people honest service in the jobs they now hold. Both sides in this Democratic sham battle are only hoping and praying that the people of Illinois will again listen to their pleas and return them to another four years of power.

"But they are going to be fooled because the people will refuse to be fooled and will vote to oust the Democrats both in Washington and Springfield and return Illinois and the nation to some form of sanity in government.

Stelle Fails to Act.

"Gov. Horner is trying to name his successor. Lieut. Gov. Stelle is seeking to be governor and is refusing to act now because of political cowardice. State Auditor Barrett, who should check the disbursements, is interested only in being renominated. State Treasurer Lewis, who should guard the people's money to his utmost, is seeking a new job. These four elected officials, fighting among themselves, have abandoned their duties and unelected officials are administering the laws.

"The Democrats are collecting taxes greedily and spending public funds lavishly. Present outgo is greater than income, and as a result of this situation the state will be bankrupt before the end of the year.

"Some of the Democrats accuse other Democrats of seizing portions of state employés' pay. Why the hypocrisy? Both sides are doing it. The 2 per cent scandal has grown into a 20 per cent scandal. This is Kelly-Nash-Horner government — yes —Stelle - Adamowski - Barrett government, too, at its best in Illinois. In short, this is the way the Democratic party operates in Illinois.

Says Nudelman Is Governor.

"Every day we hear about Sam Nudelman. The papers are full of charges and countercharges against this man Nudelman. For what office is he running? He is referred to as the defacto governor. Defacto governor means governor in fact."

Governor Reported Unchanged.

O'Brien said today the condition of the governor is unchanged. Director of Reports M. P. Akers said the governor had not replied to the proposal of Speaker Cross that the governor's pay be withheld.

"He is just another Cross we have to bear," said Akers.

A letter to State's Attorney William P. Roberts of Sangamon county today asked that he file a quo warranto petition in the Sangamon county court testing Horner's ability to retain his office. It was sent by Jacob Legion Tenny of Chicago, who described himself as a citizen, resident and elector of the state of Illinois.

[Quo warranto is a judicial writ calling upon a person to show by what authority he exercises an office or franchise. It is discretionary with the court whether it will permit such a petition to be filed.]

Tenny, who is a lawyer, said the state today has no chief executive. Prosecutor Roberts said he had no comment to make about the request which, he said, was apparently filed under a statute which would permit a citizen to address a court personally in such a case if the state's attorney and attorney general refuse to act.

Spring Chickens

Helen Karlovsky, 5 years old, 8903 Ogden avenue, Brookfield, admiring several day old chicks at her home yesterday.

The vernal equinox, when the sun crosses the equator on its annual journey north, arrives in Chicago at 12:24 p. m. today and ushers in astronomical spring. The weather forecast indicated that mildly winterish conditions will prevail thru the day, followed by rain or snow tonight. A wet snow that started falling last night made streets slippery in the Chicago area.

The astronomical winter just passed [Dec. 21 to March 20] was colder than usual. The average daily mean temperature was 23.9 degrees, compared to a normal of 25.8. Precipitation was only 3.70 inches; 6.02 inches would be normal. The lowest temperature, was 14 below zero on Jan. 18 and the highest 63 above last Sunday.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel refused to guess what Easter weather will be. He recalled that the coldest Easter in Chicago was on March 24, 1894, when the mercury ranged between 13 and 19 above zero. The warmest was March 27, 1910, when the high reading was 81. The wettest was March 31, 1929, when 3.2 inches of rain fell.

LUND OPPOSES HORNER OUSTER TO SEAT STELLE

Let Voters Clean House in Fall, He Urges.

Court action to oust Gov. Henry Horner because of disability and to place Lieut. Gov. John Stelle in the executive chair would throw Illinois out of the frying pan into the fire, Representative Arnold L. Lund [R., Riverside], said last night. Lund, a candidate for the nomination for lieutenant governor, said both Horner and Stelle have aided wasteful measures.

"Strangely enough," said Lund, "Illinois has had two governors during most of the last two years. Mr. Stelle acted as governor for a large part of the time. During that period he sponsored many extravagant measures that even drew the wrath of his present running mate, Benjamin Adamowski.

"Wouldn't Do Any Better."

"The records show Stelle would not do any better than Horner. Mr. Stelle requested and received for his own office $24,600 for expenses during the last biennium. This did not include his salary of $5,000 a year, nor did it include the many expenses incurred by him as president of the senate, which ran into more than $50,000.

"Both Stelle and Horner have shown their unfitness for leadership. Both have sponsored wasteful and extravagant legislation. The Republicans are satisfied that the public is aware of this and are willing to let the situation stand until November. Republicans prefer to let the people have the opportunity of cleaning house in a wholesale fashion at that time.

Removal Legislative Matter.

"Besides, there is no way under the 1870 constitution whereby court action will bring about the removal of Gov. Horner. The constitution makes this a matter of impeachment by the house of representatives, and this is impossible unless the legislature is in session.

"Both Gov. Horner and Lieut. Gov. Stelle stand accused and condemned on their records. They have both been proved incompetent. So far as the general welfare of the state is concerned, there isn't much of a choice between them."

NELSON REPLIES TO DITCHBURNE; CITES VOTE DATA

Rival Promises a Square Deal to Labor.

The contest between Harry S. Ditchburne and Judge Oscar F. Nelson for the Republican nomination for state's attorney became somewhat controversial last night. Speaking in Harvey, Judge Nelson gave his answer to Mr. Ditchburne's declaration of Monday night that the judge as a former Democrat is somewhat out of place in a Republican primary. Ditchburne said Nelson supported him in 1936 and the rest of the G. O. P. ticket and now wants to get on the ticket because 1940 looks like a G. O. P. year.

"My opponent," said Judge Nelson, "last night asked why I am not supporting him as in 1936. He was a complete failure in both the primary and regular election of 1936. The records show, Mr. Ditchburne, you were low man in the primary, and in the November election were absolutely last on the county ticket by 70,000 votes. I say to my opponent this record is the reason I am opposing him in this election."

Promises Labor Square Deal.

Ditchburne in his speeches last night said politics should not be played with labor or employer by the state's attorney's office.

"I have always been indorsed by organized labor," he said. "My father was a labor union man and I myself am a friend of organized labor and of the wage earner. Labor wants a square deal and will always get it from me.

"I am told there is a department in the state's attorney's office today called the labor department. I would abolish that. I would not prefer one union over another as may have been done in the past and would have no policy concerning labor matters except equal liberties and true justice for all.

No Buck Passing, He Says.

"I make no advance promises concerning the creation of nonpartisan commissions, citizens' advisory boards or other similar conveniences for passing the buck. When I am state's attorney, the responsibility for running the office will be all mine and I am not going to pave the way for any alibis."

BLENDING PLANT BLAST KILLS 3; ROCKS CAPITOL

Baton Rouge, La., March 19 (AP).—A mysterious explosion in the ethyl DuPont gasoline blending plant this afternoon killed three persons and injured several others. Many were treated at the plant and in hospitals for burns and shock.

The blast was followed by three lesser explosions. Fire, started by the first blast, was brought under control about nightfall.

Baton Rouge's skyscraper capitol was shaken slightly.

The dead were Justin Hughes, Henry Kinberger, and Clifton Couey, who were working near a tank which exploded in the blender building.

The blast blew out part of the roof and north end of the building, recently completed at a cost of $2,000,000, twisting the structure's steel frame. Victims said a tank of tetraethyl lead burst into flames.

A column of smoke which shot skyward after the first blast was described by Dr. E. V. Whitaker, who viewed it from his home four miles distant, as "spectacular, beautifully colored with rose and yellow tints."

Ex-Banker Loses Fight to Dodge Jail for Fraud

South Bend, Ind., March 19 [Special].—Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick today overruled a defense motion for arrested judgment and a new trial in the $30,000 embezzlement case of Donald H. Harter, 42 year old former secretary of the Wabash Valley Trust company, Peru, Ind. Sentence will be pronounced Friday. Harter was found guilty March 13. Maximum sentence is a $5,000 fine and five years' imprisonment on each of nine counts.

OHIO DEMOCRAT ASKS FOR CONGRESSIONAL PROBE OF MINE BLAST

St. Clairsville, O., March 19 (AP).—An immediate congressional investigation of the Willow Grove Coal mine disaster was proposed today while cleanup squads continued to struggle thru debris which clogged the mine after an explosion last Saturday.

Members of the mines and mining committee of the house of representatives suggested the inquiry after Representative Earl R. Lewis, Democrat of St. Clairsville, visited the scene of the explosion and asked that a subcommittee come here.

Joe L. Smith [D., W. Va.], chairman of the mines committee, endorsed the investigation, which would send to St. Clairsville a group that has considered legislation calling for federal inspection of all mines at least once yearly. Smith suggested, however, that the inquiry be delayed until all bodies were removed.

Ten additional bodies were brought about, raising to 18 the number of known dead. No hope was held for 53 men still missing.

Two men who had been listed as missing were located outside the mine today.

Son, 51, Ordered to Give His Parents $1.50 a Week

Alfred Miller, 51 years old, 2744 North Talman avenue, argued yesterday before Judge James Gullett, sitting in the County court, that he was under no obligation to help support his parents, Louis and Mary Miller of 6313 North Merrimac avenue. "They abandoned me in Germany when I was a child," he said. Judge Gullett ordered him to pay $1.50 a week.

SWALLOWS KEEP DATE THEY HAVE HAD FOR CENTURY

San Juan Capistrano, Cal., March 19 (AP).—The swallows of San Juan kept their age-old rendezvous beneath the eaves of historic Mission San Juan Capistrano today.

Arrow locates San Juan Capistrano.

They began arriving out of a murky sky from the south around 6:30 a. m., and within a few minutes were waging their annual warfare with the swifts which had moved into their quarters since their departure last August. Usually the departure is as regularly on Oct. 23 as today is arrival time, but last season the swallows broke precedent. As usual, the swallows were victorious, and soon they were settling themselves for their summer's stay.

For a century, tradition has held that the swallows have left the adobe walls of the mission, founded in 1776 by the Order of St. Francis, annually on the feast day of its patron saint, and return on March 19.

2 MORE SHIELDS START CUTTING SUBWAY TUBES

Two more of the 200 ton steel shields, or biscuit cutters, that are being used to bore Chicago's subway tunnel, were started to work yesterday 40 feet below the surface.

One shield was pushed northward from 11th street under the east side of State street. The other was shoved westward under the south side of Lake street from La Salle street. A third shield already has bored its way 1,500 feet northward under the west side of State, and a fourth will be pushed under the north side of Lake street in about a month.

Inventor to Demonstrate New Explosive Next Week

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—Lester P. Barlow, Baltimore inventor, announced today he would demonstrate the safe handling qualities of his new type high explosive bomb at Baltimore a week from today. Members of congress and army and navy representatives will be invited to this unofficial demonstration, Barlow said, altho official military tests, agreed upon by army and navy heads yesterday, will not start for about two weeks. The unofficial tests, to be conducted at the Glenn L. Martin plant, where Barlow is head of the bomb department, will be designed, Barlow said, to show the safety and stability of this new high explosive.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Fifty-five candidates—an unprecedentedly high number—are seeking the Republican nominations for judges of the Municipal court in the April 9 primary. Of these, 53 want nominations for the 12 six year terms at stake in the election, and the other two are candidates for a two year vacancy.

In the last nine days THE TRIBUNE has carried short biographical sketches of 27 of these candidates. The careers of both candidates for the two year vacancy were reviewed as were those of 25 candidates for the full terms, more than twice as many as can be nominated.

Information concerning the 28 other candidates is now presented in condensed form. This is because some of these candidates have no public record, or lack any strong organization support, or do not appear to be waging active campaigns. In alphabetical order they are:

Alva M. Bates, 52 years old, colored, 4621 Calumet avenue. Nominated for sanitary district trustee in 1936, defeated in election. Former assistant state's attorney under Robert E. Crowe and president of the Cook County Bar association [colored] in 1932 and 1933.

WARN 200,000 THEY FACE LOSS OF VOTES IN PRIMARY ELECTION

John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners, warned 200,000 persons who have received suspect notices as a result of the precinct canvass that they will be barred from voting in the April 9 primary if they fail to appear at the board's offices in the county building by next Monday evening. Rusch also said that individual canvassers may file suspect notices against any registered voter with the board next Monday and Tuesday, and that hearings will be held by the board on these notices March 28, 29, and 30.

TWO WELL KNOWN MEN IN RACE FOR LIEUT. GOVERNOR

Products of Opposing Political Schools.

[This is one of a series of sketches about the leading candidates for state offices in the April 9 primaries.]

BY PERCY WOOD.

Two men whose names are already well known to the voters are racing for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor of Illinois.

Louie E. Lewis [top] and Geo. M. Maypole.

One is Louie E. Lewis, the dignified, word-weighing state treasurer, who wears the harmony indorsement bestowed by the Kelly-Horner-Nash slatemakers. The other is George M. Maypole, president pro tempore of the state senate where he represents the home district [21st] of P. A. Nash, national committeeman.

Known as Nash Henchman.

Nash directed Maypole's election as second in rank in the senate both in 1937 and 1939 and he has long been regarded in politics as "Nash's man." That he is now running for lieutenant governor without Nash's okay is one of those strange, unexplained circumstances which occasionally develop in politics.

While Lewis and Maypole are campaigning for the lieutenant governorship nomination, Homer Mat Adams is virtually assured of the nomination for state treasurer. He has only one opponent, Edwin C. Gordon, 1628 Pierce avenue, who is politically unknown.

Senator Maypole and Treasurer Lewis have not much in common except for their full blown political ambitions. Maypole is a product of urban politics, the son of a Chicago alderman and later an alderman himself before he went to the senate. Lewis is a country-type politician and a leading citizen in Christopher, which has 4,200 people in the Egyptian coal fields of Franklin county.

Doesn't Look His Years.

Maypole is a dapper man who doesn't look his 57 years. He has a full head of gray hair and a slender physique which generally is draped in fashionable attire. Long experience in politics has given him an easy delivery when he speaks in the senate, altho he does not talk often.

Maypole entered the senate in 1931, after serving as an alderman from the old 14th ward since 1917. His father, the late William T. Maypole, represented the ward for 12 years. When George got out of Notre Dame, he studied law at Chicago-Kent college and then entered politics himself.

Having always been a straight organization man, as an adherent of the Nash-Kelly organization, Maypole's try for the lieutenant governorship was thought by many to have had Nash's blessing. The veteran chairman passed the word around, however, that he was for the organization ticket, "from top to bottom," adding he was not for any one who wasn't on the ticket—"even if he lives in my own ward."

Running as an Independent.

Maypole says he is running as an independent, but expects to draw votes from the same group that will vote for John Stelle for governor, against Harry B. Hershey, harmony candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

Treasurer Lewis and Maypole haven't had much to do with each other in Springfield because they were on opposite sides of the political fence—Lewis as a Horner Democrat, Maypole as a Nash-Kellyite. Lewis has come far in politics in a hurry. He was speaker of the house during the 1937 session of the legislature after having served only four years in that body.

He won the speakership with the backing of labor organizations—his brother, Thurlow, is a C. I. O. lawyer in Washington—and with the governor's support. Nash and Mayor Kelly had agreed to let Horner organize the house and the governor left it to the downstate Democrats to pick a speaker, saying he would abide by their choice. Labor leaders plugged hard for Lewis, he won over his downstate colleagues, was chosen by the Democratic caucus and elected by the house.

In 1938 Lewis was one of the most talked of candidates for the senatorial nomination, but the governor picked Scott W. Lucas and assuaged Lewis' feelings by putting him on the Horner slate for state treasurer. He ran, defeated Bruce A. Campbell of Belleville for the nomination, and won out over the Republican nominee, William R. McCauley, in the fall.

Inconspicuous in Dress.

Lewis, like Maypole, is also neatly dressed, but in a different way. Where Maypole is stylish, Lewis is inconspicuous in a sort of Sunday best, which generally is dark blue. He is one of the few men in the statehouse who clings to the round haircut—a fashion older than his 46 years.

Originally spotted for congressman at large on the harmony slate, Lewis was pushed up to the lieutenant governorship thru the refusal of Stelle to stay on the ticket. Lewis didn't want to go to Washington, anyway, and be one of 435 congressmen. The statehouse suits him fine and he likes to be with his family—Mrs. Lewis, three sons and three daughters.

Adams, the virtually unopposed harmony candidate for state treasurer, is another man who came up fast in the party. Altho only 29 years old, he is national president of the Young Democrats, a trustee of the University of Illinois, and assistant director of the department of finance.

HITLER CALLS IN WAR AIDS; NAZIS EXPECT 'ACTION'

Hint Important Events Will Occur Soon.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 19.—Two hours after returning to Berlin this noon from his discussion with Benito Mussolini at Brenner Pass yesterday, Adolf Hitler met with the leaders of the army, air force, navy, government and the Nazi party.

"All meetings between Hitler and Mussolini always have been followed by decisions and actions of utmost importance," German officials emphasized.

Foreign office spokesmen ridiculed persons who spread reports of a peace offensive.

"For several months Germany's policy has been perfectly clear," they said. "First of all, Germany has been and is determined to carry on this war until victory is hers. In the second place, after the victory has been achieved Germany will do everything to safeguard the interests she considers of vital importance to herself. She will end for all time to come the threat of western plutocracies."

Hitler's Offer Recalled.

It was recalled that Hitler in a speech to the reichstag Oct. 6 suggested international mediation, but insisted Germany would yield none of Austria, Poland or Czecho-Slovakia.

"The peace proposals were rejected," the Nazis said today. "Consequently, they no longer are valid."

German circles insisted that the Rome-Berlin axis is as strong as it ever has been and that its "overwhelming importance" soon will be realized by others.

Get Soviet Oil, Italy Urged.

BERLIN, March 19 (AP).—Russian oil was mentioned tonight as an immediate reason for Russia and Italy to come together in a better understanding as a result of Monday's Brenner pass conference between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

The subject of oil was brought up as Germans discussed creation of "a new European order" thru extension of the Rome-Berlin axis to Moscow.

Russia always has had oil that Italy would like, but informed quarters said that Italy in the past never had been interested in contracting for it when the only feasible means of transport was thru the Black sea and the easily-closed Dardanelles.

Call Poor Political Ally.

Italy also regarded the soviet union as an unpromising trade partner and an even worse political associate.

But Germany's new friendship with Russia, elimination of Poland as a buffer state, and the development of land transportation facilities have made Russian oil more accessible to Italy. German economic experts say there is, or soon will be, a secure land route for the transportation to Italy.

In addition, if a more coöperative attitude toward Russia would aid in solving Balkan problems where Mussolini wants peace, informed Berlin circles said some sort of an understanding would become more attractive to Italy.

Britain Shuts Off U. S. Oil.

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—R. H. Cross, minister of economic warfare, said today that Great Britain had temporarily shut off shipments of lubricating oil from the United States to Belgium, the Netherlands, and Denmark because of "the comparatively large stocks which have been accumulated by certain neutral countries adjacent to Germany."

Cross told the house of commons, however, "I have no evidence that any appreciable amount of oil has found its way into Germany."

"The governments of the countries concerned have prohibited entirely the export of such oils to belligerents," he added.

Cross acknowledged that Britain was unable to prevent shipments of oil thru the Black Sea to Germany. He said that under a pact belligerent warships are unable to pass thru the Straits of Bosporus to the Black Sea to establish contraband control.

Routes for Russian Oil for Italy

(Story in adjoining column.)

Heavy line shows how Italy might get its oil by overland routes from Russia by extension of the Berlin-Rome-Moscow axis, which would free the vital war commodity from control by the empires, such as is exercised over the pipeline and water route (broken line) now used for transport from Russian oil fields.

NAZIS, POLES BATTLE SPRING'S MENACE OF DISEASE IN POLAND

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 19 (AP).—Both Germans and Poles are racing against time to prevent an outbreak of desease when spring thaws war-torn parts of Poland, two American Red Cross officials back from a tour of the occupied country said today. The officials are James T. Nicholson and Wayne Chatfield Taylor. Despite German army sanitary measures, they said, many dead still were believed to be in the ruins and warm weather may bring typhoid. Warsaw's population has been swollen to 1,800,000, half a million above normal, they said, adding that 20 per cent of the dwellings were destroyed.

Nicholson and Taylor went to Poland to inspect the distribution of Red Cross supplies.

Turks Extend Work Hours in Preparedness Drive

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—A Reuters, British news agency, dispatch from Ankara reported today that Turkey was extending its daily working hours from 9 to 12 to speed preparedness for any eventuality. The new law was said to apply to women and children and to lift the ban on children working at night.

Britain to Bare 10 Billion Dollar Budget on April 23

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—Great Britain's 1940-'41 budget will be announced April 23, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons today. Observers estimated it would total $10,000,000,000, compared with the previous budget of $9,200,000,000.

FRENCH ON GUARD IN INDO-CHINA AS NAZIS SEEK GOODS

HANOI, French Indo-China, March 19.—French authorities in Indo-China are guarding against attempts of neutral agents of Germany to purchase products in Indo-China, ostensibly in behalf of Manila firms. The French have learned these supplies are destined for trans-shipment from Manila to Vladivostok and thence to Berlin. The agents are trying to buy rice, sugar, rubber, and copra.

French officials say conditions in Indo-China are peaceful and unusually prosperous due to rising prices for several years and the absence of excessive rains and floods.

There are about 25,000 Frenchmen in Indo-China against a native population of about 30,000,000 who are producing many essentials of France's wartime needs. There is much anti-Japanese feeling and in some cases ricksha pullers refuse to haul persons desirous of calling at the Japanese consulate.

Italy and Rumania to Sign Commercial Treaty Today

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 19.—An Italo-Rumanian commercial treaty will be signed tomorrow. During the course of the negotiations, members of the Italian delegation had interviews with British circles. Rumano-German negotiations will be opened when the Rumanian minister of foreign trade returns from Belgrade. Dr. Karl Clodius, head of the German mission, already is here.

Propaganda War Booms Use of Radios in France

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 19.—Europe's propaganda war has brought an increase in the use of radio sets in France. The number of receiving sets increased by 10,141 last January, bringing the total number of sets registered to 5,229,804. Radio owners are required by law to have licenses unless they are soldiers or persons removed from their homes in danger areas.

FRANCE'S CHEFS TRIUMPH OVER MEAT RATIONING

There Are Still 50 Ways to Cook a Chicken.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 19.—The cookery skill of Paris chefs has triumphed over the wartime ban on the use of meat and other restrictions, it was indicated today by a survey of some of the capital's famous restaurants.

The main reasons for this appear to be the country's abundance of fowl, small game, rabbit, and seafood, and the fact that culinary traditions extend to a long list of recipes for tasty dishes concocted from these.

The average maitre d'hotel appears less perplexed by the choices of entrees to supplant beef, veal, etc., than by the lack of manpower. In addition to waiters, some of the best cooks have been mobilized.

Dishes Grow More Substantial.

An outstanding result of wartime restrictions, as far as the leading restaurants are concerned, seems to have been a shift from a multitude of fancy dishes to substantial ones. But there still is no lack of variety.

The Café de Paris, which has been a delight in French gastronomy since Restoration days, met the kitchen crisis caused by the ban on butchers' meat by presenting its famous poached chicken, which was first served during the debut in the restaurant of the dancing Castles prior to the world war.

50 Ways to Cook a Chicken.

The Ritz chef has 50 different ways of preparing chicken, 100 of preparing eggs, and innumerable other recipes for fowl, game, and tripe.

On the most recent meatless day, the guests at La Rue's, famous establishment near the Madeleine church, had their choice of three kinds of fowl, all cooked in ways that accentuated their flavors.

BRITISH LINERS READY TO BEGIN HAULING TROOPS

New York, March 19 (AP).—New activity was apparent tonight aboard the British liners Queen Mary and Mauretania in preparation to leave the safety of New York as troopships for the empire.

While crew reënforcements from England enjoyed shore leave, the ships were provisioned. The Queen was getting a dark coat of admiralty gray over the lighter drab slapped on here at the outset of the European war.

The perishable nature of the provisions loaded and the smoking stacks suggested imminent departure and the white uniforms taken on for the officers indicated the Queen would take a southerly course for Australia, being too big to go thru the Panama canal. The Mauretania just can get thru the locks and can save 9,000 miles of travel. Crew members guessed that the 25 million dollar Queen and the Mauretania would go first to Halifax for arming.

HAROLD TEEN—THE RESOURCEFUL ONE

'WE WILL FIGHT!' HITLER WARNED BY CHAMBERLAIN

Britain's Premier Defies Italy and Germany.

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—In a harsh, metallic voice and beating his hand on the table in the deep well of the old house of commons, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today used four words, "We intend to fight," to stifle peace talk and dwarf counterattack by the opposition.

To Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini he said in effect: "Whatever you have decided, we are ready to meet it."

In an hour long statement the 71 year old leader of Great Britain at war pledged the empire to win "such a peace"—a "moral peace"—as was outlined by President Roosevelt last Saturday.

Voice Rises Bitterly.

His voice rose bitterly as he spoke of the Brennero meeting of "these gentlemen" [Hitler and Mussolini] yesterday, and he cried: "We are not likely to be diverted from the purpose for which we entered this war."

"For all I know," he said, "these gentlemen may have spent their time discussing the conditions under which an Italian ship was destroyed yesterday by a German mine."

Apparently he was referring to the 4,853 ton Italian collier Tyna Primo, which broke in two following an explosion off the southeast coast of England.

The somewhat cautious attacks of Clement R. Attlee, Labor leader; Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, and Leslie Hore-Belisha, ousted war secretary, all of whom urged the government to seize the initiative in the war, paled beside the strong, almost fiery, tone of Chamberlain's statement.

Promises Britain Will Strike.

Chamberlain stiffly refused to be "hustled into adventures." He promised critics of the government's "slow but sure policy" that Britain would strike when the opportunity presented itself, but not when there was "little chance of success; much of danger and perhaps disaster."

Chamberlain gave a point by point account of Britain's aid to Finland. He disclosed England and France were preparing to send 100,000 men to help both the Finns and their Scandinavian neighbors and they would have been at the front by the end of April. He called the Russian-Finnish peace "this tragedy" and placed responsibility for it "squarely upon the shoulders of Germany."

Its terms, he said, brought grave danger to the very doorstep of Sweden and Norway.

Germany, he charged, "terrified the Scandinavian nations" by threats of invasion if they allowed passage of British and French troops.

Slowly and carefully the prime minister said there was no ground for criticism of the western powers for failing to help Finland, least of all by "individuals in countries far away from the seat of war."

"Tell America!" Laborites Cry.

"Tell America that!" came a shout from the Labor side of the house.

Referring to British and French efforts to aid Finland, Chamberlain said: "Perhaps our power to help Finland is not yet at an end."

There were prolonged cheers at this, and the prime minister continued: "If further aid is required, I know this country will gladly take its share in contributing to the regeneration of Finland."

Of Sumner Welles, Mr. Roosevelt's fact finder, Chamberlain said he felt certain that he had received from all parties here a full account of the nation's unity.

Speaking after Chamberlain had finished, Attlee praised Welles.

"I think he realizes the determination of the people of this country," he said.

Attlee urged Chamberlain, who probably will form a new war cabinet during the Easter recess, to be "ruthless with inefficiency" within his government.

"The initiative must not be left with Hitler," he said. "We cannot have a policy of wait and see. I want to see a war cabinet that lays down war principles; that makes decisions."

Sinclair, the Liberal leader, also asked the government to "seize the initiative."

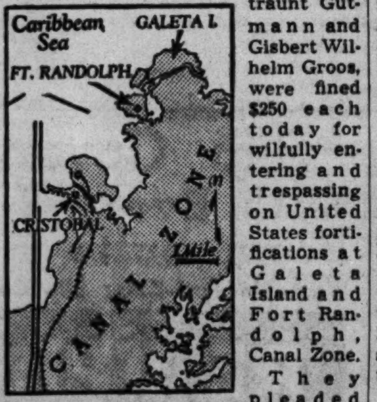
Hore-Belisha assailed the government for not sending an air force to Finland when "powerful onlsaughts from the air would have broken the Russian onslaught."

The British war aims were defined in the house of lords tonight by Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax in this manner:

"It is no part of our purpose to destroy Germany, to seek a vindictive peace, or anything of the kind, but it is our purpose to see that liberty, as far as we can achieve it, is restored to the people who have been deprived of it; to convince Germany she is not entitled to exercise sovereignty above moral law."

FINE 2 GERMANS $500 FOR PHOTOGRAPHING CANAL ZONE DEFENSES

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, March 19 (AP).—Two Germans, Ingeborg Waltraunt Gutmann and Gisbert Wilhelm Groos, were fined $250 each today for wilfully entering and trespassing on United States fortifications at Galeta Island and Fort Randolph, Canal Zone.



Arrows locate Galeta Island and Fort Randolph.

They pleaded guilty in the Canal Zone District court after Judge Bunk Gardner dismissed charges of espionage against Gutmann and Groos upon recommendation of the district attorney.

KENNEDY AND RED ENVOY IN A GAME OF TEETERTOTTER

LONDON, March 19.—Joseph P. Kennedy, the American ambassador, and Ivan Maisky, the soviet ambassador, sat side by side in the diplomatic gallery of the house of commons today while Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain delivered his statement on Great Britain's conduct of the war.

Kennedy listened with his head clasped in his right hand. Whenever Maisky leaned forward Kennedy leaned backward. When Maisky leaned forward, Kennedy leaned backward.

Kennedy's fingers beat an agitated tattoo on the top of his head when Chamberlain objected to criticism of England from "individuals and countries far away from the seat of the war and who never felt anxiety for themselves or their friends." Maisky smiled as members of the Labor opposition shouted: "Tell America that."

TONS OF BOMBS HURLED BY BRITISH AT GERMAN BASE

86 Explosions Heard at Isle of Sylt.

Little Damage, Nazis Report.

BERLIN, March 20, Wednesday (AP).—German authorities professed at dawn today to have no further details on British air raids on the Island of Sylt.

Last night shortly after 11 o'clock [6 p. m. Chicago time] the official German news agency, DNB, said one British plane was shot down and others driven off in three British attempts to raid the German fortified base. It said there was no damage except that one house was set afire. Officials said they had no information other than this.

[At the time of the DNB report the British raid had been in progress about three hours. It continued far into this morning.]

Witness Tells of Attack.

TONDER, Denmark, March 20 [Wednesday] (AP).—An eyewitness on the Danish Island of Romoe reported that one bomb undoubtedly hit an ammunition depot early today during a terrific air battle over the fortified German Island of Sylt.

By 11 p. m. last night residents on the Danish islands had counted 82 bomb explosions and four louder, earth jarring blasts which came from the center of Sylt itself. The latter were much more tremendous than an ordinary bomb explosion.

The British planes arrived in many relays of a few at a time, dropped their bombs, and flew away. There was an incessant roar of antiaircraft guns.

Sky Like "Sea of Fire."

A restaurant keeper told the Copenhagen newspaper Politken:

"I saw two foreign planes come diving down thru the clouds with crazy speed in the direction of Sylt. They dropped eight bombs. I saw great pillars of fire.

"Later I heard an explosion from a single bomb and a few seconds afterwards an explosion came which changed the sky over Sylt into a sea of fire. There was one explosion after another. A bomb undoubtedly hit an ammunition depot.

"All the antiaircraft guns of Sylt then opened up; tracer bullets streaked across the heavens in all directions in a dazzling array of colors. A wall of fire sprang up along the whole of the long island."

Danish Town Shaken by Blast.

One terrific explosion shook Tonder. The raids continued even after this blast and at 8:45 p. m. Romoe observers reported an attack on the south end of Sylt. Ten bombs were heard to explode in this direction.

Far into the night residents over a wide area across from the German island heard the blasts and cannonading.

The Island of Romoe is less than five miles from the north end of Sylt. Hornum, raided base at the south end of Sylt, is 25 miles away, and about 25 miles southwest of Tonder.

FRENCH VESSEL SUNK BY MINE; 2 DIE; 20 SAVED

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—Mining of the 3,137 ton French ship Capitaine Augustin off the southeast coast of Britain on Sunday was disclosed today. Two of the crew were killed and a score of surviv s were rescued.

A Shetland Islands coastal lifeboat today abandoned search for an unidentified Italian steamer that was reported to have sent a radio call for asistance last ight.

The admiralty announced that nine British and neutral ships were lost by enemy action in the week ended at midnight Sunday.

The week's losses ere described as three British ships totaling 5,449 tons; two French, 3,172 tons, and four neutrals, 15,321 tons. It was disclosed for the first time that the losses included the Netherlands' Sint Annaland, 2,24[illegible] tons, and the Jugo-Slavian Slava, 4,512 tons.

GERMANS FALL INTO AMBUSH ON WEST FRONT

PARIS, March 19 (AP).—A German patrol party stumbled into a French ambush in a wood west of the Saar river on the western front today, the French announced tonight.

Tonight's British-French communique said:

"A calm day on the whole. West of the Saar a German reconnaissance party fell into one of our ambushes and suffered fairly heavy losses."

[The German high command reported patrol and artillery activity between the Moselle river and the Palatinate forest and said two enemy shock troop action had been repelled.]

TALK OF BARING SECRETS IS BUNK, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Speaks on Eve of Inquiry on Warplane Sales.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 19.—On the eve of a congressional investigation into the administration's policy of exporting military airplanes, President Roosevelt today said charges that military secrets are being disclosed are bunk.

Stressing emphatically that he was speaking as commander in chief of the army and navy, Mr. Roosevelt took cognizance of charges that plane orders from the British and French are interfering with the rearmament program and may have involved the release of vital military secrets to foreign powers.

He declared that foreign markets for planes have benefited the army and navy by expanding production capacity. No military secrets are being disclosed, he averred.

Tomorrow morning the house military affairs committee will hold a hearing on these matters. A discordant note in preliminaries of the investigation was sounded tonight when Representative Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the committee, decided to take over the hearing which had been called by Representative Dow W. Harter [D., O.], chairman of the subcommittee on aviation.

Sale of P-40 Stirs Probe.

Harter had invited Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring and Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army, to testify, and they will appear tomorrow. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, also is scheduled to testify. A similar investigation by the senate has been asked by Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr. [P., Wis.] and the senate military affairs committee now has his resolution under consideration.

The congressional inquiries were spurred by disclosure that one of the army's newer pursuit ships, the Curtiss P-40, capable of 400 miles per hour, had been released for export.

President Back at Desk.

The President, thru Stephen Early, his secretary, announced that official information showed little basis for reports that Germany had advanced an 11 point peace program.

Early added that reports which the President had received and analyzed failed to indicate ground either for hoping or despairing that peace will be achieved. Peace headlines would be very empty, he said.

Breaking the rest advised by his physician as a means of curing a severe cold, the president resumed business appointments today at his desk in the executive offices.

Find $1,000,000 Cargo of Opium on German Ship

GIBRALTAR, March 19 (AP).—A million dollar opium cargo was part of the prize when the German freighter Uhenfels was captured off the African coast last November, it was announced today as the ship arrived here for examination in dry dock. Seizure of the 7,063 ton ship, which a British prize crew first took to Freetown, Sierra Leone, on the West African coast, was announced in London Nov. 8.

MOSCOW WARNS SCANDINAVIA TO AVOID ALLIANCE

Reds Call It Contradictory to Finnish Treaty.

MOSCOW, March 20, Wednesday (AP).—The official Tass news agency today announced it was authorized to state Russia would regard any defense alliance between Sweden, Norway, and Finland as "aimed at the U. S. S. R." and as directly contradictory to the Russo-Finnish peace treaty.

"The foreign press alleges that negotiations are going on among Finland, Sweden, and Norway on conclusion of a so-called 'defensive alliance' for the purpose of military protection of the frontiers of Finland," Tass said.

"It is also alleged that the soviet union does not object to such a 'defensive alliance' among Finland, Sweden, and Norway. Tass is authorized to state that these reports on the attitude of the soviet union do not correspond to the facts."

Treaty's Bar to Alliance.

The agency added the public statements made in the Norwegian parliament made it clear that such an alliance "would be aimed against the U. S. S. R. and would directly contradict the peace treaty" between Finland and Russia.

Article 3 of the March 12 treaty binds each party not to conclude any alliance or join any coalition against the other.

[The governments of Norway and Sweden have announced they were considering an alliance with Finland since the latter was forced to accept peace at Russian hands. Whether Moscow would hold Article 3 barred the proposed alliance has been much discussed in Oslo and Stockholm.]

The peace treaty was ratified Tuesday by the presidium of the supreme soviet.

Predict Cabinet Revision.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, March 19 (AP).—The newspaper Berlingsketidende published today a report from Helsingfors that the Finnish government would resign immediately upon formal exchange of ratifications of the peace treaty with soviet Russia.

Food Rationing Begins.

LONDON, March 19 (AP).—A Reuters [British] news agency dispatch from Helsingfors said that Finland's first meat rationing—of pork and pork products—was begun today.

MILLION CHINESE BATTLE ON BEHIND JAPANESE LINES

Menace Invaders' Grip on North China.

PEKING, North China, March 19 (AP).—There are still more than a million regular Chinese troops in North China, a survey prepared by Japanese army headquarters here admitted today.

After two and one-half years of fighting, this survey throws much light on the Japanese army's own press reports during that period. Since the war began on July 7, 1937, few engagements have been fought where the Japanese did not report the Chinese forces to have been "routed," "given a stunning blow," or most frequently, "wiped out" or "annihilated."

Now, after two and a half years of this journalistic annihilation, the army calmy reports that there is still a cool million of these regulars who escaped. It further states they are all commanded by Gen. Cheng Chien, whom the army reported killed during a bombing of Sian in 1938.

Behind Japanese Lines.

The army does not point it out, naturally, but a glance at the map of North China shows that the vast majority of these Chinese troops are operating behind and between the Japanese lines.

They are made up, according to the survey, of [1] Chiang Kai-shek's central government troops, [2] former provincial troops, and [3] Chinese communist forces.

The former provincial troops are in the majority, and are relatively poorly equipped and often far from their homes. Independent reports bear out the Japanese contention that they are the poorest fighters.

Yet these same independent sources indicate what the Japanese do not mention, that some of them put up a good fight against the superior equipment of the Japanese army. For instance, Gen. Yu Hsueh-chung's former Manchurian army [it has been wandering about China for the past eight years] has given the Japanese army no rest in Shantung for the last two years.

In Shansi and Honan.

Chiang's central government troops are stationed partly in Shansi and Honan provinces. Altho well equipped, they make little better showing than the provincial armies. The vast bulk of Chian's army is in central and south China.

In North China, however, most of the real fighting—and the best, according to this Japanese survey—has been done by the Chinese communist forces. This survey does not mention their numbers, but in the past the Japanese army has repeatedly credited them with around 200,000 men, probably far below their real regular strength.

This survey appeared in a local Japanese-sponsored daily newspaper, and attracted considerable attention in all circles, as it differed so widely with previous Japanese reports about actual conditions among Chinese troops in North China.

PRICE FOR LIFTING JAPS' BLOCKADE OF TIENTSIN SET

TIENTSIN, China, March 19 (AP).—The Japanese army's blockade of the British and French concessions at Tientsin will continue until they cease to be foreign controled, a Japanese military spokesman said today. "The barriers will not be removed until Japan, Italy, and other powers return the concessions to China," he said. The Japanese and Italian concessions are not blockaded. The British and French areas have been cordoned since June 14. There has been Japanese agitation for return of foreign areas to China, meaning Japanese dominated Chinese régimes.

[ADVERTISMENT]

IF YOU FIND YOURSELF LOSING SALES BY QUITTING TOO SOON

—too much acid in your bladder may be a contributing cause. Right now, because of kidney sluggishness, the contents of your bladder may be so highly acid that they are constantly irritating those sensitive bladder linings. Such excess acidity can cause those "overwhelming" urges which make you get up at night and feel all-in the next day. It can also cause those burning sensations, itching, painful passages, back pains, pains in the lower abdomen and headaches. Under such physical handicaps and drains, you cannot be expected to have your full "fighting for business" powers.

Too much acid in your bladder can be due to the failure of your kidneys to sufficiently dilute the acids and the by-products of metabolism which are expelled thru your bladder. These by-products may reach your bladder in such a highly concentrated acid condition that they are literally torturing your bladder linings and causing those discomforts. For such a condition—

Take FOLEY PILLS—the three-way pills which stimulate sluggish kidneys, dilute and neutralize the over-acid contents of the bladder, and actually transform those over-acid contents into a bland fluid which soothes the bladder linings whose irritation may be causing those "overwhelming urges," backaches, getting up nights, etc.

For the sake of hitting the ball hard again, start taking FOLEY PILLS—the pills that stimulate, dilute, neutralize, and soothe. Quick results . . . quick comfort . . . quick satisfaction . . . or your money refunded. At your druggist.

23 MOSLEMS, 2 POLICEMEN SLAIN IN INDIAN CLASH

Officers Fire on Marchers Armed with Spades.

BOMBAY, India, March 19 (AP).—Twenty-three parading Khaksars [Moslem adherents] and 2 policemen were killed and 39 persons injured in a clash at Lahore today. Among the injured were the senior and deputy superintendents of the Lahore police.

The clash took place when police tried to stop a body of Khaksars who were marching in defiance of a government law. The police opened fire on the paraders after they said the latter attacked them with spades.

The Khaksars, who swear allegiance to the Cambridge-educated leader, Inayatullah Khan, are a military and religious organization armed with spades and sworn to promote the Moslem religion.

Cloudburst Halts Session.

RAMGARH, India, March 19 (AP).—A cloudburst halted the opening session today of the All-India Nationalist congress in this "Magic City in the Forest."

It poured a foot of water into a gigantic amphitheater in which 50,000 delegates had been listening to the address of Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the congress. The rest of the day's program was postponed.

The possibility of civil war in India in event of a compromise between the Gandhi-controlled All-India Nationalist Congress party and "imperial Britain" was advanced by Subhas Chandra Bose, former Congress president, who has called a rump session of left wing dissenters.

Bose Assails Gandhi.

In a field adjacent to the site of the plenary session of the regular congress, Bose addressed followers as president of "the anti-compromise congress," and denounced Mohandas K. Gandhi and "the right wing high command" as sidetracking the Indian independence issue.

Gandhi adherents yesterday defeated motions calling for stronger demands for early independence. Gandhi has taken the stand that altho independence is his goal he will not be rushed by extremists. The people of India, he insists, must show that they are disciplined enough to refrain from violence before he will start a civil disobedience campaign to back the demand for freedom.

"The problem of the hour," Bose said today, "is: Will India remain under the thumb of the right wing, or swing to the left once and for all?"

WELLES INSISTS HE DID NOT GET PLAN FOR PEACE

Offered No Scheme to End War, Envoy Says.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 19.—Sumner Welles, American undersecretary of state, tonight renounced any connection with a possible peace offensive against England and France which might arise from yesterday's meeting between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini on the Italian side of Brenner Pass.

In the first formal statement of his four weeks tour of Europe, President Roosevelt's emissary, who was instructed to find a "basis for a sound and lasting peace," said:

"In order to allay the flood of rumors about my mission, I wish to state categorically that I have not received any peace plan or proposals from any belligerent or from any other government; that I have not conveyed any such proposals to any belligerent nor to any other government; nor am I bringing back to the President any such proposals. My mission has been solely one of gathering information for the President and the secretary of state [Cordell Hull] as to present conditions in Europe."

Welles Sails Today.

Welles issued the statement shortly before leaving Rome by train for Genoa. He will sail for America aboard the Italian liner Conte di Savoia tomorrow noon.

The undersecretary of state closed his information gathering at a luncheon with Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Mussolini and Italy's foreign minister. It was reported that Ciano told Welles what took place between Il Duce and Der Fuehrer.

Welles, at a press conference, refused to reveal the nature of the conference with Ciano.

Finds Alliance Still Binding.

ROME, March 19 (AP). — Informed Fascists today indicated Adolf Hitler went to Brenner Pass yesterday to check up on his alliance with Benito Mussolini and found it still binding.

These quarters squashed talk of a German peace offensive, but refrained from any tangible disclosure of what important decisions regarding a new balance of power might have been settled between the axis members at Brennero.

Speculation on the meeting, which at first centered on the possible neutralization of the Balkans and a Russian-Italian rapprochement, has simmered down.

Some diplomats said they believed the discussion was concerned with a general survey of war plans and the eventual possibility of peace; Italy's relations with Britain and France, particularly Britain, and Italy's problems with Germany, largely economic.

Scorns Talk of Peace Drive.

The closest to authoritative Italian declarations on the Hitler-Mussolini meeting were made by Virginio Gayda, whose Giornale d'Italia frequently speaks for Mussolini, and Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of Il Telegrafo, Ciano's newspaper at Leghorn.

Gayda scorned suggestions that Hitler and Mussolini had agreed on a peace offensive, making use of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles' fact finding tour. He said it was "absurd as well as grotesque to insist upon attributing to Il Duce the permanent rôle of peace messenger."

In Il Telegrafo Ansaldo denied that the Brennero meeting meant a change of Italian attitude or that it was "linked with any international mission or any peace plans elaborated by the ministries of the 'two Romes'—Fascist Italy and the Vatican."

PEACE OFFENSIVE TALKS DISOWNED BY BELLIGERENTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20, Wednesday.—Whatever hopes or fears England may have had of a peace offensive, they seem to be dissipated this morning.

There has been considerable talk regarding peace terms, but the responsibility for this has been disavowed by all the belligerents and has been attributed to "enemy propaganda."

The Daily Mail this morning carries this headline: "Peace Offensive Dead," and bases it on reports from correspondents in Rome, Amsterdam, and Washington, D. C.

THE HATCH BILL AND JOHN LEWIS.

When it was apparent that the Hatch bill would pass in the senate, a majority of the Democrats decided that they might as well acquire merit by voting yes. Mr. Hatch himself is a Democrat and in advancing his bill he had some Democratic support, but the voice of the New Deal was the voice of Senator Minton of Indiana, who warned his fellow followers of the more abundant life that when the bill was passed they were headed down the road into the valley of oblivion with muffled drums.

Mr. Minton, who said that he was by nature a rubber stamp and the political product of the Indiana 2 per cent system, conceded that if the New Deal couldn't control elections by using federal funds and state jobholders it would be defeated. In the house of representatives, to which the bill now goes, Speaker Bankhead predicts that it will not pass. That may be only his hope.

The opponents of the bill in the house managed to attach an amendment aimed at the Republicans. By it they limited individual campaign contributions to $5,000. They supposed this would give the Republican money raisers a headache and make them scurry around wildly, if not aimlessly, trying to raise money in small amounts. The Republicans get no political advantage from federal public expenditures and must pay their expenses out of voluntary contributions from the party members. The amendment limiting the amount of these voluntary contributions has the effect of calling attention to something which might be made interesting for the New Dealers.

There is as yet no provision which takes into account such large contributions as that of John Lewis to the 1936 fund. In all, Mr. Lewis' donation, shaken down from his miners, amounting to nearly $600,000, was frankly a prepayment for things Mr. Roosevelt was expected to deliver to the C. I. O. later. It is the opinion of most observers and commentators that Mr. Roosevelt and his New Dealers paid in full. Mr. Lewis has pretended not to think so. He is now, according to reliable report, raising a still larger sum, which is being dangled in front of the New Deal with a demand for a better contract. Mr. Lewis wants a better bond than he got before.

While the house is considering the Hatch bill as it came from the senate, it surely will want to strengthen the measure by prohibiting such contributions as Mr. Lewis has made and will make if guaranteed a good quid pro quo. The Hatch law and the corrupt practices act are incomplete without a provision prohibiting such use of money in elections.

CONFAB AT THE BRENNER PASS.

What Herr Hitler said to Mussolini and what Mussolini said to Herr Hitler will transpire in time, and possibly in short time. They met near the Brenner pass, the possession of which Hitler has ostensibly guaranteed to his Italian friend.

It might be that Hitler didn't have anything to say to Mussolini and that Mussolini didn't have anything to say to Hitler that couldn't have been relayed thru ordinary diplomatic channels. It may be that the two masters of dramatic art decided that what the situation needed at that precise moment was an entrance upon the stage, a scene without words, and an exit. It would give the world something to think about and might make the nerves a little more taut while the capitals of the world speculated upon the meaning of this sudden meeting.

If there were no other reason for it, the sole one of sensation would be sufficient for these masters of stagecraft. Speculation may not be content with the thought that they merely produced another show to cause more worry and keep Daladier and Chamberlain from a good night's rest.

Some people have begun to wonder why Herr Hitler does not now proceed to make what he would pretend to offer as a permanent peace resettlement in the parts of Europe which are under his control or which might be brought under his influence. He isn't making much war and hasn't much to gain by doing so.

In coöperation with Mussolini and with Stalin he could pretend to make a great deal of peace, and seemingly would gain prestige at the expense of his enemies. He might set up the Polish state which it is supposed eventually he will create. He might create an independent Polish nation within the area he intends it to have and start it going on its own.

He might take his foot off Bohemia, Moravia, and Slovakia and tell the people they were free and to rejoice. He might even create the federation or league which planners again frame for the peace which never comes to remain. Then he could turn the loud speakers on the Maginot line and invite his enemies to join up and cease disturbing the established serenity of Europe.

HIGH COST DIVERSION.

Robert Kingery, chairman of the Illinois planning commission, announces that the commission has approved plans of army engineers to dig a canal ten miles long around the Chain of Rocks, north of St. Louis in the Mississippi river. The estimated cost is over ten million dollars and the project is said to be necessary because the water diversion from Lake Michigan thru the Illinois river was reduced on Jan. 1, 1939, to 1,500 cubic feet per second, in accordance with an order of the United States Supreme court.

Little or no trouble was experienced in navigating this stretch of the river prior to the reduction in the amount of diversion, but since it was made effective the Mississippi river at this point sometimes sinks as low as four and one-half feet, so that barges have great difficulty in navigating it.

As a result of the reduction in the flow large expenditures have been made out of taxpayers' money. On account of the reduction in the diversion a lock and dam have been built at the mouth of the Chicago river, two locks and dams have been built below Peoria, two more locks have been recommended in the Calumet-Sag region, and now comes this proposal for a ten million dollar canal around the Chain of Rocks.

When the Illinois river project was originally approved by the state of Illinois at a cost of twenty million dollars it was upon the understanding with the federal government that it would permit an annual average diversion of 10,000 cubic feet per second and, upon this plan, the five locks and dams between Lockport and Starved Rock were designed and constructed. Delays and high construction costs made it necessary for the state to transfer its title to the waterway to the federal government, which assumed the obligation of completing the nine foot channel at an estimated additional cost of seven million dollars.

The total cost of the nine foot channel from Chicago to the Mississippi thus should have been twenty-seven million dollars. Its actual cost to date has been thirty-six million and additional costs in the Calumet-Sag region and the canal around the Chain of Rocks will bring the grand total to the astonishing figure of fifty-one million dollars. It therefore will cost the taxpayers of the United States at least $24,000,000 to reduce the flow from Lake Michigan.

All of this extra expenditure is entirely unnecessary if congress, which has the authority, will pass legislation increasing the diversion for navigation purposes to a maximum annual average of 5,000 cubic feet per second. It should be definitely recognized that the administration is blocking such legislation by its desire to negotiate the St. Lawrence seaway treaty with Canada with the matter of diversion from our own Lake Michigan as an asset in trading with Canadian power interests.

SUPERHIGHWAY STUDIES.

The joint committee on superhighways of the city council has recommended an appropriation of $65,000 from the gas tax fund to conduct further studies of superhighways in Chicago. Both the engineering and financial aspects of the problem are to be examined.

The sum may be too large or too small; on that point no opinion is ventured here. But certainly it is desirable that the council do all within reason to hasten the modernization of the city's highway system with a view to preventing needless loss of life in traffic accidents and to promoting ease of travel about the city. The superhighway offers the only means of achieving both these ends. As much as possible of the automobile traffic must be removed from the street level to eliminate delays and all possibility of accidents involving pedestrians and cross traffic.

For a time it appeared that a start might be made this year on the first of the elevated highways which the city requires. The outlook now is less hopeful for the immediate future. Special interests proceeded to load a simple and realizeable plan with all sorts of costly and self-serving additions. Instead of a superhighway plan the city was presented with a composite of the hopes of dreams of ambitious real estaters.

Fortunately, the Supreme court of the state threw the whole plan out of the window by declaring the method of financing it invalid. We are back where we started but with the advantage of a considerable accumulation of data and engineering studies available for further use. What is needed now is a new plan for financing construction and an impartial engineering program based solely upon the needs of the city for safe and speedy highways.

Perhaps it will be found feasible to start the superhighway program without borrowing money. It may be possible to use the city's share of the gas tax collections, plus state, county and federal appropriations as they become available, for a gradual extension of the system. This possibility should be explored because borrowing should be avoided if it can be, and even a small beginning will save lives.

Editorial of the Day

A VICTORY WON IN PARIS.

[Baltimore Sun.]

The war in the west so far has been one without victories. But one was gained in Paris on Sunday, and if it was a triumph for the French it was even more a triumph for good sense and the spirit of reason. Like the battle of the Marne, the beginning was not auspicious. The Colonne Symphony orchestra had scheduled three works by Wagner on its Sunday program. Then, without explanation, two were dropped and compositions by Debussey and Ravel substituted. When the performance began a large section of the audience protested, shouting, "Why did you change the program?" But another group of listeners took up the challenge and put on a counterdemonstration against the Wagnerites.

Thus the scene was set for a repetition of the riot that the first production of "Tannhäuser" had caused in the Paris opera in 1859, not to speak of renewal of the base "cultural wars" that were waged against literatures, languages, and arts in 1914-'18. But the conductor of the orchestra came forward, begging his audience to "remember that music knows no national frontiers." Whereupon the "Tannhäuser" overture was played as the final number, there was a "gale of applause," and M. Paray, the conductor, "had to return again and again to the stage to acknowledge the thunderous cheers."

It was not a complete, a "decisive" triumph, let it be noted. Two selections from Wagner were canceled and they remained canceled. Moreover, there was a part of the audience that showed itself to be less than tolerant of great music of German origin. But in the end victory lay with those who knew that great art rises superior to all of war's passions. It is an incident whose conclusion is one of the very few things in the last six months that can be remembered with pleasure and with hope.

ODE TO THE STOCKYARDS.

O, abattoirs (stockyards to you)! O, blighted realm of Chi,
South of the border—no, the street called Pershing!
Where are the range robbed steer, the piggie snatched from sty,
Reduced to state so pitiful, tho nour'shing!

Grinding machines, the wailing of the doomed,
Rend heaven's blue vault with sounds cacophonous.
Rank smell the bones and such-like ill-perfumed
By-products of the stuff it takes to fatten us.

The shriek of kine and swine, the lambkin's bleat,
Would make the willow lachrymose indeed.
The odors which befoul the ozone sweet
Would wilt the rose, yea, shrivel up the weed.

What tho unpleasant be the sounds and smells
Attendant on the industry of packers;
More eloquent than love of Beauty tells
This fact—each week they pay me umpty smackers.

So You Want to Go to Pau?

When you get to Pau [March 14], please go into the Hotel Continental and look in a mirror there for a reflection I left of a slim young sous-lieutenant d' artillerie who had just finished up his war in the hospital. A guy just glad to be alive and with beaucoup francs. And is there a saucy, pert little froggie that will bring in the petit déjeuner? Then give her "howdy" for me 'cause maybe her maman was the honey that looked like an angel to me after months in the mud. Enjoy your trip, mister! Old Sojer.

Fun in a Dutch Kitchen.

The jolly Netherlanders eat in the kitchen, but consider eating next to godliness and cleanliness. The good wife slices bread to order, and it is buttered and eaten in one piece. The hungry stranger is asked if he wishes a "one hand" or a "two hand" piece, and is supposed to indicate the latter, with visions of a piece too heavy for one hand. Amid much merriment, he is favored with a paper thin portion requiring two hands to keep from falling apart. Quizzicuss.

Dim shapes of your imagining attend,
Wraiths of the Middle Border form your guide
Down this main traveled road; and at its end
Stands Uncle Henry with his arms outspread
To welcome you, and you are home at last
With sturdy comrades who have gone ahead,
To live again as in the happy past,
In some beloved log cabin with a view
Of purple prairies beckoning to you.

A Wind from Finland.

There is a strange wind blowing about my tingling ears this night. Beneath a heavy sky the wind streams from the north and east. What anguish does it know, that makes of it a bitter dirge? Can it be the pain of futile death, the gaping wound that comes from loss of home and land? Is it fraught with the brave despair of people soon to die, who hurl one last defiance into its bleak depths? This is no ordinary wind, that sings of birth and life and death in their lovely cycle. This wind has seen the cycle roughly broken, and the shattered bits thrown uselessly upon the air. Helene.

TIRED EYES AND HEAD PAIN.

No one should endure pain unnecessarily—that is, if it can be avoided. The admonition "grin and bear it" is rarely justified. But nature's signals must not be ignored and—more often than not—the physician can find the cause if he is given the chance.

Among our numerous complaints is headache. The old expression "my brains hurt" is founded upon a misconception because the brain itself is not sensitive. Furthermore, the membranes which cover this mass of nervous tissue are but poorly supplied with "wires" capable of carrying the message that trouble is present. We must turn our attention to other regions for the "springs" of distress.

Of course, there are many exceptions—but it may be said fairly that most of the head pain that originates with the eyes arises because of some muscular imbalance. Now, the fact is that we do not know exactly what eyestrain is, but there can be no doubt that excessive use is responsible in a substantial number of cases. If one changes the gaze from near to distant objects and back again and does this frequently—the muscles of accommodation may become overly tired. The ciliary muscle in particular may rebel and the ensuing soreness may be localized anywhere along the vault of the cranium—from the forehead to the back. After a person has been doing close work for quite some time, discomfort may come on and continue for several hours. We can understand readily that viewing moving objects will accomplish the same result as will riding in a motor car, or watching moving pictures. Whether we recognize the type of exhaustion that comes to the eyes or not—rest from reading, etc., will afford relief.

But we do not all react alike. Some are far more susceptible than others. Just as we differ in our psychological responses, so a few will be bothered greatly with ocular weariness. In other words, the capacity to sense pain and to have it prove upsetting varies widely.

Next in importance come those movements of the eyeballs which occur constantly during our waking hours. Naturally—as the muscle pulleys turn the balls this way or that—they will require more circulation and, occasionally, one who has read late into the night will exhibit marked congestion of the vessels of the conjunctiva [the delicate membrane that lines the eyelids and covers the eyeballs in front]. In such a situation, headache is likely to follow.

The annoyance may come on about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon or even be noted when the individual wakens in the morning. Sometimes the correction of astigmatism may prove helpful. Abstinence from reading fine print may be the only remedy needed, as the whole episode is largely a fatigue phenomenon.

In most instances we may distinguish readily between eyestrain and sinus disease—each of which may be responsible for symptoms. In the latter there is usually a puslike discharge from the nostrils which may be observed periodically; and the aching generally progresses as the day advances until—by 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon—it is described as "splitting." If the difficulty manifests itself between the eyes we should think of ethmoid involvement.

There are two things to do: Inspect the rooms within the skull by means of X-ray films and provide adequate drainage should they be found to harbor pus—using the simplest means possible. If no bacteria are discovered in these regions, the eyes may be rested to see what happens, or corrective glasses may be worn.

With these procedures we may find that neither the sinuses nor the organs of vision are at fault. We must then consider the possibility that some toxin absorbed from the intestinal tract has seized upon the nerves of sensation of the scalp. We must not forget, however, that anemia is just as likely to occasion pain as is congestion. Thus it is that the state of the blood may need to be examined critically.

But how many of us abuse our seeing orbs—little realizing that they are subject to the same type of exhaustion that may come to any part. The very delicacy of their makeup should give us pause—when the demand comes to drive them incessantly.

CYST ON SPINE.

D. H. writes: A member of my family has a cyst at the base of the spine, which swells up and drains every few weeks. This has been present for five years. What is the cause?

REPLY.

This is probably a sebaceous or a pilonidal cyst. In the former the discharged material is cheesy and foul smelling. It is usually wise to remove an abnormality of this sort. In skilled hands the procedure is relatively simple.

BUTTERMILK.

N. B. writes: Is there any difference between cultured buttermilk and that which comes from the churn?

REPLY.

Yes. The former is usually made from whole milk and contains the normal quantity of butterfat [approximately 4 per cent]. The residue of the churning process contains little or no fat.

BROKEN NOSE.

R. S. R. writes: When I was 12 years old, five years ago, I broke my nose and never had it set. Is it too late now to have it straightened?

REPLY.

No. A highly skilled plastic surgeon can aid you.

LOWLY PERSON AMONG THE GREAT.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 12.—Down here in the Miami area there are thousands of cars registered from Illinois, almost all of whose license numbers are below 10,000, all but mine.

The traffic officers at the Venetian causeway told me most of the owners were statesmen, labor benefactors, orchestra leaders, or sports writers.

When one of them passes you on the left you can feel the look of superficial snobbery from both chauffeur and occupants, and is my face scarlet, and not from Old Sol! How plebeian a license plate with six digits. Just a common taxpayer. BERNARD F.

PEACE WITHOUT VICTORY.

Elkridge, Md., March 13.—Mr. Chamberlain said at the beginning of the war: "The Fuehrer gave his word that he would respect the Locarno treaty; he broke it. He gave his word that he neither wished nor intended to annex Austria; he broke it. He declared that he would not incorporate the Czechs into the reich; he did so. He gave his word after Munich that he had no further territorial demands in Europe; he broke it. He gave his word that he wanted no Polish provinces; he broke it. He has sworn to you for years that he was the mortal enemy of bolshevism; he is now its ally."

Yet it is announced that when the Gallup poll asked: "If Hitler offers to make peace this spring do you think England and France should meet with the Germans and try to end the war?" seventy-five per cent answered yes. A much smaller per cent, to be sure, were in favor of allowing Hitler to retain Czecho-Slovakia and Poland. But can it be that 75 per cent of our citizens believe that when a man has handed out a flood of bogus checks and prospered by fraud and cruelty his neighbors ought to enter into further contracts with him? We are telling his neighbors to walk into a trap. This result of the Gallup poll is a reflection upon our intelligence and morality.

SALES TAX REFORM.

Chicago, March 15.—We don't hear the business man grumbling about the sales tax. It's just we poor people who don't like it: you and you and me who go into a store and buy 15 cents' worth of something, and get a 1 cent tax put on. This means at least a 6 per cent tax on our food.

The tradesman has to turn in $3 on every $100 of sales he makes. This leaves him extra profits.

It should be unlawful to charge a tax on anything under 30 cents. You don't hear of any politician grumbling. He gets 2 cents out of every 3 that is sent in to spend as he thinks fit. It's time we put a stop to this sales tax or use it for what it was intended—this is: to feed the poor. Meanwhile thousands are waiting weeks, and even months, to get a response from the relief people, after they file their applications.

FUTURE REPUBLICAN.

MILK DELIVERIES.

Chicago, March 13.—I cannot understand how any one can stop the grocery boy from delivering the milk. It seems that the milk must be kept refrigerated until it belongs to the consumer of the milk. Well, if I order milk from the store and pay for it, it belongs to me even if it is still on the store counter. If I ask to have the order delivered because that courtesy is offered by the store and the milk is in the order—what of it? It is mine to do with as I wish, isn't it?

SPEED TRAPS IN INDIANA.

Gary, Ind., March 14.—Your recent editorial entitled, "Indiana Cracks Down on Speed Traps," impels me as president of the Justices of the Peace and Constables Association of Indiana to present some comment.

You wrote, in part, "One statute practically prevents constables from making arrests for traffic offenses by requiring that a constable obtain a warrant before making an arrest. The second is designed to put justices of the peace out of the traffic racket business by requiring the appointment, by judges of the Circuit courts, of salaried magistrates to hear traffic cases and other petty charges. Illinois could well copy these laws."

In a suit testing the constitutionality of this first law, before the St. Joseph Superior court in May, 1939, the court pointed out that the language of the statute prohibiting constables from making an arrest for violation of any law or laws concerning motor vehicles, included a number of more serious violations such as automobile banditry, larceny by use of an automobile, manslaughter, etc., all of which greatly exceed mere speeding or reckless driving. Also, that the constable is often the only protection against such crimes in our rural communities, and yet if he arrest such offenders he becomes liable to a $100 fine plus imprisonment of 45 days, for performing his sworn duty.

Under the second law, it is significant that the Circuit court judges are not appointing any magistrates and a number of them have publicly stated they do not intend doing so, as they believe the respective justices in their counties are doing a competent job, without the great expense to the taxpayers involved in setting up these magistrate courts. This law is discretionary, not mandatory.

Shall we let down the bars of safety and allow motorists to break our laws and kill our children for the sake of a few persons who are either too prejudiced against law enforcement or too narrow minded to realize that there is only one way to make our rural highways safe for every one who travels them, and that is local, regular enforcement, not just now and then but always?

RAYMOND C. EDGERLEY.

SO THERE IS A GPU.

Chicago, March 14.—The reference in your editorial, "So There Is a GPU," to "Senator La Follette's raid upon the industrialists" should come in the category of name calling, the objectionable word in this instance being "raid." If the conduct of this subcommittee of the committee of education and labor in the procurement of essential evidence can be considered a raid, then the same would apply to any instance in which records have been subpenaed.

Having followed this committee and read with diligence the voluminous testimonies, I can see no justification for this term. Industrialists have had occasion to subpena records at various times without The Tribune considering them raiders. By your logic damages collected by due process of law also come in the category of robbery. In reading the records one will find that witnesses called and the industrialists investigated were treated very courteously; counsel was allowed them, and ample opportunity to refute the testimony against them. In fact they were given courtesy which they would receive in a court of law without the compulsion of testifying "yes and no." Had this committee raided instead of subpenaed, it would not have been possible to destroy or withdraw documentary evidence from files, as in the case of Railway Audit and Inspection, and the Harlan County Coal Operators' association. FROM A DISCHARGED JUROR.

Chicago, March 17.—I was called for jury service March 4, 1940, by the jury commissioners of Cook county and assigned to Judge Rush's courtroom.

I am employed and it was necessary for me to get excused from work for two weeks to do my duty as a citizen. In the first case we heard I as one of the jurors voted for acquittal. After our verdict was returned we were immediately dismissed for the balance of our term. Now tell me is this justice to jurors or prospective jurors to be discharged after one day's service? How about the other two weeks' pay? If a judge has this power why should we serve on juries? JUROR.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin, or Life Among the Lowly," first published in book form by Harriet Beecher Stowe. The story, previously serialized in a magazine, became immediately popular among antislavery forces. On the strength of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and subsequent writings in the same vein Mrs. Stowe lectured widely both in the United States and abroad, seeking to unite women in the antislavery ranks.

MORTGAGE RELEASE.

Chicago, March 15 [Legal Friend of the People].—I own a piece of property in this state. There is a mortgage on it in the form of a trust deed made out to John Doe, trustee, with R. Black, successor in trust. John Doe is dead and R. Black has been declared incompetent and is now in a state institution. I want to pay off this debt. Who can now sign the release deed?

Also insurance policy has the mortgage clause in R. Black, successor in trust.

D. N.

If there is no third successor in trust the only way to get a release would be by applying to a court to appoint a successor. If the title is covered by a guaranty policy you might see if you could satisfy the title company as to the fact of payment and induce them to waive the release deed, perhaps charging a special premium. Or you might find a private purchaser who would waive it. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RIGHT TO INHERIT.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 14 [Legal Friend of the People].—I should appreciate any information you may be able to give me in the following situation:

A man has four children; his wife, one child, by previous marriages. In the event of the death of both man and wife at the same time [an accident, for example], there being no will, could the wife's child claim her mother's share of the man's estate? All the children are married or self-supporting, living outside the parents' home. A. N.

Ordinarily it should be possible to prove that one party survives the other. If the wife survived, and thus inherited from her husband, then the wife's child would inherit from her mother. If the wife died first, or if it actually appeared that the deaths were simultaneous and the wife owned no assets at the time of her death, then the wife's child would take nothing.

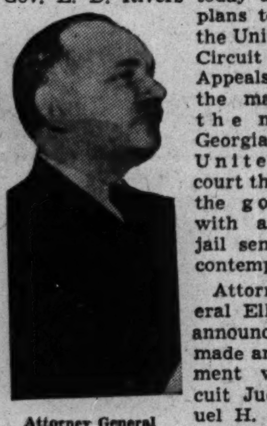
RIVERS PINS HOPE IN CONTEMPT ROW ON HIGHER COURT

Plans to Appeal Today for a Stay of Mandate.

Atlanta, Ga., March 19 [Special].—Gov. E. D. Rivers today announced plans to petition the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to stay the mandate of the middle Georgia district United States court threatening the governor with a fine or jail sentence for contempt.



Attorney General Arnall

Attorney General Ellis Arnall announced he had made an appointment with Circuit Judge Samuel H. Sibley in New Orleans for tomorrow morning. Arnall said he will send Assistant Attorney General Herschel Smith to act for the governor.

James A. Branch, chief counsel for W. L. Miller, who instituted the federal court proceedings against Rivers, was notified of the governor's intended action and is expected to oppose a stay.

Charged with Contempt.

Gov. Rivers was arrested in Macon, Ga., last Friday night on a warrant charging him with civil contempt of the United States court for his refusal to obey an injunction against interference with Miller as state highway commission chairman. The governor ousted Miller in December and since then has blocked his return to office by military rule over the state highway building, altho both state and federal courts have ordered him to withdraw the troops.

The governor was released after his arrest Friday night upon his promise to appear before Judge Bascom S. Deaver in federal court at Macon next Friday morning. Attorney General Arnall said that in the event the Circuit Court of Appeals grants a stay of mandate, it will not be necessary for the governor to appear before Judge Deaver on Friday.

Judge Stands Firm.

The governor's latest move followed an unsuccessful appeal yesterday for a writ of supersedeas, which was refused by Judge Deaver.

Today Judge Deaver remained adamant in his decision to force Gov. Rivers to appear before him "to be dealt with for contempt."

Judge Deaver defined the issue as between the authority of the courts and what he characterized as unlawful use of military force. He said that if the Georgia Supreme court, to which the state court order for Miller's reinstatement has been appealed, should reverse the lower state courts and rule against Miller, his expulsion then could be gone into.

"Until that time he is lawfully entitled to be in office," said Judge Deaver.

The maneuvers, known as fleet problem 21, will be under the direction of Admiral James O. Richardson, new commander in chief of the fleet.

FEDERAL COURT BARS TROOPS IN FIGHT OVER DAM

Oklahoma Governor Balked by U. S.

Vinita, Okla., March 19 (AP).—The government obtained a preliminary order today restraining Gov. Leon C. Phillips, ardent advocate of the state's rights, from using troops or a state court to prevent completion of the 20 million dollar Grand River dam.

The government, asserting it held $11,563,000 in bonds against the project, also asked for an assessment of any damages against Phillips personally and with costs if the governor's action damaged or impaired the dam.

Federal District Judge F. E. Kennemer, who issued the order, set a hearing on a temporary injunction for 10 a. m. Monday.

Governor Not Surprised.

Phillips expressed no surprise. "I've known this was coming," he said, adding he would "have the attorney general look into it."

The governor contends the state should be paid $889,225 damages for roads which would be inundated by the reservoir.

The government argued that the dam would have been completed April 15 and declared it was necessary to close the remaining gap before the normal spring floods which might endanger or destroy the project. The security for its bonds would be impaired, it said, unless completion of the dam was permitted.

The governor has three National Guard officers as observers at the dam to see that a restraining order granted last week in State District court in Miami is not violated. Troops actually were sent to the dam, but their presence was held unnecessary and they were withdrawn.

State Court Superceded.

The state court ordered construction of arch 6 of the mile long dam to cease at 700 feet above sea level. State roads are above that level, construction officials said.

Hearing on a permanent injunction in the state court suit was set for 9 a. m. tomorrow, but Judge Kennamer said it would be automatically dead when it comes up for hearing.

The Grand River Dam authority, appointed by the state, is constructing the dam on a loan and grant from PWA.

HEARING ON U. S. MILK RULE TO BE HELD TODAY

Seventeen proposed amendments to the Chicago federal milk marketing order, effective since last September, are listed for consideration at a public hearing to begin at 10:00 a. m. today in the Stevens hotel. Glenn J. Gifford of the United States department of agriculture will preside, assisted by Paul L. Miller, another department official.

Officials of the Pure Milk association, representing 12,000 farmers, said they might ask that dealers pay farmers for milk twice a month—on the 5th and 20th—instead of once a month, as at present.

Paul Potter, secretary of the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., said any suggestions the dealers make will be based mainly on what the producers recommend. He said the dealers favor a lower price than is being paid now for class 1 milk. He also said they would like to see the present marketing area enlarged if the order is to be continued. It includes only the city and the suburbs of Evanston, Wilmette, Winnetka, Kenilworth, and Glencoe.

For Pearl Harbor

New Orleans, La., March 19 (AP).—The United States navy moved toward the strengthening of defenses in the Pacific today as naval tugs prepared to tow a 6,500 ton floating drydock from New Orleans to Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, 6,000 miles away. The drydock, a 40 year old structure, will be the largest device ever taken thru the Panama canal. At Pearl Harbor it will be utilized to drydock all naval vessels except the nation's largest battleships. The voyage is expected to take four months.

BUS SUBSTITUTION ON WEST TOWNS LINE ARRANGED

Buses will be substituted for street cars on a 10 mile route of the Chicago and West Towns railway running thru Oak Park, Cicero, and Berwyn, Charles E. Byrne of the Illinois Commerce commission announced yesterday.

The plan, agreed to by the company, the suburbs, and the commission, calls for removal of track and repaving of Chicago avenue and Roosevelt road between Austin boulevard and Harlem avenue. Petitions for the bus substitution have been pending three years.

Bert Collett, vice president of the company, said 25 new buses will be purchased for $200,000 for delivery within 90 days.

ILLINOIS TWINS JOIN THE NAVY TO LEARN TRADE

They'll Also Have Chance to Sail the Seas.

Lester Perry Delles and Leslie Philip Delles, identical twins from St. Charles, no longer need strain to dress alike. Both joined the United States navy yesterday.

Lester and Leslie are 19 years old, 5 feet 11 inches, and weigh about 170. They have brown eyes, thatches of straight brown hair, clear complexions, and questioning minds. Their mother, Mrs. M. P. Delles, cried when she heard they had been accepted for enlistment, but told them, "if you want to better yourselves, I guess I'm thankful."

For it wasn't the call of the sea that lured her twins. It was the desire to learn a trade. Lester wanted to study electricity, and Leslie wanted to study aviation mechanics. They will, too, and they'll sail the seas as well.

They Won't Be Separated.

Nor will the sea estrange them, for the navy has a policy of keeping its twins together, Lieut. Comm. George B. Lyon explained. They may go to separate naval trade schools, but later they will be assigned to the same ship.

The navy has found this the only practicable policy, as two or three sets of twins enlist at various points in the United States each month. The U. S. S. Vestal, an auxiliary repair ship, at one time had 11 sets of twins on board.

The Delles' twins enlistment was no sudden impulse, nor was that of the 20 other young men who went with them to the Great Lakes Naval Training station late yesterday. They didn't run away and join the navy. No one does now. No one can. No one has been able to since 1923, altho just last week a wealthy Winnetkan approached Commander Lyon seeking his missing son. "I thought maybe he'd joined the navy," he said. He was surprised to learn it was impossible.

Hard to Pass Tests.

In the first place, the local recruiting office has a quota of only 110 for March. Second, only one out of every 10 applicants can pass the rigid physical examination; faulty teeth and eyes cause 85 per cent of the rejections. An applicant can't be under 18 or over 30, shorter than 5 feet 4, or taller than 6 feet 2.

These are relatively minor barriers when placed beside the general intelligence test each boy must pass. He must give three references, all of which are investigated carefully. His former employer or his school is consulted. The written consent of his parents, if he is under 21, is necessary.

Finally, his standing in his community is examined. Any record of juvenile delinquency bans him.

"It's easy to enlist the boys," Commander Lyon said, "but it's heart breaking to turn them down. Some have planned to join the navy for years."

Gets $21 a Month.

When a boy enlists [and the average age is 19], he becomes an apprentice seaman. He receives a full outfit of clothing, $21 a month, and room and board. He first goes to the Great Lakes Naval Training school for eight or 12 weeks, where he takes a few more tests in such matters as mechanical aptitude. This over, he has a week or 10 days' leave to go home before starting on his first sea going assignment, or, if he has shown requisite aptitude, he goes on to a naval trade school.

Then he's in the navy, whether seasick or not, for six years. He gets both automatic and selective advancements and, his six years up, may go back into civilian life. Eighty per cent don't. They reënlist.

FINE COAL DEALER IN SHORT WEIGHT CITY HALL SALES

Judge Erwin J. Hastan of the Municipal court yesterday imposed two $100 fines on Thomas Irwin, doing business as the Coal Service company, 2530 Fulton street, on charges of shortweighting the city. Irwin paid the fines.

Deputies James Ratigan and Frank Fitzgerald of the city sealer's office testified that after an all night vigil March 9 they found one load of coal to be 600 pounds short. Returning from re-weighing that truck they found another load waiting at the Randolph street chutes, which they said was 920 pounds short.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said the company has a contract to supply the city hall and central police building an average of 30 tons daily. However, the concern did not bid for the next contract, to take effect April 1.

STORM HAMPERS WORK ON POLAR EXPEDITION BASE

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—A 65 mile gale halted work on the government antarctic expedition's east base yesterday, and temporarily isolated five members of the party.

A wireless dispatch to the navy said the gale struck as the supply ship North Star and the flagship Bear were about to put ashore the last 150 tons of winter supplies.

The five men isolated at the small island camp suffered some discomfort, but had ample supplies of food, fuel and sleeping bags, it was said.

CITY APPOINTS SURVEY GROUP TO PARE COSTS

A committee to make a survey of the city government, department by department, with increased efficiency and lower costs as the goal was appointed yesterday by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the city council finance committee.

The action was taken at the suggestion of Mayor Kelly, who came before the committee with a number of civic leaders to urge it.

Frank J. Flanagan, statistician for the finance committee, was named chairman of the survey group. Other members are Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works; Robert Upham, city controler; and Graham Aldis, president of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency.

It was revealed at the finance committee meeting that the Association of Commerce and the Civic Federation will bear the brunt of the costs of the survey.

HEIR IS ACCUSED OF PUSHING WIFE OUT OF WINDOW

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 19 (AP).—Harrison McCready, who has run thru a $750,000 inheritance in the last 10 years, was taken into custody on an assault and battery warrant today after his third wife told police he had pushed her from an east end hotel window.

Mrs. McCready, the former Patricia Silvertooth, plunged three stories, fracturing her right leg and suffering internal injuries.

Detective Martin Corcoran said Mrs. McCready told him she and her husband had been quarreling about McCready's former wives.

COUNTY ISSUES 4 HOME PERMITS UNDER NEW LAW

Issuance of four building permits under the county's new interim zoning ordinance was reported yesterday by Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board.

The permits, all for homes in unincorporated areas, were the first in the county's history. The homes will be at 12122 Harold avenue, 11932 75th avenue, and 11950 Richard avenue, all in Palos township, and at 12242 71st avenue, Worth township.

Smith said several score of applications for permits are pending. Each must be investigated to determine if water supply and sewage disposal facilities conform to state health standards.

GRAND JURY PUTS 'O. K.' ON DANCING IN A GRAVEYARD

89 Making Whoopee in Moonlight Are Freed.

Dallas, Tex., March 19 [Special].—Authorities today declined to take a serious view of the macabre pastime of high school youths in making whoopee in a graveyard. They said the pranksters were merely bolstering a local ghost legend by trying to convince scary friends the cemetery was haunted.

The matter was placed before a grand jury this afternoon after irate farmers threatened to organize a vigilante committee to halt the wild parties. But prosecutors intimated they were unable to make out a case against 89 youngsters caught 10 days ago, because none actually was seen in the act of causing damage.

Farmers living in the vicinity of the Rogers Community church were first attracted to the goings-on when they heard loud noises coming from the moonlit graveyard.

Markers Used for Dance Floor.

Investigating, they found that fun loving youths of the Dallas High school set were using the place as a night playground.

Flat tombstones in the 75 year old graveyard were ripped up and laid side by side for a dance floor. The church pulpit was carried out into the yard. Pews were stacked in a corner. Windows of the church were damaged so badly that services had to be suspended during cold weather.

Far into the night the merrymaking went on, with the youths laughing and cursing as they flitted about casting ghost like shadows from bonfires they built with boards ripped from the side of the church.

Hold 89 Until Officers Arrive.

Churchmen were enraged over the desecration of their venerable church and cemetery. They descended upon the revelers one night and captured 89 on church property. The youngsters were held until the arrival of deputy sheriffs. The officers took their names, but no charges were filed.

Parents were notified, but still the youths came back almost nightly to dance on the flat tombstones and play tag among the remaining upright monuments, the farmers complained.

Led by T. B. Crosby and E. M. Conoly, the church members finally declared they would organize a vigilante committee to put a stop to the graveyard parties if the law didn't. They vowed they would load their shotguns with salt and give the young folks something to dance about, unless the whoopee stops.

YOUNG WIFE AND PREACHER HELD IN MURDER PLOT

Uniontown, Pa., March 19.—(AP) Lieut. William R. Hanna of the state motor police announced tonight the arrest of a Brownsville, Pa., spiritualist minister and the wife of a Uniontown tavern keeper on charges of participating in a bizarre murder-for-insurance plot.

Held without bail after they waived a hearing on charges of conspiracy to commit murder and solicitation to commit murder were the Rev. Clayton R. Miller, 63 years old, and Mrs. Amelia Santilli, 31 years old.

Hanna said Miller and Mrs. Santilli signed statments admitting they engaged a man they believed to be a killer to slay her husband, Albert Santilli. The supposed killer was State Policeman W. J. Hayes. A former convict told police of the plot. Hayes said Mrs. Santilli signed an agreement to pay him $2,500 if he killed her husband, after showing him a $5,000 insurance policy paying double indemnity for accidental death.

Santilli was told about the plot last week and taken away for safekeeping.

Indiana Fugitive, Missing Since '37, Seized in Detroit

Ralph V. Nalley, who escaped from the Indiana state prison farm at Benton on July 5, 1937, has been captured in Detroit, Mich., Warden Alfred F. Dowd was notified yesterday. Nalley, 46 years old, was sentenced in Tippecanoe county on June 4, 1935, to 3 to 10 years for burglary. He has refused to waive extradition, but proceedings have been started to return him to Indiana.

Gain Weight on Stolen Sweets

Admit Burglaries

Four young men confessed yesterday that they looted 25 groceries in recent months, getting about $500 in cash and lots of candy and other sweets.

The four are Richard Buckley, 20 years old, 6348 Greenview avenue; his cousin, Robert Buckley, 19, of 1235 Roemont avenue; Walter Noble, 21, of 5042 Winthrop avenue, and Edward Maciong, 20, of 929 North Francisco avenue. The Buckleys and Noble were seized early yesterday while looting a store at 3464 North Pulaski road. Maciong fled in a truck, but was arrested later.

Sergt. George Schupolsky of the Albany Park police said that formerly the four were each known to their friends as Skinny. They resented the nickname, he said, and in each store they robbed they would steal candy and gorge themselves on it. Each increased his weight from 8 to 12 pounds.

INDICT 4 AS TAX DODGERS; EXTEND GAMBLING PROBE

Four new indictments returned yesterday by the federal grand jury brought to $7,838,897 the total bill for unpaid income taxes claimed by the government from Chicago gamblers. Those indicted, the amounts of income tax they are charged with evading, and the total amounts the government seeks to collect follow:

James A. Hartigan, 45 years old, as manager of Harlem Stables, 4301 North Harlem avenue, $76,447 and $123,566; William P. Kelley, 36, manager D. and D. club, 1205 North Dearborn street, $170,895 and $276,003; Jack Sommers, 55, manager Horse Shoe club, 4721 North Kedzie avenue, $836,410 and $1,350,410 [all three places operated by Skidmore-Johnson syndicate], and George P. Jones, colored, south side policy king previously indicted with his two brothers, McKissack and Edward P. Jones, $30,159. Ten gambling figures in all now have been indicted.

Stuart Solomon Brown, former currency exchange operator at 3424 Lawrence avenue, was indicted on a charge of aiding and abetting Hartigan, Kelley, and Sommers in alleged tax evasions. He is accused of burning pertinent records.

U. S. SHIP HELD UP OFF TRINIDAD BY FRENCH SUB

Boston, Mass., March 19 (AP).—As the American motorship Challenger arrived from South Africa today her officers reported she was stopped off Trinidad, British West Indies, by the French submarine Pallas—"perhaps the same sub which scared the British steamer Southgate" several weeks ago.

POLICE DISCOVER FOOD THEFT CLEW IN FAVORITE CAFE

A large number of hungry policemen from the Warren avenue station eat at the Pride of the West restaurant, 2407 Madison street. Yesterday they had the owner, the chef, and the waiter in custody, but not because of the strength of the fish or the weakness of the coffee.

They were charged with aiding Nick Skrynik, 39 years old, a parolee, in stealing $300 worth of choice hams, steaks, butter, and eggs from the Armour plant at 2607 Madison street. Skrynik, a truck loader, slapped labels on the things he wanted and had them delivered to the Pride of the West, picking them up at his leisure, the police said. He is under arrest.

The other prisoners denied they knew the goods were stolen. They are Chris Sergis, 46, the restaurant owner; John Andrianos, 45, the chef, and his brother, Thomas, the waiter. Skrynik, who lives at 6004 Grace street, has a record dating back to 1919. He was sentenced July 22, 1932, to 1 to 20 years in Joliet penitentiary for auto theft. He escaped May 6, 1934, was captured, and was paroled Dec. 23, 1938.

BROTHER IDENTIFIES TRAIN VICTIM.

The body of a man killed Monday by an Illinois Central railroad train at the 43d street station was identified yesterday as that of Benjamin Mays, 54 years old, 1117 East 42d street, a WPA worker. Richard Mays, a brother, made the identification.

LINK MURDER RING TO GANG SLAYING OF FRANKIE YALE

Slain After Colosimo and O'Banion Executions.

New York, March 19 (AP).—Reopening of two sensational Brooklyn gang killings was announced today by District Attorney William F. O'Dwyer as he pressed his investigation into a "murder for cash" syndicate to which officials have attributed at least 30 assassinations.

O'Dwyer said he was reopening the murder cases of Frankie Yale, once a friend of Al Capone, and Joe Massaria, both of whom were shot down in Brooklyn.

Investigators have obtained evidence linking at least two members of the murder ring to the Yale and Massaria killings, O'Dwyer said.

Seized in Chicago Murders.

Yale, or Uale, was killed in typical gangland fashion on a quiet Brooklyn street in 1928. He was driving his shiny big sedan when a black car with an Illinois license plate drew alongside. Sawed-off shotgun and submachine gun bullets blasted the life from Yale.

A member of the notorious Five Points gang, Yale had a criminal record dating back to 1912. He was arrested for the killing of Big Jim Colosimo, Chicago underworld boss, in 1920, but was released after five days. In 1924 Yale was arrested for the slaying of Dion O'Banion, another Chicago mob leader. Again he was released.

$5,000 Bribe Offered Witness.

As another twist to the amazing investigation, O'Dwyer revealed that a state's witness had been offered a $5,000 bribe to testify in favor of Abe Reles and Martin Goldstein, indicted for the murder of Alex Alpert, who was shot to death on Nov. 25, 1933.

The district attorney revealed that a prisoner held in Special Prosecutor Amen's investigation of official corruption had been taken secretly from the west side Manhattan jail to confer with Reles and Goldstein.

Two Face Grand Jury.

In another tangent of the case Abe Levine and Anthony Maffetore—small time members of the murder syndicate whose confessions to the district attorney opened the road to O'Dwyer's far-flung inquiry — were taken under heavy guard to Monticello, N. Y., today to testify before a grand jury regarding the killings of Walter Sage and Irving Ashkenas, and of a third man known only as "Jack."

Irving Cohen, player of bit rôles in motion pictures, is under arrest in Hollywood. O'Dwyer said he is wanted in the killing of Sage in July, 1937. Cohen, whose film name was Jack Gordon, has been named as the actual killer of Sage.

TAX FIXER'S SUIT ACCUSES COUNTY WORKERS OF AID

The charge that one or more employés of the county assessor's office coöperated with a tax "adjustment" firm, whose business was to obtain tax reductions for corporations and individuals, was made in a suit filed in the Circuit court yesterday.

Walter A. Westgate, the plaintiff, asked for an accounting of funds by John P. Grace & Co., and the payment of commissions he claims they owe him.

According to the complaint, Westgate solicited business for the company by representing that the firm had influence in the county building. He said the company agreed to furnish him with names of prospects supplied by the county assessor's office.

Passengers: One Million a Day!

How many people do you suppose rode American railroad trains today? For the average day, the country's total passenger list adds to approximately one million.

And here's another million-a-day record you probably never suspected—the number of people who each day eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. A million servings a day! Not merely because ALL-BRAN is a good-to-eat cereal. But because it helps to keep people "regular"—helps them combat that common ailment, constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet.

Why this national habit of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN? The reason goes back many years—to the time when many locomotives still looked like this. Two decades ago, in Battle Creek, Michigan, W. K. Kellogg first made and marketed ALL-BRAN. Since then scores of scientists have proven its effectiveness by research, thousands of physicians have recommended it, millions of Americans have used it. Why don't you, too, "join the regulars" with KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN? You'll find it at any grocer's. Eat it for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water.

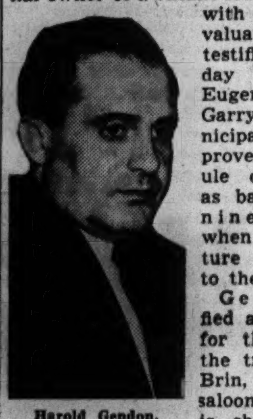
TELLS BRIN JURY M'GARRY O. K.'D 9 FORGED BONDS

Lot Owner Describes Bail Dealings in Detail.

Harold Gendon, 39 years old, nominal owner of a vacant lot in Bellwood with an assessed valuation of $97, testified yesterday that Judge Eugene L. McGarry of the Municipal court approved the schedule of property as bail bond on nine occasions when his signature was forged to the bonds.



Harold Gendon.

Gendon testified as a witness for the state in the trial of Sam Brin, west side saloonkeeper, who is charged with forgery in connection with the bail bond scandal. Brin is being tried by a jury of 10 women and 2 men before Judge Joseph A. Graber in the Criminal court.

Claims Ownership of Lots.

In his opening argument Charles Bellows, attorney for Brin, stipulated that all nine bonds concerned in the forgery were signed by Brin with Gendon's name. He asserted that the Bellwood lot was really owned by Brin, altho Gendon held the title to it.

Gendon, who lives at 6926 Oglesby avenue, said he met Brin in 1936 and that Brin said to him, "I'm going to put a piece of property in your name and use it to make bond." Gendon said he agreed, and that on 30 occasions when he signed bonds on the property in Municipal court he received $5 or $10 from Brin.

Denies Signing in Luna Case.

Assistant State's Attorney Richard Austin then showed Gendon a $1,500 bond for which the property was scheduled in the case of Salvatore Luna of Gary, defendant in a robbery case. Luna later jumped the bond, but has been recaptured and is now awaiting trial.

Gendon denied the signature on this bond was his. Austin then showed Gendon eight other bonds, which Gendon denied signing.

FINGER PRINTING OF PAY ROLLERS RUSHES POLICE

Fingerprints of 30 employés of Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien were examined yesterday at the Chicago police bureau of criminal investigation. No criminal records were discovered. Sheriff O'Brien said he needed reports on the 30 to complete personnel data. Others among his 600 employés already have been fingerprinted.

Emmett Evans, chief identification inspector, reported the bureau of identification has been kept working at top speed the last two months to check fingerprints of city, county, and state employés. In the last three weeks prints of more than 600 guards, doctors, and clerks at the Joliet and Stateville prisons and the women's prison at Dwight have gone thru the bureau.

In February Albert J. Horan, chief bailiff of the Municipal court, ordered 300 employés of his office fingerprinted. Activity at the B. of I. recalls the days when it was known as the finest and most complete in the country. It now is rated second to the federal bureau of investigation in Washington, which began collecting its voluminous records in 1926.

INDICT MISSING CHICAGOAN FOR $14,400 SWINDLE

Eric Von Hoetzendorf, a former Chicagoan, said to be an ex-convict, was indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud in a $14,440 whisky warehouse receipts swindle. A bench warrant was issued for Von Hoetzendorf, whose whereabouts is unknown, by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. His bond was set at $5,000.

Testimony was presented that Von Hoetzendorf induced holders of bona fide warehouse receipts to turn them over to him, giving in exchange spurious receipts or receipts for green whisky. He promised those who dealt with him large profits on these exchanges, it was alleged.

Victims who testified were Miss Emma Hubbel of Leaf River, Ogle county, who said she was fleeced of $4,000 worth of good receipts; Miss Lillian McNamara of Waukegan, who turned over $640 in receipts, and Albert Zetter of Freeburg, St. Clair county, who said he lost receipts worth $9,800.

FATHER OF SLAIN MRS. CRABB ASKS PROSECUTION AID

Pekin, Ill., March 19 (AP).—Glenn Collison, father of the late Betty Collison Crabb, mysteriously shot to death two years ago, today asked the Tazewell county board of supervisors for aid in further prosecution of James W. Crabb, the woman's husband.

Glenn Collison.

Shot in the breast, Mrs. Crabb was found early in the morning of March 1, 1938, in a bedroom at the home of her father-in-law, Willis Crabb, Delavan, Ill., banker. She and her husband had been living at the elder Crabb's house.

Young Crabb was tried on a manslaughter charge in June, 1938, but a Circuit court jury disagreed after 32 hours of deliberation. Later he was convicted of a perjury charge, but the State Supreme court reversed the conviction and remanded the case to Tazewell county.

Members of the Crabb family testified at the two trials that the girl committed suicide while her husband was in a nearby bathroom.

Willis Crabb later was convicted of misapplication of funds in the bank he owned at Delavan and was sentenced to four years in Leavenworth penitentiary. The home was sold to satisfy creditors after his conviction.

TWO OF SLIPPER BANDITS GET 20 YEARS IN PRISON

Two members of the fur slipper bandit gang, so called because their woman scout wore black house slippers with fur tops, were sentenced yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy to 20 years in the penitentiary. They pleaded guilty of robbery under the habitual criminal act.

Those sentenced are John Detente, 29 years old, and his brother, Ralph, 24. A third member of the gang, William Ott, 25, was sentenced to 1 to 20 years in prison. Another asosciate, Christ Dattalo, 31, pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial.

A motion for probation was made in behalf of Mrs. Anna Detente, sister-in-law of John and Ralph. Leslie Curtis, assistant state's attorney, said he would not oppose probation for the woman, since she assisted police in the roundup of the gang. Mrs. Detente's rôle in the banditry was to inspect places to be robbed. Police said the gang had committed more than 100 robberies.

4 Burglars, 16 Years Old, Held for Looting Store

Four youths, each 16 years old, were held by North avenue police yesterday after they confessed looting a clothing store at 2614 North avenue twice within a few hours Monday morning. They are Joseph Klus, 1619 North Talman avenue; Stanley Pachniak, 1249 North Campbell avenue; Carlos Haaland, 2605 North avenue, and Earl La Franca, 1617 North Albany avenue. Their loot—shirts, sox, and blankets valued at $150—was found in a mattress in Klus' home.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND STUFFED IN A CUPBOARD

Beaten, Stabbed and Tied with Wire; Accuse Son.

Seattle, Wash., March 19 (AP).—The body of Mrs. Harriet Arnold was found stuffed in a cupboard at her suburban home today. She had been beaten, stabbed and strangled.

A murder warrant was issued late tonight against Denzel Davis, 22, her son by a previous marriage, when his estranged wife, June, told police he admitted the murder to her.

Mrs. Arnold, about 45 years old, was a department store clerk. Her four room cottage appeared to have been ransacked.

The cupboard had been nailed shut. Inside, the body of Mrs. Arnold was trussed tightly with two electric light cords and a dog chain.

Dr. Gale Wilson, King county autopsy surgeon, said the woman had suffered a fractured skull and had been stabbed 18 times in the breast. The cords were wrapped tightly about her neck.

Burglars Enter School, Take $100 in Equipment

Burglars took a radio, motion picture projector, and typewriter yesterday from the Ross elementary school at 6059 Wabash avenue. Woodlawn police said the loot was valued at $100.

CONFERENCE FAILS TO AGREE ON TERMS OF 2D BOWEN TRIAL

State's Attorney Samuel H. Shapiro of Kankakee county and three lawyers representing A. L. Bowen, state welfare director, were unable to agree at a conference yesterday on conditions of Bowen's second trial.

Shapiro indicated that unless Bowen's counsel made new suggestions by Saturday, he would ask Judge James V. Bartley to set a new jury trial date.

Bowen was indicted on a charge of gross omission of duty. The indictment grew out of the typhoid epidemic which cost 60 lives last summer at the Manteno state hospital. The first trial ended Feb. 26 when the jurors failed to agree after 96 hours.

The Bowen lawyers then proposed that instead of a second trial, a judge be appointed to examine the transcript of evidence and decide on a verdict.

TWO BANDITS GET $4,500 PAY ROLL OF BAKING PLANT

Yesterday was pay day at the Wagner Baking corporation, 1751 Hubbard street, but only six girls among the 300 men and women employés received their envelopes. Two bandits who wore green handkerchief masks got the rest—$4,500.

According to custom, foremen in the plant come with their crews to the office of Steve Howell, production superintendent, to be paid. Jesse McGee of the baking department and eight girls formed the first detachment. The bandits, carrying guns, entered the first floor office after six girls had been given their envelopes.

MRS. ROOSEVELT JR. INJURED IN FALL OFF HORSE

Pelvis Fractured While Riding in Hunt.

Charlottesville, Va., March 19 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., wife of the President's son, suffered a fractured pelvis and what physicians termed a slight concussion in a fall from a horse while riding with the Farmington hunt near here today. A physician at University hospital, where Mrs. Roosevelt was brought for treatment, said her condition was satisfactory.

He asserted the fracture of the pelvis is not a serious break, and added that the patient was reacting "all right" to treatment for the concussion. He said she would be in the hospital for several weeks.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Roosevelt, the former Ethel du Pont, attempted to take her mount over a picket fence at Highlands, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Funsten. The horse fell on its rider, rendering her unconscious.

Husband at Classes.

Young Roosevelt was attending classes at the University of Virginia law school when informed of the accident.

Today's spill was the second accident within three months to befall young Mrs. Roosevelt. She and Franklin D. Jr. were slightly injured early on the morning of Dec. 29 when their car ran into a parked truck near Boyce, Va. They had been attending a ball for the benefit of the Polish relief fund at the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gilpin.

Mrs. Roosevelt suffered a lacerated forehead and broken tooth in that crash, and her husband a head cut and bruises. Both were released from the hospital shortly after treatment.

Telephones to White House.

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—The White House said today Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. had telephoned from Charlottesville, Va., that his wife was not in a serious condition as the result of a fall from a horse this morning. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, White House officials said, had no immediate plans to go to Charlottesville.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 19 (AP).—Film Actor Walter Connolly and his wife, Nedda Harrigan Connolly, were victorious today in a suit brought by Film Actress Ruby de Remer to recover $11,138 damages for personal injuries. The actress contended she was injured seriously by a fall down a slippery stairway in the Connolly home while she was their guest.

COURT DEMANDS EXPLANATION OF TRACTION DELAY

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday directed traction negotiators to make a complete written report on March 30 of progress in franchise negotiations between the city and the transit lines, so that the federal District court can determine who is to blame for the long delay in reaching agreement on a unified franchise.

Judge Michael Igoe.

Judge Igoe warned attorneys for both the city and the transit lines that the federal court, which has jurisdiction over the traction properties, cannot be used much longer to control the operation of Chicago's local transportation system. The surface lines have been in receivership since 1926, and the elevated lines have been in court hands since 1932.

"A traction franchise, under the terms of the $18,000,000 PWA subway grant, is supposed to be submitted to the federal government by April 1," Judge Igoe warned. [The grant is subject to cancelation unless this deadline is met.]

Judge Igoe is conducting traction hearings in the absence of Judge James H. Wilkerson, who is in California because of his wife's illness.

Mother and Child Killed on Journey to Hospital

Rochelle, Ill., March 19 [Special].—James Jerome, 8 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rapp, Amboy, was killed and his mother died at Waterman hospital today as a result of an accident at midnight last night near Shabbona when their car overturned four times. Mr. and Mrs. Rapp, Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher and Howard Rachey were taking the child to an Aurora hospital because the boy was seriously ill.

BOY, 5, STRUCK BY A CAR, DIES OF HIS INJURIES

John Schumacher, 5 years old, 4325 North Winchester avenue, died yesterday in Swedish Covenant hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when he was struck by an automobile as he played in the street in front of 2226 Winnemac avenue. The driver, William Biebel Jr., 1705 Carmen avenue, said the boy ran from behind a parked car.

Mrs. Florence Rosi, 69 years old, died last night in her home at 4831 Schubert street. A coroner's inquest was ordered held today to determine if death resulted from an automobile accident in which she was injured Jan. 29. Frank Wolf of 1255 Taylor street, driver of a cab in which she was riding, and Jesse Wright of 5825 Eddy street, driver of a truck with which it collided, were ordered to attend.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 204 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 156 were killed in Chicago, where 4,339 were injured in the same period.

TWO MOTORISTS GET FIVE DAY SENTENCES FOR RECKLESSNESS

Judge Frank M. Padden in Safety court yesterday sentenced two motorists to five days each in the county jail for reckless driving. TAYLOR SEEKS TO AID FORMER UNION ENEMY

Mathew Taylor, boss of the Elevator Operators' and Starters' union, is campaigning actively to clear the name of George Scalise, his one time enemy for control of the union, it was disclosed last night.

Scalise is international president of the Building Service Employès' union. Last summer Scalise moved, in a court battle, to gain supervision of local 66 of the elevator union and oust Taylor. Last fall the local capitulated to most of Scalise's demands, tho Taylor remained as president.

It has since been disclosed that Scalise served four years in Atlanta penitentiary [1913-1916] on a white slavery charge. He has been seeking a presidential pardon so his civil rights may be restored.

Minutes of the Chicago union's executive board meeting in January were read and approved at a gathering of 1,000 stewards and starters last night in the LaSalle hotel. The minutes disclosed the board had petitioned President Roosevelt to act in Scalise's behalf and also asked William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to use his influence in behalf of Scalise.

Pounds Gasoline Tank on Rock; Spark Causes Blast

La Salle, Ill., March 19 [Special].—A spark struck from a rock exploded fumes in an empty 50 gallon gasoline tank, severely burning Elmer Koehler of Peru about the face and neck today. Koehler had removed the tank from a motor launch to clean it and was striking it against a stone to loosen rust when it exploded.

MEXICO RIVALS EUROPE'S BEST IN TOURIST APPEAL

Fine Vistas and Historical Places Abound.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

MEXICO CITY [By Mail].—Whether or not peace once more settles over Europe this year, Americans yearning for foreign sights and foreign atmosphere will have their wishes fulfilled.

In Mexico they will find about as many natural wonders, man-made wonders, and treasures of antiquity [besides the usual examples of art, pageantry, and scenic beauty] as any European country has to offer.

Everywhere in this country the traveler encounters relics denoting a past even more fascinating than the present.

Unusual Landscapes Listed.

Here are a few of the unusual landscapes:

The volcano of Jorullo. Two hundred years ago Jorulla, in the state of Michoacan, was a rich farming area. In September, 1759, its people were annoyed by a series of subterranean rumblings. Their annoyance changed to terror when the rumblings were followed by a violent explosion. What is now the volcano ripped thru the center of the plain. The mountain resulting from nature's frivolity rose to a height of 1,700 feet. It is still there, it is still smoking, and it is still regarded with awe and superstition by the Indians.

The view of Mexico City, its suburbs, and the twin volcanoes, Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, from Chapultepec castle, atop Grasshopper hill. The sightseer's enchantment is not lessened by his thoughts of the history that has coursed thru the castle ever since the days of Maximilian and Carlotta.

Pyramids Rival Egypt's.

The Pyramids of the Sun and the Moon, rivaling those in Egypt as tourist attractions, and memorials to pagan worship among the ancients. The one to the sun has been restored to approximately its original proportions, but the one to the moon stands in the condition in which it was found.

No one knows when they were built, but it is generally agreed that they are at least 1,400 years old. Nearly all visitors try to climb to the top of one of the two structures; those with a good pair of legs, strong lungs, and stout heart succeed.

Cholula, with its ruins of more than 400 temples along with a few dozen still standing. The early Christian missionaries built a church on every pagan site in the town. The chief monuments they left were the church of the Virgin of Los Remedios, commanding the scene from its position on top of the pyramid of Quetzalcoatl, and the church of the Capilla Real, built to handle the overflow from the main temple and distinguished by nearly fifty domes.

Prehistoric Data Revealed.

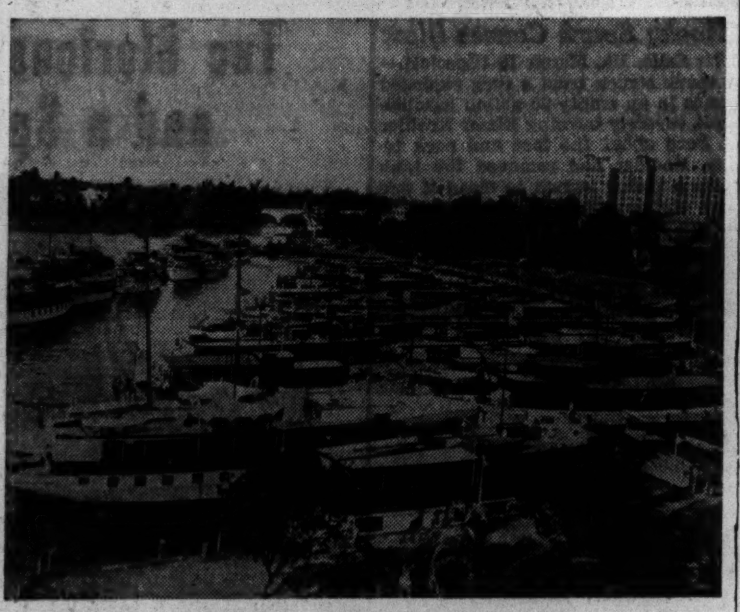
The Mitla ruins near Oaxaca. Discoveries are still being made there; scores of mounds and pyramids are still unexcavated. Those so far dug up reveal the advanced degree of civilization of the prehistoric residents of that region. Nearby is Monte Alban, which has yielded an unbelievable fortune in jewels.

The giant aqueducts. The one leading to Querétaro from the mountain streams is 5 miles long and 96 feet high. Its 74 arches, each 50 feet high, are supported by piers 46 feet wide. It is as impressive as any of the aqueducts built by the Romans.

The Cachuamilpa caverns, near Cuernavaca. Some of its stalactites give off tones like those of the finest chimes. The rocks forming the huge entrance are so symmetrical that they give the appearance of having been designed by a master achitect. Each room has its distinctive beauty and fantastic formations.

Guanajuato, once the wealthiest mining town in the Americas but now living in the past. Here the traveler wishing to be taken back to the sixteenth century finds what he's seeking. Guanajuato has remained unspoiled since colonial times. Situated in a crevice between two mountains, it has the narrow, cobbled streets and balconied houses typical of the early Spaniards.

Playthings at Miami



Pleasure and fishing craft in Miami's Royal Palm yacht basin. It has been estimated that $75,000,000 worth of yachts and cruisers visit Miami in the course of the winter. Those shown here range in length from 25 to 600 feet, and in price from $8,000 up.

Five State Tourist Bureau to Open Here This Spring

A tourist bureau serving resort areas in five states—Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, and South Dakota—will be opened this spring in the Hotel La Salle. It is sponsored by the American Vacation association, with headquarters in Madison, Wis.

Travel in America Topic at Midwest Hotel Show

Travel in America will be discussed Tuesday at a luncheon marking the opening of the midwest hotel show. Nate Crabtree, director of a survey for the Minnesota state tourist bureau last summer, will speak on "Coordinating Tourist Promotion." Ten midwestern state hotel associations are coöperating with the Illinois and Chicago groups in presenting the show. It will be held in the Hotel Sherman.

OLD DOMINICAN CITY FORMS LINK WITH COLUMBUS

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic [By Mail].—This capital, which is 444 years old, is said to be the first city founded by Europeans in the new world. It was started by Bartolomeo Columbus, brother of Christopher, four years after the discovery of America.

Its great age gives the city its chief appeal to the tourist. Many of the ancient monuments and buildings still are in a good state of preservation, and they offer a startling contrast to the 20th century structures.

Even before his ship passes thru the opening between the harbor's breakwaters the visitor becomes aware of the unusual spectacle. He catches a glimpse of the old Homenaje tower and, in the distance, the president's palace.

Columbus Mooring Tree.

A short way up the Ozama river from the customhouse is the stump of the ceiba tree to which Christopher Columbus moored his vessel when he came here for the first time. It has been so badly battered by time and the elements that its attraction is more sentimental than spectacular. So much concrete has been poured into and around the stump that it appears to be made of that material.

At the river's mouth is the Torre del Homenaje, probably the first tower built by Europeans in the Americas—unless it can be proved that earlier ones were put up by the Vikings further north. It was erected by Diego Columbus in 1503.

Almost as old is the Alcazar, built by Diego Columbus in 1510 as a royal residence. He lived there as governor of the land discovered by his father.

Part of Wall Standing.

A large section of the city wall is still standing, and it is thru one of the gates of this wall that the newcomer enters Ciudad Trujillo. A short walk or drive takes one to the Plaza de Colon, a little park surrounded by hotels, shops, and government buildings. Close by is the cathedral, containing the body of Christopher Columbus. Also of historical interest are the ruins of St. Nicholas church, the first Christian edifice to be built of stone in the Americas.

The Santo Domingo church, begun in 1511, was the seat of the first royal and pontifical university established in the western hemisphere. Next in age is the Mercedes church, founded in 1528.

One's taste for antiques is sated by the time he visits the main city gate, now called the "Bastion 27 de Febrero." This name commemorates the date on which Santo Domingo's independence was proclaimed.

My husband and I wish to visit Washington, D. C., this spring. How much should it cost us to stay there for a week or so? L. G.

It can be done for as little as $4 or $5 a day [per person]. This includes $1.50 for a room, $1.25 to $2 for meals, and the remainder for taxi and car fares. An hour's ride around the city on a private tour may be had for a couple of dollars, or the bus service may be used. Rates to the nearby countryside are reasonable. If you wish more detailed information write the Greater National Capital committee, 204 Star building, Washington, D. C.

I noticed in the travel section of last Sunday's TRIBUNE a snow scene in the Colorado Rockies. Are skiing conditions still good there? B. F.

Reports received in Chicago over the week-end gave these data: Glen cove, on Pike's peak, 22 inches base snow, six inches new snow, skiing good. Denver Winter Sports park, 30 inches old snow, skiing good. Highland basin, 36 inches old snow, skiing excellent. Aspen, 25 inches old snow, three inches new snow, powdered surface, skiing good. Hot Sulphur Springs, 10 inches old snow, skiing poor. Marshall pass, 27 inches old snow, skiing good. Steamboat Springs, 14 inches old snow, skiing fair.

Please give me information on the sportsmen's contests to be held at Newaygo, Mich., this spring. R. S. W.

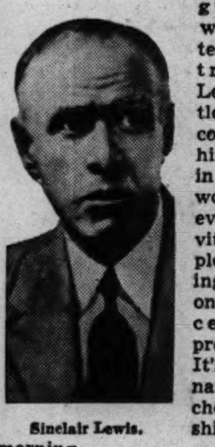
Sinclair Lewis' Once Bitingly Satirical Pen Loses Its Barb in Pleasant Tale of the Stage

"Bethel Merriday," by Sinclair Lewis. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.] To be published Friday.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"A Novel of the Young Girl on the Stage" is the subtitle of the latest novel from the pen of Sinclair Lewis, probably America's best known novelist. That pen, once so bitingly satiric in the span from "Main Street" to "Dodsworth," has grown increasingly gentle. In this tale of Bethel Merriday's metamorphosis into a seasoned trouper, from a little girl who loved to say texts like "I will praise Thee, O Lord, with my whole heart. I will show forth all thy marvelous works" [which made her mother murmur: "I guess that wouldn't be a bad text for an actress.''], Mr. Lewis is so gentle that a child could play with him. The satire in these pages, wouldn't assay even one part vitriol. There is plenty of rib poking here, but not one scalpel concealed in the prodding fingers. It's all as good natured and as cheery as a sunshiny Easter morning.



Sinclair Lewis.

But don't be misled by the absence of poison on the pen. The old adage of more flies being caught with honey than with vinegar is as good today as it was in the days of Henry IV. of France or of St. Francis de Sales, to both of whom it is accredited. Mr. Lewis very sweetly but surely shows up the flora and the fauna of the stage, and every one and everything associated with it—actors, audiences, drama critics, radio interviewers, people who want to give parties for actors [but are too busy to buy tickets to the plays], and the whole periphery of the amateur and professional theater.

It is obvious that Mr. Lewis, like his heroine, is "stage struck"—in the same sense that Helen Hayes, I believe it was, declared that every one in the company which produced her extracurricular "The Merchant of Venice" during the run of "Victoria Regina" was stage struck. Out of his own experiences as an actor in summer stock and in the run of his play, "Angela Is Twenty-two," Sinclair Lewis not only got the material for "Bethel Merriday" but a profound belief that the drama today is no more dead than last summer's dandelion seed.

"Bethel Merriday" is a realistic but very pleasant tale of one girl's initiation into what it really means to be an actress. Like Bethel, who is an awkward tyro in the rôle of actress, the first part of the book seems not nearly as expert as the rest of it. But Mr. Lewis is so skilled a master of his craft that the slightly amateurish air of the beginning of the book must have been intentional. In it both author and heroine are bedazzled by the theater and every minute bit of professional chatter or business. But once the real job of working—looking for real work—enters the book, both author and heroine become more real.

There is no profundity here, of character or character portrayal, but perhaps readers will like "Bethel Merriday" better for that. Anyway, for whatever why, it will surely become one of the year's spectacular best sellers.

A New Kind of History

"The Good Old Days," by David L. Cohn. [Simon & Schuster, $3.75.] To be published Friday.

Sinclair Lewis is also the author this week of a foreword to a new kind of history of the American people. In that foreword he very aptly points out that "Mankind is always more interesting in living than in lives" and says that Mr. Cohn, the author of this new kind of history, "has in this volume stolen the novelist's tricks complete. He has portrayed the moral and cultural zigzag of America by recalling just what domestic and commercial gadgets we have used in the past 50 years; how they have changed or vanished, and what we paid for them."

Yes, Mr. Cohn has done with facts a good deal what Mr. Lewis himself has done with facts plus fiction. He has made an unforgettable picture of America, real because it is absolutely true. He had a brilliant inspiration when he saw in the file of famous mail order catalogs of the past the material for a history of American manners and morals. And with that inspiration he has really made an important contribution to Americana.

Mr. Cohn might easily have bungled his material. He might even more easily have made of it a dull [even tho accurate] record. What he has done is to achieve a perfect marriage between wit and wisdom with it. A great, heavy [in weight] book, obviously the result of a great deal of labor, is "The Good Old Days," a panoramic record of the minutae of American life studied in decades and encompassing every phase of living, loving, and dying since 1905. But it is also a light [in spirit] book which makes the reader chuckle. The last chapter, made up of authentic letters, tops the intermittent chuckles with guffaws.

As Mr. Cohn points out, historians may have disregarded this "Farmers' Bible" and "National Wishbook," but "Hollywood uses it as an indispensable source book," and so probably do such painstaking novelists as the gentleman who writes the book's foreword.

Emil Ludwig Does Portraits of Hitler, Stalin, and Il Duce

"Three Portraits," by Emil Ludwig. [Alliance, $1.50.] Published last Thursday.

In his "Three Portraits," Emil Ludwig, noted biographer, has drawn crisp, forthright, undiluted pictures of Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini. One of the few biographers who have studied all three at first hand, he reveals just what they are like, their background and motives, as well as little known facts about their personal lives.

Emil Ludwig.

Ludwig finds in each a similarity of character and traits but sees in each a difference as marked as their beginnings. All of them, he says, have "a common will to power which suffers no scruples, annihilates every enemy, knows no morality, mercy or chivalry. They are also alike in that all three have "a small capacity for love, a great capacity for hate, and an eminent and unquenchable belief in themselves."

But Ludwig discovers that "of the three Stalin is the only man of conviction, Mussolini the only strong personality, and Hitler the only lunatic." What will be their lot after the war? Ludwig answers thus:

"From their characters and the general situation within their countries it can be assumed that after the war Stalin will still be in power, Mussolini only if he remains neutral, Hitler in no case." H. W. A.

Gives Philosophy

Andre Maurois, author of "The Art of Living," reviewed below, is shown in the official uniform he wore when he entered the French Academy last June.

"The Art of Living," by Andre Maurois. [Harper's, $2.50.] To be published tomorrow.

Andre Maurois, who has made the lives of famous men as familiar to his fellow men as any biographer writing today and who has written as subtly as any novelist of our day about the nuances of human relationships, in this book draws upon fact and the subtleties of great fiction to tell his readers how life may be made an art.

His is no Dale Carnegie volume about how to win friends and influence people, no working manual of success. It is a group of nine excellently written, delicate essays suggesting rather than urging the thoughtful reader to a fuller life.

The essays on the art of love, marriage, family life, friendship, leadership, and working have primarily to do with our relationships with others, but even the more personal art of thinking and of growing old and the achievement of happiness cannot be wholly selfish pursuits, he shows.

M. Maurois writes an infinitude of common sense, and points it with the experiences of real men and women from history or of the great fictional characters. But so gentle is his preaching and so sweetly reasonable that few readers will realize that they are being talked to. Instead they will feel that they are being talked with—that they are sharing an intelligent conversation with some one who is not only a good talker but a wise man.

Of the nine essays the most hortatory is the one on "The Art of Working." In it M. Maurois not only states the problem of the creative artist but gives its native dignity and honor to the work of the woman whose work is traditionally never done and explains the possibility of happiness in any task. His conclusion is that not only human beings demand the discipline and the recreative impulse of work but that nations must also be kept busy. "A bored nation," he declares, "is impossible to govern, but a nation occupied by work which it believes to be useful and accomplishes on its own initiative is already a happy one."

"Gems of thought," as the old anthologies used to have it, glisten thruout these pages. A few are:

"Men are faithful to ideas; women are faithful to human beings."

"A successful marriage is an edifice which must be rebuilt every day."

"It takes great nobility of soul to be able, without any taint of self-interest, to be friends with fortunate people." F. B.

Life and Times of Oscar Wilde Ably Portrayed

"Oscar Wilde and the Yellow Nineties," by Frances Winwar. [Harper's, $3.50.] Published today.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

It was no ordinary home into which Oscar O'Flahertie Wills Wilde was born. Frances Winwar, in telling of his childhood and of the highly picturesque woman, Speranza, who was his mother, and the erratic libertine who was his father, makes all the horror of his later life understandable.

In this new biography the author paints on an enormous canvas not only the portrait of Wilde and those of his friends, but of all the great literary men of his day. As she made the England of the pre-Raphaelites live again in "Poor Splendid Wings," so in this book she depicts the whole æsthetic movement of the '80s and '90s, the final period of the century.

Whistler is there, and Ruskin, Aubrey Beardsley, and Du Maurier. Lily Langtry is seen at the apex of her fame. And there is a memorable chapter describing the meeting of Walt Whitman and Wilde in this country. When Wilde exclaimed, "I can't listen to any one unless he attracts me by a charming style or by beauty of theme," Whitman replied, "Why, Oscar, it always seems to me that the fellow who makes a dead set at beauty by itself is in a bad way. My idea is that beauty is a result, not an abstraction."

Wilde in his rhythmically flowing eloquence did, however, make a "dead set at beauty," and with his inflated sense of exhibitionism he never failed to attract attention to himself by his eccentric mode of dress and his supreme egoism.

When he landed in New York on his lecture tour, in 1882, he said to the customs official: "I have nothing to declare—except my genius."

He astounded his audiences by his black velvet breeches, his silk stockings, his leonine hair-do; he enchanted them with his mellifluous prose, his beautiful English speech. If occasionally rude people jeered, he pocketed his percentages from his lectures, "discounted the insults."

Among the most interesting chapters are those telling of this American expedition. New to many readers will be the picture of the lovely Constance Lloyd, the girl Wilde later married, and about whom very little has been written before. It was only after the birth of their second child that a marked change took place in his character, and that his tragic end loomed in the misty distance of the years.

In this history of one of the most spectacular figures of the 19th century Miss Winwar has given us not only an intensely moving human document, but a brilliant survey of an entire era in the course of English society and English literature.

Dixie Novelist

Gwen Bristow, author of "This Side of Glory," a pageant of southern life, reviewed in adjoining column.

Authors and Their Work

Francis Kozik, author of "The Great Debureau" [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.75], winner of the Czech prize in the recent All-Nations prize novel competition, has only this vague address now: "Somewhere in Europe." He hasn't been heard from since his native land was swallowed up by the German reich.

In a letter to his publishers, Reynal & Hitchcock, Antoine De Saint Exupery, author of "Wind, Sand, and Stars" [$2.75], says he is at the front with the French army and is flying over Germany "as far as possible to take photographs, and this, as you can imagine, is quite a sport."

James Still, who writes so movingly about Kentucky in "River of Earth" [Viking, $2.50], is spending the winter in a log house at Dead Mare Branch, Littcar, Ky. "I have four apple trees," he says, "several patches, a quail bottom, a mountain." He raises his own food and must ride 40 miles to the nearest express station. He spends what is left of his days writing.

Constance Warren, author of "A New Design for Women's Education" [Stokes], is president of Sarah Lawrence college, where the new design is used.

Gwen Bristow Finishes Her Louisiana Epic

"This Side of Glory," by Gwen Bristow. [Crowell, $2.50.] Published today.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Here is completed one of the most satisfying trilogies of recent years. "This Side of Glory" brings to the present that strange and wonderful civilization that before the revolutionary war was founded along the rolling Mississippi river in Louisiana.

And it is one of those rare third-of-a-trilogy novels that doesn't grow wispy and thin. It carries thru to the end with the same drive and easy, vivid style that distinguished "Deep Summer" and "The Handsome Road."

The distant past so shed its glamor upon those first two books that some of Miss Bristow's readers waited a bit anxiously for her treatment of modern people and modern scenes. But such is her art that there is no letdown except in the knowledge that the story is ended.

The Kester Larne of 1915 is as refreshing and unpredictable as that first Larne who, a week before his son was born, presented his wife with a mirror and a bolt of silk to cheer her up. "This Side of Glory" is a moving drama of the new south's enterprise and the old south's traditions.

Into the ancient Larne family a charming and intelligent woman infuses the energy of a new civilization, the sort that launched the clan in the 1700s, and the sort that appalls some of the Dresden china aristocrats who still live in the past.

Miss Bristow, whose first work as a novelist is this trilogy, is a former New Orleans newspaper woman.

Alabama as Background

"Spring Will Come Again," by Florence Glass Palmer. [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.50.]

Into the black land country of Alabama, a region of vast plantations, a young Mississippian comes at the close of the reconstruction era to make his way. The old landowners, still stunned by the civil war and the horrors that followed, are letting their holdings go to pieces thru disuse.

How the young newcomer shows them a new way of living and farming, and overcomes the discouragement of not being entirely accepted, makes absorbing reading. Miss Palmer knows her locale and paints it vividly, with an earthy realism.

Touche.

Eugene de Savitch's book, In the Absence of Caviar, originally called "I'm Scared of Complications," which will be out next week, brings to mind the story of a Washington friend about an occasion upon which De Savitch met Kerensky. Both being White Russians, they found much in common and soon De Savitch was arguing with Kerensky about the course of events that led to the bolshevist revolution. The argument became fairly violent and Arthur Krock, who wrote the introduction to De Savitch's book, commented: "Gene, don't you think you are a bit presumptious to argue with Mr. Kerensky about the Russian revolution, since you were only 13 when it took place?"

"But, Arthur," De Savitch said, "I've often heard you argue about the civil war."

"Yes," agreed Krock, "but not with Robert E. Lee."

Souvenirs.

Among those treasured by Jeanette MacDonald, who sings in Chicago in concert late this month: The rosary Mme. Schumann-Heink carried when she sang, sent Miss MacDonald by Frederick Schumann-Heink, son of the late beloved contralto; the snuff box of Adelina Patti's, sent by a cousin of Patti; a photo of Franz Lehar as a child, with his mother, sent her by the composer of The Merry Widow; a hand written letter from Gustave Charpentier, and an autographed first copy of My Irish Eyes by Anna Case.

* * *

Helen Hayes, appearing currently in Ladies and Gentlemen, has many interesting souvenirs in her Victorian house on the Hudson, but she always carries with her on tour drawings made by her daughter, Mary MacArthur. Mary's first oil is now added to the souvenirs her famous mother takes along with her. And among the photographs that adorn Miss Hayes' tables is the autographed one of the English Queen Mother Mary, sent her in compliment to her magnificent presentation of Victoria Regina.

Thought for the Day.

From A Number of People, reminiscences of Edward Marsh, who for many years was secretary to Winston Churchill:

To buy an old picture does no one any good except the dealer, whereas to buy a new one gives pleasure, encouragement, and help to a man of talent, perhaps of genius. I still don't see how one can hesitate between the two.

Lange Digs for His Programs in Chamber Series

BY CECIL SMITH.

The second of Hans Lange's chamber concerts, played yesterday afternoon in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel, proved to be as refreshing a musical program as the late winter has brought forward.

The concert was devoted wholly to compositions for small groups. Quincy Porter's sixth string quartet was introduced to the city by the Philharmonic String quartet; Dudley Powers, cellist, and Remi Gassmann, pianist, played Mr. Gassman's sonata for cello and piano for the first time in Chicago; the Philharmonic quartet, assisted by Philip Farkas and Helen Kotas, played Beethoven's little known sextet for strings and two horns, in E-flat; and Mr. Lange directed a chorus of 60 voices from the Lake Shore Choral society, as well as Joseph Vito, harpist, and Mr. Farkas and Miss Kotas, in Brahms' four part songs, opus 17, for female voices with accompaniment of two horns and harp.

Such a program as this is all too great a rarity in Chicago, and it stands as a tribute to Mr. Lange's industry in hunting out attractive musical works that are off the beaten track. Unhappily for hundreds of concertgoers who might react enthusiastically to music of this sort, the concert was given on a busy week day afternoon, and at a minimum price too high for the budgets of many. Chicago's ignorance of chamber music is pitiable, and next year it will be important for Mr. Lange to find a way of getting his chamber concerts before a large public at a more convenient hour.

Mr. Porter's new quartet renewed the impression that he is one of the most capable of all American composers. He has developed an idiom of consistent and personalized effectiveness, dissonant in its counterpoint but direct and energetic in its melodic and rhythmic approach to the audience. Moreover, he realizes that a string quartet is not an orchestra, and he keeps his writing within the natural scope of the four instruments.

Mr. Gassman's sonata is likewise mature and unified in style, tho a bit given to stopping and starting. His musical vocabulary derives from a late nineteenth century German influence, but his musical ideas are more rigorous and sober, and much more economical.

Neither the Beethoven sextet nor the brace of Brahms songs deserves to be called a masterpiece. Both make pleasant listening, however, and the audience was spontaneous in its expression of approval.

Petri Deals in Strange Works at His Recital

BY EDWARD BARRY.

In his Orchestra hall piano recital of last evening Egon Petri offered a large amount of seldom or never heard music. Not new music, but music which has received very little attention from the present generation.

There was the huge Beethoven sonata, Opus 106, which is so difficult that not half a dozen pianists in the world try to keep it in their répertoires. It is equally difficult to listen to, for the music is recondite to the point of incomprehensibility. Mr. Petri played the sonata in a free, episodic way, so that it was hard to feel its massiveness and logic. In brief, it had us on the ropes.

Then came a group of pieces by Ferruccio Busoni, Mr. Petri's teacher. In these examples of the work of a strange, introspective, revolutionary composer there were apparent a fastidiousness and a subtlety—as well as a certain curious type of humor [sardonic humor, maybe]—which made the whole group absorbingly interesting. In Busoni's "Carmen" paraphrase is a beautifully handled reproof directed at the general run of transcribers, for the piece starts to rise toward what one thinks is going to be a terrifically brilliant climax, then tapers off into silence in a depreciatory, what's the use manner.

A paraphrase of quite a different sort was Liszt's "Reminiscences of 'Don Giovanni.'" Liszt seems to have remembered virtually nothing of the opera except the duet, "La ci darem la mano," but the things he does to this little tune would stagger almost any pianist but Egon Petri. Here was dazzling playing in the 19th century manner. The piano spoke with that breadth and sonority and supernatural fluency that we read about often enough in nostalgic memoirs but virtually never encounter in actual concert halls.

This was the last recital in the Musical arts series. The pianists for next year were announced. They are Rudolf Serkin, Beveridge Webster, Artur Rubinstein, Wanda Paul, Vitya Vronsky, and Victor Babin [duo-pianists], and Robert Casadesus.

On the House

If you must conserve space in that small home you are planning, let it be a double duty house. You obtain comfort and convenience and keep costs at a minimum if you plan it so that each room can serve several purposes.

A living room can have a dining alcove which can be used as a study.

The kitchen can include a breakfast nook and even laundry space. And if the garage has neatly finished walls and a floor, it can be used as a game room when the car is withdrawn. LOUISE BARGELT.

Sawyer's BAKER BOY CRACKERS

Lace, Ruffles Appear in New Suit Lingerie

BY REA SEEGER.

Any spring suit is only as smart as the suit lingerie worn with the skirt, jacket and blouse. Since most of the newest suit blouses are as transparent as the gold fish bowl, what shows thru this misty white stuff inevitably marks the owner as a fastidious and well groomed suit collector. Out in time for the Easter parade are new slips that combine visible bra top and smoothly fitted petticoat, all cut in one piece.

Lace trimmed beauties are plentiful, with the lace of the hem outlined with a ribbon laced thru a beading at the top. Around the top of the bra is the same decorative lace. Even shoulder straps have lace edging. All this shows thru the sheer white chiffon and organdy blouses with great effectiveness.

Petticoats are cut with magic over the hipline and an elastic belt so that they fit as smooth as skin. Brand new ideas in color feature the whispering affairs of taffeta with ruffles of lace dyed to match the taffeta of the skirt. See the lipstick red number with coquettish bows of black velvet ribbon for trim if you want to see a heart breaker. Changeable taffeta petticoats have pleated ruffles and come in green yellow tones and in red and blue. Plaids, checks, and stripes make a brave showing for all dark suits.

Soft silks in dead white and flesh color come with white frills of lace or crisp eyelet embroidery or bands of the silk fagoted together to form a trim around the hemline. Separate camisoles trimmed with lace neatly fitted in at the waistline with an elastic are matched to petticoats with a hem of the same patterned lace as the top of the camisole.

None of these new models is priced over $4; some neat little tailored affairs are yours for a sum around $2. They're the last word in dainty new spring lingerie ideas for all the high fashion suits.

Fashion photograph. . . . Another big hat with a long feather slanting in a long line from the gently curving brim across the shallow swathed crown of silk. The straw is soft and feminine, gracefully shadowing the eyeline. It is a hat for wear with thin wool and print silk ensembles or with printed silk dresses teamed with a short jacket of velvet or wool.

A Wide Hat in Silk and Straw

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

The wide brimmed Milan straw hat curves gracefully down over the eyeline and accents the sweep of the brim with a long feather. The peaked swathed crown is of harmonizing silk, and a snug band holds the flattering model securely on the head.

Garden Week in Virginia to Open April 22

BY JUDITH CASS.

MANY Chicagoans will be going to Virginia next month for the 11th garden week of the Garden Club of Virginia. More than 80 historic homes and gardens thruout the old dominion will be open to visitors during the week of April 22.

Restoration of publicly owned estates is the outstanding work of the Garden Club of Virginia. Proceeds from this year's Garden week will be used to restore the garden of George Washington's sister, Betty, at Kenmore, in Fredericksburg.

Among the many beautiful places that will be shown from April 22 thru the 27 is Belle Grove, which belongs to the John P. Hookers of Winnetka. It was the birthplace of James Madison and is one of the five places included on the pilgrimage that were birthplaces of famous Virginians. Also of unusual interest are six places that were the homes of Presidents.

Mrs. Hooker is going to Virginia early in April to open her house and to unpack and bring down from the attic a colonial costume which she will wear on the days that Belle Grove is open. Every hostess will wear an old fashioned costume, just as the hostesses at Natchez do during their spring pilgrimage.

Cooks Will Use Colonial Recipes.

Cooks with old recipe books will be busy just before Virginian Garden week concocting delicacies of colonial days with which to tempt the palates of the visitors. Gen. Hugh Mercer's ancient apothecary shop will be opened and across its old counters guests may buy lavender and other hergs, potions, and cordials such as were dispensed a century and a half ago. The shop is said to be the oldest drug store in the country.

At least two other places, in addition to Belle Grove, have housed many Chicago guests: Gunston Hall and Westover. Gunston Hall is the home of Louis D. Hertle, whose late wife was a sister of Carlos Colton Daughaday and Hamilton Daughaday, both of Winnetka. The Hertles lived in Chicago before they moved to Virginia. Westover is the home of Mrs. Richard T. Crane, the former Ellen Bruce.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Defrees are planning to drive to Virginia for Garden week, at which time they will visit the Hookers at Belle Grove. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley also plan to be in Virginia that week.

Lake Forest Flower Show May 18 and 19.

Flowers and gardens are very much on Mrs. Howard W. Fenton's mind these days because she is publicity chairman for the Lake Forest Garden club's annual flower show, to be held on May 18 and 19 at the Albert D. Lasker estate in Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenton are leaving today for a week in New York and several weeks in Boca Grande, Fla., where she hopes to recover from the flu bug that has kept her miserable for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. O'Brien [Kay Bulger] are being congratulated on the birth of a son, their first child, on Monday at the Evanston hospital. The baby is the first grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Bulger of Winnetka. His paternal grandparents are the Michael J. O'Briens of Highland Park.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

When They Take the Census in Hollywood.

Hollywood, Cal., March 19.

Q.—Your full name? A.—Brenda Cobina Ipswich.

Q.—Age at last birthday? A.—At Universal, in the last Durbin picture, the publicity department said I was 20. At Warner's, for the "Fighting 69th," I played the regiment's mother. In "House Across the Bay" I started out as an ingénue, but the reviews aged me considerably. When I worked for De Mille——

Q.—Your age, please. A.—None of your business. Who do you think you're talk——

Q.—Lady, I don't care how old you are. This is for Uncle Sam. A.—O, you mean Mister Goldwyn. Well, why didn't you say you were casting for him? He's such a dear. Why, I remember in "Stella Dallas," I——

Q.—Lady, Uncle Sam is the government. You know—the government, Washington, D. C., the White House, congress, the house of representatives. A.—O, you mean like the Capra picture—wasn't Jimmy just too, too, too cute in that scene he dropped his hat?

Q.—Your age!!! A.—Well, I'm sure you don't have to scream. I'm 34.

Q.—Thirty-four? A.—All right, if you must know, 36.

Q.—Do you live in a one family flat detached house or a one family attached? Or is it a two family side-by-side? A.—They tried to attach it, but I don't think they did. My lawyer——

Q.—Skip it, lady. Have you a toilet and a bathtub? A.—Swine!!

Q.—How far did you get in school? A.—Two years in high school before I won that contest.

Q.—In what state, territory, or possession were you born? A.—Brooklyn.

Q.—Have you had any war or military experience? A.—Just the normal amount of wrestling in producers' cars.

Q.—Marital status? A.—Well, I'm sort of betwixt and between Reno and Yuma.

Q.—Lady, I don't want your plans. I want your present status. Are you married? A.—Mexico says yes. Maryland says no. In Nevada it's being decided by the Appellate division right this very moment. The brute!

Q.—What? A.—Not you, honey. I'm referring to my last husband. Perhaps you saw him in his last picture, "The Five Little Peppers Meet Mr. Chan in Panama"?

Q.—No, I didn't. A.—He stunk.

Q.—Then you were married? A.—Three or four times.

Q.—Three or four times? Which is it? A.—I'm sure I don't know. It's difficult enough to remember my lines on the set without keeping track of a lot of repulsive cads.

Q.—Lady, I've got to know. A.—Well, ask their present wives.

Q.—Miss, for the last time, how many times have you been married, three or four? A.—Five times, besides this one.

Q.—What is your occupation? A.—I often ask myself the same question.

Q.—Lady, I don't care what you ask yourself. I'm asking you. A.—Ingénue.

Q.—Name of each person whose usual place of residence on April 1 was in this household. A.—You mean all the people who were here for that cocktail party? I'm sure I don't know. Half of the ones who came weren't invited.

Q.—Color of head of house? A.—Greenish.

Q.—Absurd. A.—It may be absurd to you, but Dracula isn't rose-pink. He's green.

Q.—Age at first marriage? A.—I was a child bride in Tennessee.

Q.—Principal fuel used for heating? Coke?. A.—Don't be revolting. I have never used drugs in my life.

Q.—Language spoken in home in earliest childhood? A.—Are you suggesting now that I was an eavesdropper? or that I propose to be a stool pigeon for Uncle Stan?

Q.—Lady, it's Uncle Sam. I only work for him. A.—Good day. Tell him that I will send him an autographed picture.

From the sermon by the Rev. Samuel Harkness of Winnetka Congregational church yesterday at the Chicago Temple:

"What is the cross? A sign lifted aloft on steeples and centered upon altars, or a sentiment founded on the New Testament and Christian hymn books—what is the value of the cross to our generation?

"Recently I stood in the oldest cemetery in Illinois. I looked around at the gravestones and wondered what those buried there had thought and accomplished, and what remained of it all in contemporary life. The answer is simple: whatsoever is heroic and loving will live.

"That is why we talk about the cross 2,000 years after Christ went to Golgotha. But men have never made enough of the cross. It is an idea that deepens in maturity as it meets new challenges, forever and alone capable of changing a world of evil into the kingdom of God."

Indoor Freedom Is Essential to a Young Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

This is the third in a series of articles on the young child.

Every one who really knows anything about children knows that these young growing things are simply filled with energy, and that if they can't let it out thru acceptable channels, something very unacceptable to all their grownups is bound to happen. Nature means them to be active.

One mother writes me that she knows her little boy of 18 months needs to get rid of his energy, but how can he do it in an apartment, and especially indoors? Now I will admit that when you live in an apartment and your children reach the age of 8 or 9 and want to put on their roller skates or ride their velocipede around or play ball indoors, that it just won't work out! Neither your furniture and floors nor the nerves of the dwellers below can take it. But when you have a small son or daughter who may be 18 or 20 months old or perhaps 2 years, I cannot see any reason why it is not possible for him to have plenty of outlet, and even very active outlet, for his energy. This applies to both his play with his small and large toys, and to that free muscular activity that all little things need.

One of the greatest boons that you can confer upon your very little children is to give freedom of the house. This is their home and their only home. At this age it is their great place for learning, and so we should make it their happy hunting ground.

The very young children's playthings are, in a way, at this age only the smallest part of their play equipment. To a little year and a half old child, virtually everything in the house may be played with. The cupboard where the saucepans are kept not only gives him pleasure, but provides that deep satisfaction which he gets from using his arm and hand muscles to lift, to fit together, and to manipulate this kitchen equipment that, in most homes, a little child is not allowed to touch.

Thru the Looking Glass

One of the most exciting Easter corsages is a lovely little round bouquet of tiny straw flowers in wonderfully vivid colors with four heart-shaped flacons of perfume nestling snugly in the center. It's surprisingly effective looking. The whole corsage is packed with lacy white paper and tied with gold silk ribbon.

The box in which it arrives as an Easter offering is exactly the kind a superlative corsage should be in—white with orchid stripes and delicate touches of yellow. And inside there are masses and masses of that soft, waxy paper you always find as protection for your favorite flower. This is considered by the experts one of the cleverest Easter packages of the year.

A less conventional but no less exciting Easter gift is a new compact. Your eyes will pop when you see it, because it's not like any you've ever seen before. The case—metal, very well executed—is in the design of a deck of cards, with the enamel cover looking exactly like thousands of playing cards you've held in your hands. The quaintly fussy design of bicycle, fan, and elaborate scrolling is perfectly charming. The back of the vanity, or the under side of it, represents the ace of hearts, snowy white with a heart in the center.

This is a smart, completely different compact for single powder. The back-of-the-card design on the cover can be in blue or red. In motif, it's all perfect for 1940 fashions.

Gun Bought Grant

By Luke Short

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Framed by Santee Bales, Sam Teacher, outlaw cowboy, shoots the bank robber dressed to resemble him. The governor offers Sam full pardon of all the crimes accredited to him if he will persuade Matt Drury to sell the railroad the right of way thru one of his canyons. Sam accepts on his own high terms of $25,000 in addition to full pardon. He gets a job on Drury's ranch and has a run-in with Drury's worthless son, Steve. Instead of firing Sam, Matt accepts his advice about reforming Steve by giving him a small stake and making him get out on his own; and he also accepts Sam's advice about making his pretty but spoiled daughter, Celia, take over the responsibilities of running the house. Steve in a huff goes down to the town saloon and gets into a crooked poker game with Santee Bales, ending up the big loser and having to go into partnership with Bales, ostensibly to raise horses, the Bales' scheme is to get young Steve to obtain the canyon grant from his dad and double-cross the governor. Celia has a run-in with Matt and leaves home. Sam, investigating the canyon, is captured by Bales and his men. They steal his gun, tie him up, and leave him. Sam finally gets loose and starts back to town.

INSTALMENT XV.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER.

Sam went thru the same soothing talk again. The second time she did the same thing, only this time he had found his seat. Legs hugging her side, he let her pitch, and as soon as she found that he was there to stay she ceased bucking.

Sam headed her for Trabajo, hungry and sore and in a mood that was savage. It was a mood, however, that the mare did not suspect, for not once had he cursed her or frightened her.

It was 9 o'clock when he rode into town. Ahead of him, where the street opened up on the plaza, he noticed that all the stores were lighted, and that there were many people on the street. Puzzled, he rode on, turning into the plaza and heading for the livery stable.

He was just past the corner when a man yelled, "There he is!"

Sam looked at the man and saw him whip out a six gun and shoot. The mare grunted and went down, and Sam leaped clear. He had his mouth open to yell at the fool with the gun when another shot hammered out from the plaza. Something brushed against his Stetson and slammed into the down horse.

They were shooting at him!

For one desperate second, he looked around him, then, crouching low, he made a dash for the row of stores on the east side of the plaza. Men were running toward him from all directions.

He made the store front, yanked open the door and ran in. He ran as far as the gun counter, leaned over it, grabbed a rifle and some shells, and ducked down behind the counter. The proprietor and clerks, all on the other side of the store, started taking pot shots at him just as the first man broke thru the door. From an angle of the counter Sam emptied a whole chamber of shells at the floor in front of the door. Two men turned and ran out, but he could see them milling with the others on the sidewalk. The proprietor and clerks crawled toward the rear, and in another moment there was a pounding on the back door. It opened to let a dozen men in. They all started to fire at the counter behind which he was hiding.

Sam lay there, listening to the boom of the slugs as they rapped against the wooden counter. Had the whole town gone crazy?

There came a lull in the firing then, and some one called out, "Surrender, Teacher, or we'll cut you to doll rags!"

"All right," Sam called.

"Throw that rifle out here and stand up. Come up hands first, too."

Sam did as he was bid. Cautiously, the groups from both the front and rear of the store approached him.

It was Sheriff Lovejoy, a shotgun in his hand, who searched him and then said. "All right, boys. Take him to the jail—and shoot the man who tries to stop you."

"Wait a minute," Sam said. "What am I ——"

He got no further. Some one shoved him inside a circle of armed men who hustled him out into the street, out across the plaza, and entered the sheriff's office with him. The Ortega county jail, which opened off the sheriff's office, was a new six cell affair of rock construction. Sam was thrown into the first cell, and the door clanged shut after him.

"Get out front," Sheriff Lovejoy told the others. If a mob forms, break it up. And I mean, break it up! Nothing is going to happen to this man except justice!"

The others went out and Sheriff Lovejoy turned to face Sam. He was an old man, leather skinned and slow moving and spare of frame, but there was an anger in his gray eyes that fairly blazed.

His voice, however, was surprisingly mild as he said, "You ain't got the brains they brag up for you, Teacher."

Sam grasped the bars in both his small hands. "Listen," he snarled. "Either the whole town's drunk or I'm crazy. Which is it? What am I here for?"

"You are Teacher, ain't you?"

"I never said I wasn't. Ask Pearly Gates. Now, what am I here for?"

"They found him."

"Who? Gates?"

Sheriff Lovejoy didn't answer immediately. Then he sighed and said, "All right, mister, if you want to play it that way, let's do it. But first, you won't confess?"

"To what?" Sam snarled.

Sheriff Lovejoy said in a monotonous voice, "All right. You're charged with the murder of Steve Drury."

For a moment they watched each other. Sudden understanding came to Sam, and it fell with the weight of lead. His hands dropped from the bars.

"The murder of Steve Drury," he asked slowly, eyeing the sheriff, "And how did I do it?"

"Gun. Yours. It's got your initials on it. We found it on the place where you scrapped. His rope was there, covered with blood. You'd fought and he'd licked you and tied you up, but you broke loose, got the gun and shot him." Sheriff Lovejoy paused long enough to look at the great welt on Sam's face, the mark where Tex had hit him. Then his glance traveled to Sam's bloody wrists. "Pretty crude," he added, "callin' young Drury out of bed to do it."

"I didn't!"

Lovejoy shrugged. "This fella told the house girl his name was Sam Teacher. He was small, about your size. Figure it out. I already have."

Sam turned his back on Sheriff Lovejoy and went over to his cot and sat down, and Sheriff Lovejoy left. Sam sat with his head in his hands, staring at the floor. Santee Bales had sewed it up tight this time. With Sam's record known by every one, with his mission known to the governor, he had every card stacked against him. It wasn't that which bothered him so much, however, it was what he was going to tell Drury. Young Steve Drury was no good and probably would have wound up in serious trouble, but no man deserved to die the way he did.

He was roused from his meditation by the sound of the corridor door opening. Matt Drury and Pearly Gates stepped into the cell block and Pearly shut the door after them.

Sam looked over at Drury, studying his face, and at first found only angry misery reflected in it. But when Drury came closer to the bars and put both hands on them, Sam saw there was a rage inside that man that was almost choking him.

Pearly, seeing it too, said, "Easy, Matt."

"I'm all right," Drury said in a thick, tired voice. "I'm just wonderin' why I don't shoot you now, Teacher."

"You think I beefed Steve?"

"Why did you?" Drury burst out. "Why did you have to? What did you get that you couldn't have got from me for the asking? Why did you have to do it?" His hands were grasping the bars until his knuckles showed white.

"Easy, Matt," Pearly said.

"I gave you a job when you asked for it! I gave you your self-respect back. I even listened to you tell me what to do with my son and daughter! Now, my son's dead and my daughter has left me! Why did you do it?"

"Listen," Sam said, walking up to Drury, his glance level and angry. "If you want the whole story, Drury, here it is. Your son throwed in with Santee Bales—the forkedest man in the territory. Do you know why Bales went in partnership with Steve? So he could get you to give Steve some land. And do you know what land you gave him? The canyon of Rio Medio—the canyon that the Southwestern and Rio Grande railroad has got to have a way off the Ute Rim. Steve signed a partnership agreement with Bales. Bales killed him and by agreement he gets the land. He'll sell it to the railroad in a week."

Drury didn't say anything for a moment. His anger was too great for him to take in all this immediately. Presently, he said, "How do you know?"

Sam told him how, told of the capture, and being held prisoner by Santee. As he talked he saw the iron disbelief mount in Drury's face.

U. S. C. Head Finds His Students Headed Straight for Devil

Long Beach, Cal., March 19 (AP).—Describing the youth of today as "the only unspanked generation" in history, Rufus B. von Klein Smid, president of the University of Southern California, said modern students are "headed straight for the devil" unless something is done immediately.

He told a convention of California high school and junior college principals that "lack of discipline in the home, school, and church have resulted in a generation of youth that have to depend upon themselves entirely for discipline."

Congeniality the Test of a Social Group

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I am a 16 year old girl, small for my age and decidedly short. I am in second year high school. Always, on account of my size, I suppose, I have gone around with younger boys and girls and enjoy being with them far more than I like being with the older group. People tell me now that I ought to associate with my contemporaries, but those older friends available all use rouge and lipstick, which my dad doesn't yet permit, altho he isn't a strict daddy, really. Too, the older crowd talk in a manner I don't like and act older than their years.

"I can say truly that I am not hard to get along with, as everybody says so, but I don't feel comfortable with the older crowd nor do I have nearly as good a time as with the younger ones. What should I do? "Mossie."

Keep on going with the crowd you find the most congenial. Your problem is not unusual, Mossie. A number of 16 year old persons feel the way you do and we suggest to them that they continue with the younger set until they have acquired a bit more of the sureness and poise that will guarantee them a pleasanter time with the older ones.

We think, perhaps, you misjudge the older crowd because you set out with a prejudice against them and meet them feeling somewhat inferior on account of your abbreviated size. That's what you must get over, and a simple way of overcoming it is to circle around with the younger group, gradually working away into the older one. You don't want always to stay with your pals of junior years. That wouldn't be growing up and, as time goes on, from 16 to adulthood, you will want to reach out for more and more of the society of your contemporaries in years.

Around 16 is the time of life when the average girl either grows up or stays a child. Sometimes they do grow up beyond their years and they are hard to become adjusted to, with their advanced ways and habits. But these are a minor few of the usual good sized group, and they can be ignored, you know.

Broiled grapefruit has made such a success of itself as an appetizer course that it has entered the breakfast menu, too. Many persons prefer this hot beginning to the morning meal, choosing it instead of chilled grapefruit or cold fruit juice.

To broil grapefruit for breakfast, appetizer or dessert, sprinkle each half with sugar after loosening the segments, add a dot or two of butter to the top and place under a moderate broiling heat long enough to heat the fruit and brown the top slightly. Broiling changes the flavor slightly, and for the better, I'm sure you'll agree.

Cornmeal waffles with little pig sausages are tomorrow's luncheon treat. Use the recipe on page 41 of your copy of "Better Homemade Breads and Rolls" [23 cents by mail, if you've forgotten to order it], or substitute a cup of cornmeal for as much flour in your favorite waffle recipe.

Have your meat retailer score the flank steak for you before you carry it home for tomorrow's dinner. And instead of stuffing and rolling it in the usual way, bake it in two layers, with the dressing between.

STUFFED FLANK STEAK.

To be more specific: Buy two pieces of flank steak to fit into your skillet or casserole. Have them scored so that they'll be tender [don't try to pound them yourself because they'll be more tender if you have a professional meat cutter treat them]. Dredge them in flour and brown thoroly in hot lard or other fat. Sprinkle both sides of each piece with salt and pepper. Place one piece in the bottom of your skillet or casserole [skillet preferable] and spread quite thickly with dressing. Top with the other piece of steak. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for an hour and a half, or until the meat is tender. Transfer to a hot platter, lay out the carving utensils, and surprise the man of the house with an easy carving job!

The stuffing? Any one you like. This one is near-standard, and takes well to variation.

Stuffing for Flank Steak

8 slices stale bread, cut in cubes
½ cup finely cut celery
1 medium onion, minced
¼ cup melted butter
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 egg, beaten
Water to moisten

Cook celery and onion gently in butter until light brown. Add bread cubes and other ingredients. Mix until blended, using enough water to moisten the bread, but not enough to make a soggy dressing. Add a little minced parsley to the ingredients, if convenient.

This recipe for orange cream pudding is a rather large one, but most families will like to make it serve as dessert for two meals, it is good!

Orange Cream Pudding

[Serves eight]

2 tablespoons plain gelatin
1 cup cold water
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
½ cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Orange sections or maraschino cherries for garnish

Soak the gelatin for 5 minutes in ¼ cup cold water. Dissolve in remaining water heated to boiling with orange rind and sugar. Add orange juice and lemon juice. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in egg whites and cream. Turn into molds and chill until firm. Turn out and serve garnished with orange sections or cherries. By the way, this is a good pie filling, too.

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Here is a lovely crocheted, patchwork afghan which is made in squares and joined when a sufficient number has been completed. It is created in two colors and embroidered in blue, yellow, rose, and green. This same afghan pattern may be modified and used for a child's carriage robe or crib quilt. Your Stars Today

By WYNN

Wednesday, March 20.

Today is a mixed dish, psychologically speaking. Plenty of urges to action, but with them come temptations to do things the wrong way. Watch mode of conduct; avoid self-pity. Creative impulses to be used cautiously—but used.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead, if you celebrate today, crystalizes money matters, with chance for permanent betterment if problems are wisely solved. Steer clear of confusion in emotional relations. Danger: May 9-20, Sept. 21-Oct. 10, Feb. 10-17, 1941.

Tomorrow.

Considerable improvement over recent past; think, then act.

Do you want an individual interpretation for your own personal date? Every important period is indicated for you, according to the laws of astrology. Send 10 cents to Wynn, Tribune Astrologer, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Write plainly your name, date of birth and address.

Lake City Club.

The Lake City Woman's club will hold a guest day luncheon and card party at noon today at the Morrison hotel. Mrs. William S. Olsen is president.

Violinist Brosa Is Admitted to America for 6 Months

New York, March 19 [Special].—Antonio Brosa, the Spanish violinist who was detained with his wife on Ellis Island overnight after his arrival on the United States liner Manhattan, was released late today and admitted to the United States for six months without bond. Brosa was held in spite of the fact that he had a contract with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony society. It was said he had been detained as a "doubtful visitor" and as one likely to become a public charge. Brosa is to appear with the orchestra on March 28 and 29.

Musical Society.

Composers who have won the Lake View Musical society's contest will be presented at a meeting of the composers' section at 2 o'clock today at the Chicago Woman's club. Florence Galijikian, composer, will play her own compositions. Mrs. Marjorie Elliott heads the section.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

A hand played in a recent duplicate game in New York created a great deal of surprise and amusement when it was found that the finest player in the club had been the only one of eight declarers who had failed to make the common contract of four spades. I suppose that the consensus was that, for once, "the mighty had slipped." Actually, he had done no such thing. What happened was that he had come up against a defender worthy of his steel, and one who had correctly figured out a hoax that would be effective, not against a dub, but against an expert.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's opening bid was slightly shaded but the hand was much too tempting to be passed.

West opened the diamond king, and when East signaled with the ten, continued the suit. The defenders cashed three diamond tricks and then East, who had taken the lead, returned the eight of hearts. Declarer, who saw that the finesse was unnecessary, since his jack of hearts might easily be discarded on a club, clattered up with the ace.

West had been doing some lightning calculating and had reached the same conclusion as the declarer: That a heart trick for his side was out of the question; that the fate of the hand now must rest squarely on whether or not there was a trump trick to be garnered. He saw that if declarer had as many as five solid trumps, that these, in addition to the heart ace and dummy's four clubs, would give him the rest of the tricks, and contract. West also realized that expert declarers, as this one was, follow percentages very closely. Thus, if by any chance East had the queen of trumps [the only potentially valuable honor he could have] it might be possible to insure it for him by creating in the declarer's mind the impression that West was long in trumps and East short.

Which is precisely the impression that the play of the heart king did make. The declarer not unnaturally counted West for only one heart and, at most, four diamonds. Thus, unless he had a minimum of six clubs, he was marked with at least three trumps, which would leave East with only one. On this apparently clear odds-on chance that the trump queen was twice or thrice guarded in West's hand, declarer laid down the jack of trumps and let it ride. East pounced on the trick, and the contract was down one.

At all the other tables, the declarers with no "count" to guide them played for a drop of the spade queen and made their contracts.

Exercise Is the Only Aid for Too Plump Leg

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We are trying to round up women who are confronted with the plump leg problem. As the season goes on, skirts become shorter, and as the beach season more nearly approaches, you'll be wishing you'd begun early to slenderize the legs. We know of no other way to attack the plump leg problem than by exercise designed especially for them.

1. A. Hold right arm and hand straight forward at shoulder level. Bring right foot up to touch hand slowly. Lower foot and leg to floor slowly. Repeat 10 times to begin; increase gradually three a day to 100.
   B. Do same exercise with left arm and leg.
   Note: If balance is difficult, hold on to some stable object with free hand while exercising.
   Note: On even counts do above exercise with toes pointed sharply out. On odd counts do above exercise with toes pulled up.
2. A. Bend right leg up in back, bend knee. With left hand stretched behind back, seize right ankle. Standing thus on one foot, bend forward slightly, bending knee and touching left toe with right hand. Do exercise ten times and increase to 50 each day.
   B. Repeat same exercise with opposite leg and hand.
3. A. Lie down on back on floor with blanket or sheet covering floor. Pull right leg up, bending knee in toward body as far as possible. Slap thigh and leg on floor with outward motion from the body to the right. Pull leg back to bent knee position. Straighten leg out with toes pointing up at 45 degree angle. Lower leg slowly to floor. Repeat ten times and add three a day to 100.
   B. Repeat same exercise with left leg.
4. A. Lie flat on back on floor, left leg held straight two feet off floor. Bend knee in to body at right angle to body. Twist body at waist, keeping shoulders on floor and try to touch right knee to floor on left side of body. Bring knee back to angle position. Straighten leg out forward. Lower leg to floor. Repeat exercise ten times.
   B. Repeat same exercise with left leg.

SENATE BEATEN TO MONEY TILL BY ROOSEVELT

Cash Counted for Farm Parity Earmarked.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 19.—Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], who has been busy for weeks ferreting thru the devious convolutions of President Roosevelt's budget for the next fiscal year, punctured the soothing calculations of the senate farm subsidy boosters today.

Senator Byrd.

Defenders of the senate appropriations committee, which has included 212 million dollars for so-called parity payments in the pending 922 million dollar agriculture department appropriation bill, argued that such an increase in the budgeted expenditures would not necessitate an increase in the 45 billion dollar statutory debt limit. It would be a simple matter, they said, to make the farm increases out of the treasury's cash working balance.

Roosevelt There First.

Senator Byrd's contribution to the farm problem was to explain in the senate debate that President Roosevelt had beaten the farmers' friends to the treasury's working balance, and had tapped it to the extent of 1 billion 150 million dollars to keep within 62 million dollars of the 45 billion dollar statutory debt limit at the close of the next fiscal year.

Even including this 1 billion 150 million dollar reduction in the treasury's working balance, Senator Byrd explained, the President's budget contemplates remaining under the 45 billion dollar debt limit by 62 million dollars only if congress does not exceed the budget expenditure estimates, if congress levies new taxes of 460 million dollars, which nobody expects congress to do in an election year, and if 700 million dollars can be recaptured from the capital funds of government lending corporations.

Reduction Called Unwise.

Senator Byrnes and Senator Barkley told the senate that the treasury's working balance was 1 billion 620 million dollars, and said this amount could, "without any fear of impairing the government credit," be reduced 1¼ or 1 billion dollars.

Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky agreed with Byrnes but expressed the opinion that it would not be wise to reduce the working balance below about a billion dollars.

"Senator Byrnes and Senator Barkley inadvertently overlooked the fact that in the budget submitted to congress by the President on Jan. 3, a provision was made to reduce this working balance by extent of 1 billion 150 million dollars, to avoid the necessity of increasing at this time the existing debt limit," Senator Byrd told the senate.

"Therefore, when this is done, as the budget provides, the unincumbered working cash balance at the end of this fiscal year, June 1, 1940, will be approximately 500 million dollars.

Senator Byrd explained later that it required exhaustive research to ascertain by what process of budgetary ledgerdemain the President accounted for the 1 billion 150 million dollar item to be taken from the working balance.

Table No. 11, page 1037, gave the net deficit for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, as 3 billion 933 million dollars, but gave the increase in the public debt as 2 billion 783 million dollars, leaving an unexplained discrepancy of 1 billion 150 million dollars. Finally the senator discovered a supporting schedule, No. 3, which showed a decrease of 1 billion 150 million dollars in the treasury's working balance.

PICK EUROPEAN TEAM TONIGHT TO FIGHT CHICAGO

ITALY EXPECTS TO WIN 5 PLACES IN ROME MEET

Sail Tomorrow for April 10 Bouts.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, March 19.—Europe's amateur boxing champions, who meet Chicago's Golden Gloves titleholders in Chicago Stadium on April 10, will be crowned tomorrow night. Eight bouts will constitute the special elimination program and the winners will begin their 5,000 mile trip to Chicago from Naples aboard the Vulcania Thursday.

Five of the leading candidates for the European team are Italians. Sweden will be represented by three boxers, and Hungary two.

Pairings Announced.

The pairings for the meet, announced this afternoon by officials of the International Amateur Boxing federation, follow:

FLYWEIGHT.
Guido Nardecchia, Italy, vs. Constanti Paesani, Italy.

BANTAMWEIGHT.
Arturo Paoletti, Italy, vs. Faust Jemma, Italy.

FEATHERWEIGHT.
Federico Cortonesi, Italy, vs. Dezso Frigyes, Hungary.

LIGHTWEIGHT.
Egisto Peire, Italy, vs. Roberti Proletti, Italy.

WELTERWEIGHT.
Erik Agren, Sweden, vs. Dominic Di Stefano, Italy.

MIDDLEWEIGHT.
Karl Noren, Sweden, vs. Guilio Fallaro, Italy.

LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT.
Luigi Musina, Italy, vs. Lajos Szigeti, Hungary.

HEAVYWEIGHT.
Olle Tandberg, Sweden, vs. Nemesio Lazzari, Italy.

The five outstanding Italian boxers who will have no difficulty winning places on the European team in the opinion of European boxing authorities are Nardecchia, flyweight; Paoletti, bantamweight; Cortonesi, featherweight; Peire, lightweight, and Musina, light heavyweight. Italy, which takes its amateur boxing very seriously, readily admits it has no fighters comparable to Sweden's Agren, welterweight; Noren, middleweight, and Tandberg, heavyweight.

Champions Seek to Repeat.

If Peire disposes of his opponent, Proietti, tomorrow night and Musina wins from Szigeti, the Hungarian, the Italians will return to the scene of their greatest triumphs. Peire last year jabbed his way to victory over Chicago's colored lightweight champion, Johnny Pleasant, while Musina gave a brilliant exhibition as he scored a decision over Ragon Kinney, the light heavyweight captain of Chicago's forces. Their victories led the Europeans to a 5 to 3 decision over the Americans.

Agren, brother of Karl Ogren, who for several years campaigned in America as a professional boxer, also triumphed on last year's international program. Agren, who won from Bill Pauli of Cleveland in the 1939 matches, is eager to make another trip to the United States and for the last few months has trained almost daily for his match with Italy's Di Stefano. Agren appeared in perfect condition as he engaged in sparring drills today.

Nardecchia Seeks Revenge.

To Nardecchia, a victory over his countryman, Paesani, means an opportunity to avenge the defeat he suffered at the hands of Chester Ellis, Indian bantamweight, last year. As captain of Europe's squad, Nardecchia failed in his assignment on a close decision and he has not yet forgotten the bout. The clever little Italian already has promised his followers and officials of the Italian Amateur Boxing federation that he will return home with the international championship this year.

A search thruout Europe would find no greater heavyweight than Sweden's Tandberg. A former international champion, Tandberg, the boxing officials say, will have no trouble removing Italy's Lazzari in his path toward his first trip to America. Lazzari last year lost a three round decision to Chicago's Atlus Allen.

MRS. PAGE'S 151 LEADS TOURNEY BY 14 STROKES

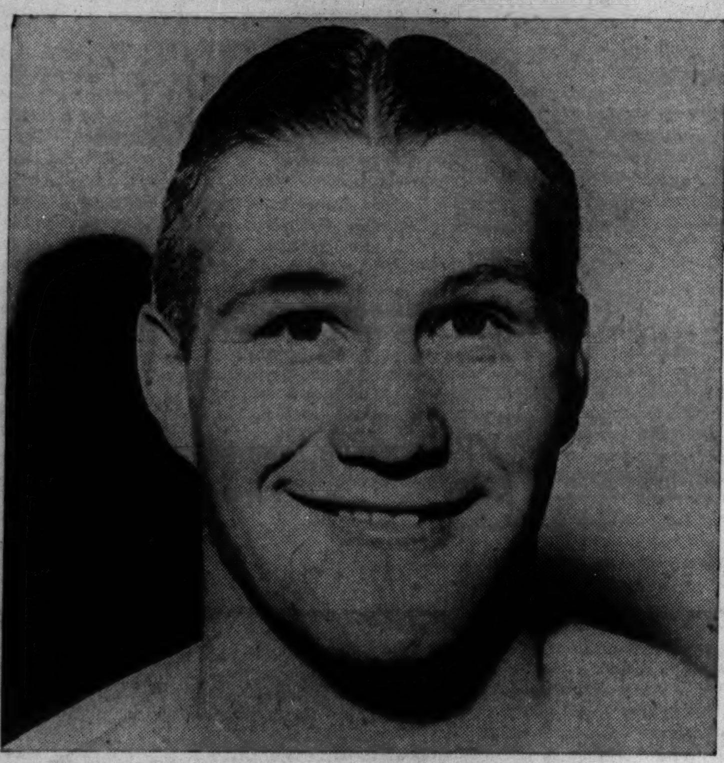
Southern Pines, N. C., March 19 (AP).—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C., increased her lead in the 54 hole mid-south women's golf tournament to 14 strokes by firing a 75 today. Combined with her 76 of yesterday, this gave Mrs. Page a 36 hole total of 151.

Deborah Verry of Worcester, Mass., who got an 82 today, rated second temporarily with 165.

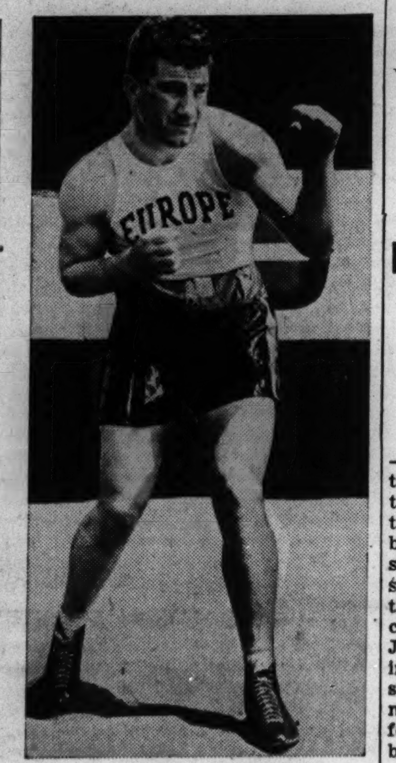
Helen Waring of Pinehurst scored an 82 which, with her yesterday's 85, gave her 167. Mrs. George Corcoran of Greensboro trailed Miss Waring by one stroke.

THE GUMPS—CAESAR IS HERSELF AGAIN

In Ring Drama Tonight 5,000 Miles Away



Rome—like Chicago, New York, and other American cities and towns—thrills to the action of amateur boxers. Tonight, in Italy's capital, eager youngsters from Europe's neutral nations will seek places on the team that will invade Chicago April 10 to meet the Chicagoland Golden Gloves champions. Erik Agren of Sweden (above) hopes to win the welterweight title. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



Nemesio Lazzari of Italy, heavyweight standard bearer of the 1939 European team which beat the Chicagoans, 5-3, hopes to return in the same role.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, March 19.—Broadway today is shouting the praises of Ray Robinson, 19 year old New York tap dancer who last night knocked out Chicago's Tony Ancona to win the intercity Golden Gloves lightweight championship in Madison Square Garden. . . . Others are raving about the paralyzing punch of Cyclone Charley Williams, heavyweight who clinched a tie score for New York by stopping Ernest Nordman, Chicago bakery goods salesman, in the next to the last bout of a thrill studded show. . . . Some are talking about the polished performance of James Richie, Chicago's light heavyweight champion, who whipped a truck driver named Andy Sfrisi all the way from here to Richie's native St. Louis. . . . But give me a couple of Chicago welterweights who had what it takes when the going was toughest. . . . I refer to Anthony Jones, coffee salesman from Springfield, and Savior Canadeo from the C. Y. O., who recently completed a four year science course at St. Norbert college, De Pere, Wis. . . . Their determination in the face of odds which seemed insurmountable enabled Chicago to gain a tie score and preserve a record that goes back to 1934 without a defeat by New York.

It was 10 o'clock in the evening and the 18,823 fans who jammed the Garden were enjoying a 15 minute intermission from firing that made the western front a country churchyard in comparison. . . . New York was ahead, six bouts to two. . . . Fans who had waited six years to see Pop Knickerbocker's Golden Glovers win from Chicago were jubilant. . . . It was all over but the shouting. . . . Some of Chicago's strongest fighters—Harold Dade, Roy Brown, Roy Lewis, Tony Ancona, and Eddie O'Connell—had fallen. . . . Handlers of the New York team were predicting the most one sided victory in the history of intercity competition. . . . Jones and Canadeo were sitting on a bench near Chicago's corner waiting for the battle to resume. . . . "Not discouraged?" we asked as the boys sat there with their chins resting on their gloves. . . . And as a word of cheer we added, "Say, we remember in 1935 New York was leading, 5 to 3, at the halfway mark and our fellows won the next eight straight to roll up a score of 11 to 5." . . . Canadeo, captain of the team, stood up and countered with "You don't think for a minute we have quit, do you? This is the gamest bunch I ever have worked with and everybody will know it before this show is over." . . . Jones, a colored lad with a beautiful physique, chimed in, "Quit? We're not built that way. I'm next in the ring and I'm going to start a rally that will change the tide of this match!"

Let it be etched in stone that Canadeo and Jones made good their promises. . . . They touched off a spark that ignited the rest of the Chicago squad. . . . When the two welterweight bouts were over Chicago had pulled up to 6 to 4 and from there on it was a battle for the championship. . . . The 8 to 8 score probably was a fair index to the comparative strength of the squads drilled by Spike Webb, imported from the United States Naval academy to handle the New Yorkers, and Johnny Behr of Chicago, who has demonstrated thru the years that America has no better coach of amateur boxers.

The New York squad disbanded last night. . . . Chicago's representatives are enjoying sightseeing tours and a Broadway show today and then will move on to Washington for two days' rest before returning home. . . . On March 29 they will resume training for the climactic event of the 1940 schedule, the international bouts with the champions of Europe's neutral countries in Chicago Stadium, April 10. . . . There still is considerable work to be done if our boys expect to defeat the best fighters from Italy, Sweden, Norway, and Hungary, a combination strong enough to win last year's match, 5 to 3. . . . Coach Behr learned last night how men behave under heavy fire such as they will encounter from Europe. . . . There are certain to be some radical changes in personnel.

Ten Years Ago Today—The Cubs lost to Portland, 7 to 6, in 11 innings. . . . The North Central association of colleges and secondary schools adopted a resolution which would threaten with expulsion any college or university promoting a national basketball tournament. . . . The White Sox whipped the University of Texas, 5 to 1.

Hogan's 66 Ties Record at Pinehurst

Pinehurst, N. C., March 19 (AP).—Ben Hogan, slight Texas-born golf pro, came within six inches of setting a new competitive course record today when he shot a six-under-par 66 that gave him the first round lead in the North-South open golf championship by a margin of three strokes.

Hogan, who plays out of White Plains, N. Y., came to the 17th tee of Pinehurst's testing No. 2 course needing two pars for that 66. His iron shot dropped the ball onto the green, 186 yards away, 15 feet hole-high to the right.

Sinking that putt would have put him seven under par, but the ball dropped six inches short. He got a par 3 there and par 4 on the 18th, and thus tied the competitive course mark set up in the second round of last year's tournament by Harry Cooper.

Hogan, who stands second in the list of the season's money winners, came in three shots ahead of another little man, Paul Runyan.

SOX SCORE FIFTH IN ROW, THANKS TO ROOKIES' AID

Lead Two Rallies That Down Pirates, 9-7.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Bernardino, Cal., March 19—James Dykes' White Sox shock troops rendered valuable aid again this afternoon. Put to work with the score against them, the kids bore down and apparently put themselves on easy street with a five run splurge in the sixth. But a bit later they were pulled back into a tie because of a flurry on the part of Johnny Rigney, so they rallied again in the ninth and took a 9 to 7 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates. It marked the fifth triumph in a row for the Chicagoans, four of them over big league opposition.

Dykes didn't find much happiness in the doings of the three pitchers. Bill Dietrich started strong, but just before vanishing in the third was riddled with a series of hits netting four runs. Harry Boyles was cut down to two innings, having a tough time, but allowing only one run. Then Rigney took charge in the sixth, but he was belted solidly for the tying runs in the eighth and had two Pirates on the bases when the battle ended.

The Rookies Deliver.

The first achievement of the shock troops came in the sixth. Youths like Don Kolloway, Lew Leiter, Hal Cromer, the collegian; Frank Metha, and Ken Silvestri [who is a shock trooper with an alumnus rating] gave portly Max Butcher something to think about.

When the Sox reached the ninth they found the Pirates were employing Truett Sewell to keep the 7 to 7 tie intact. Sewell's first throwing effort netted a pass for Larry Rosenthal. Cromer drove the ball off the shins of Bill Brubaker, playing first base. Before Bill could recover his bearings Cromer was on second and Rosenthal on third. A bit later Metha dropped a single in short center and Fern Bell booted the ball around, so Cromer followed Rosenthal across the plate. This proved an ample margin for Rigney.

Three Hits Net a Run.

The Sox made three hits in the second off Klinger, one run scoring. Appling singled to left and after Wright flied out, Kennedy singled to center and Tresh singled to left to score Appling.

The Sox added another in the third. Singles by Hayes and Kuhel and Kreevich's safe bunt loaded the bases with none out. This furnished Julius Solters with a golden opportunity to reveal some cleanup talent but instead he grounded into a double play, Hayes scoring.

Dietrich's unhappy third inning started with an out after which he hit Davis in the ribs. Klinger flied to Kreevich for the second out. Then Handley singled and Fletcher walked, filling the bases. After getting the count down to three and two, Paul Waner singled to right and all the runners, who had started to move as soon as the ball was pitched, crossed

Rangers Crush Bruins in First Semi-Final Game, 4-0

New York, March 19 (AP).—The New York Rangers, oversupplied with power and speed, gave the Boston Bruins a 4 to 0 drubbing tonight in the opening of their best of seven games Stanley cup semi-final playoffs.

The Bruins, National Hockey league champions and defending cup holders, had not been so thoroly outplayed in two seasons. A crowd of 14,421 saw the contest.

The series moves to Boston for the second game Thursday night and the third Sunday night.

For one period they battled evenly. Then midway thru the second period the Rangers struck. Phil Watson, standing unchecked at the goal mouth and waiting for the pass Dutch Hiller sent thru Defenseman Dit Clapper, toyed briefly with Goalie Frank Brimsek and smashed the puck home. Two minutes later, altho the Rangers were a man short thru a penalty, Alex Shibicky fired a hard shot past Brimsek's left arm.

M. Colville Scores Two.

In the third period Mac Colville, aided once by Neil Colville and once by Shibicky, punched in two goals. One of Mac's goals, too, was scored while the Rangers were shorthanded.

Only four times in the 60 minutes' play, punctuated with six penalties to each club, did the Bruins come close and then Dave Kerr in the Ranger goal was master of the situation. Lineups:

WINGS, 2; AMERICANS, 1

Detroit, Mich., March 19 (AP).—A goal by Syd Howe after 25 seconds of a sudden death overtime period gave the Detroit Red Wings a 2 to 1 victory over the New York Americans in the first of their best of three game series in the Stanley Cup play-offs here tonight.

Howe's shot cought the Americans completely by surprise. It broke a 1 to 1 deadlock that had stood thruout the third period in which the Red Wings peppered Goalie Earl Robertson unmercifully with shots.

Too Much Speed for Goalie.

Robertson, hero of the 1937 Stanley Cup play-offs as a Detroit goalie, never had a chance as Howe skated in fast, slithering in and out of the defense, and rifling the puck into the net.

For three periods both teams played a bruising, furious game. Robertson turned aside all of the Red Wings' efforts after they had tied the score early in the second period and in the third kept his team in the game only by amazing saves.

Americans Score First.

The Americans scored first, 40 seconds before the first period ended, on a goal by Johnny Gagnon, 150 pound veteran. Gagnon took the puck from Tom Anderson at the blue line at top speed and sent a 20 foot shot which Goalie Cecil [Tiny] Thompson had no chance to stop.

With Harvey [Busher] Jackson, New York left wing, in the penalty box, Detroit sent five forwards down the ice just after the second period opened and tied the score on an easy shot by Alex Motter. Lineups:

Rains Come to Wrigley Field; Cubs, A's Rest

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 19.—A shower fell on Wrigley field here this noon. There was no precipitation elsewhere in Los Angeles but the shower caused the Cub-Athletics' game to be canceled.

Most disappointed of those affected by the blackout was Jerome [Seabiscuit] Dean who is eager to start training for the comeback. Diz is determined to surpass last year's victory total of six. He can hardly wait to get in shape.

Thanks to his determination, Diz wasn't entirely thwarted by the cancellation. By actual count he threw six times to Catcher Robert Collins. Robert felt no soreness in the left palm following the ordeal but members of the team said Diz appeared to have as much stuff as he had at any time last season.

Bruised but Not Broken.

Dean walked around the outfield three times, and on one turn broke into something that resembled a jog as he headed into centerfield. He attempted to catch one fungo but fell in the effort and promptly went to the rubbing table for examination by Drs. Andy Lotshaw and Rudolph Lind. A great cheer went up when it was learned Diz had not broken his neck in the spill.

There has been a lot of grumbling among operators of candid X-ray cameras out here this year. Usually the Cubs spend something slightly under $1,000,000 on X-rays during the California stay. With Earl Whitehill, Dick Bartell, and several other X-ray patrons missing and Dean virtually missing, there had been almost no X-raying this spring until this morning when Phil Cavarretta posed for several shots.

Same Pitchers Today.

Phil was hit by a batted ball Sunday and it was feared that his mended ankle had been affected. It was found that Phil is suffering from nothing except severe bruises as a result of the recent mishap.

The Cubs and the A's are scheduled to meet tomorrow. The pitchers who were to have pitched today are due to go tomorrow. They are Dick Bass, Ken Raffensberger, and Larry French for the Cubs, and Lee Ross, Elon Hogsett, and Johnny Babich for the Athletics.

TORONTO, Ont., March 19 (AP).—Chicago's Blackhawks notched two goals in the opening period of their Stanley Cup hockey playoff opener against the Toronto Maple Leafs tonight. But that ended their production for the evening. The Leafs dented the Hawks' nets twice in the third period, then went on to register the deciding goal in the sudden death overtime session, winning, 3 to 2.

Sylvanus Apps.

The Maple Leafs' stirring comeback brought cheers from the 13,078 spectators. Their hero tonight was Sylvanus Apps of Paris, Ont., who stroked in the winning goal after 6 minutes and 35 seconds of overtime play. He also scored the tying point.

Hawks Short at Finish.

Chicago was a man short when Apps made his bold stroke, Joe Cooper having served all but 8 seconds of his sentence in the penalty box. Red Heron of Toronto had just returned from doing penance when Bob Davidson handed the puck to Apps at the Hawks' blue line. The Toronto center shifted around the defense and headed for the enemy goal. He moved as if to round the net, but instead spanked the disc past Goalie Paul Goodman's skate into a corner of the cage.

Apps undoubtedly strengthened his political position by his last minute heroics. He is a candidate for parliament in next week's election. But he will take time off from his speechmaking to accompany the Leafs to Chicago for Thursday night's second game of the series in the Stadium. If a third game is necessary the rivals will battle in the Canadian capital Saturday night.

Hawks Click Twice.

For a time it appeared the history of Chicago's meeting with Toronto in the 1938 series was to be rewritten. In the finals that year the Hawks, underdogs in the betting, outfought and outplayed the Leafs to win the cup.

This time the Chicagoans struck quickly. Art Wiebe, returning to the Chicago defense after a long absence because of injuries, sped down the center and sent a backhand shot past Goalie Turk Broda after two minutes and 30 seconds of play.

Just before the first period ended, and while his team was short a man, Mush March made the Chicago advantage 2 to 0, stealing the puck from Sweeney Schriner and speeding in from the Toronto blue line to score.

Goodman Finally Yields.

Thruout the second period the Leafs bore down. Most of their plays lacked cohesion, however, and Capt. Earl Seibert and Goodman broke up the best of them. Then Jack Church, Toronto defense man, rallied his teammates with a series of charges that finally brought a goal at 1:45 of the third. He lost the puck behind the Chicago cage, retrieved it, and came out to spank it past Goodman on a carom shot off Wiebe's skates.

The play that tied the score went the length of the ice, Bingo Kampman starting it and Davidson carrying it along with a pass from the Chicago blue line to Gordon Drillon. It was just a 10 foot pass from there to Apps, who did the rest as Goodman fell.

Hawks Protest a Decision.

In the dying moments of the third period Toronto almost scored again when Cooper drew a penalty. The Leaf power play was turned on and twice the puck lay beside the prostrate Goodman with no one to drive it home.

The Hawks almost took down the decision early in the play-off period when March sped away from a Toronto attack and was closing, but Heron skated back to trip him and draw a penalty that was followed quickly by the disastrous one to Cooper. The Hawks protested that a penalty shot should have been awarded on Heron's violation.

GLOVERS SEE THE SIGHTS AND TALK OVER A BIG RALLY

Feel They Really Should Have Beaten New York.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 19.—Bring on those Europeans. We're ready for them.

While the Chicago Golden Gloves boys today celebrated their moral triumph over New York they also turned their thoughts toward the international bouts April 10 with the winners of the European tournament to be held tomorrow in Rome.

Few in the capacity throng of more than 18,000 in Madison Square Garden last night thought Chicago ever could pull up on equal terms with the New Yorkers. When New York led 6 to 2 at the intermission, the western cause seemed hopeless.

Five Champions Win.

But a brilliant, courageous rally, which swept six of the last eight bouts and was climaxed by Cornelius Young's stirring victory over Ted Wint, deadlocked the score. It also preserved Chicago's spectacular record in intercity Golden Gloves competition. New York has not whipped Chicago since 1934.

Last year the European team won its first victory in the International Golden Gloves rivalry, 5 to 3. It was the eighth set of matches. Chicago now is in better shape for the 1940 invaders from Europe, for last night five of Chicago's eight champions won from the eastern team. Last year, while Chicago was victorious over New York, 9 to 7, six of those victories were won by alternates.

In other words, Chicago's champions a year ago, as a group, were beaten by New York. That, perhaps, was the explanation for Europe's first victory.

Some of our best boxers were whipped last night. But in Golden Gloves, as in all sports, after condolences, thoughts center on the victors. Of Chicago's champions, Jimmy Joyce, 118 pounds; Savior Canadeo, 147 pounds, and captain of the team; Joe Maxin, 160 pounds; Jimmy Richie, 175 pounds, and Cornelius Young, heavyweight, won last night. By their victories they are now favorites for places on the team which hopes to repel the European invasion.

Team Talks It Over.

Unfortunately, perhaps, for Shelton Bell and Anthony Jones, other victors, the Chicago champions in their respective weights also won. Leon Haire, Chicago's alternate in the 126 pound class, was Chicago's other winner. Roy Lewis, the champion, was beaten by Frankie Donato, but this bout was as close as the concluding battle which finally pulled Chicago to a tie.

The Chicago squad returned to the hotel last night for a steak dinner shortly after midnight. There the boys relaxed in a private dining room, explained defeat and victory, received congratulations and sympathy.

The boys felt they might have won particularly if Eddie O'Connell had received proper consideration from the officials. Eddie easily could have been given the decision over Steve Kukol. And Otto Stowe, Chicago's middleweight alternate, was far ahead of John Nojunos only to lose before the last minute rally of the New Yorker.

Chicago Is Far Ahead.

Chicago's rally, however, was so satisfying that the tie score was accepted as victory even by the thousands who had hoped for New York's first victory in six years. This is the third tie in the intercity rivalry. In 1928 in Chicago's Coliseum the teams fought to a draw. In 1936 in the Garden the rivals again tied. The 1938 Chicago victory in New York is principally responsible for the seven to three margin our teams hold over Manhattan. Chicago also holds the record for the most overwhelming victory, 13 to 3, achieved by the 1931 squad.

The Chicagoans still were jubilant this morning when they gathered for breakfast at 9 o'clock preliminary to starting the morning sightseeing tour from the Battery to the Bronx. All were present except Shelton Bell and Harry O'Dell. Both left after the bouts. Bell returned to his classes at Wilberforce university while O'Dell went to Amsterdam, N. Y., his home, and from there returns to Michigan State college.

Ancona Beaten Again.

The boxers thought Tony Ancona might have stopped Ray Robinson, who eventually won by a knockout, if he had been able to follow up his first round attack that staggered the colorful New Yorker. Robinson packed too much power for the Detroit lad, however, and so for a second year Ancona lost to him.

Too much praise can not be given Ernie Nordman, who came to the Chicago squad from Omaha, Neb. Nordman kept pitching but his southpaw opponent had the winning punch. The strange circumstance is that in a previous meeting Nordman had taken a decision from this Charles Williams. What Bill Petersen, who lost to Young in Chicago's finals in the Coliseum, might have done will never be known for the husky youngster, suffering from a cold, did not work out in New York.

This afternoon the boys went from the Empire State building to the Statue of Liberty with in-between stops. In the evening they attended a Broadway show before boarding the train for Washington, D. C. The team will arrive in Chicago Friday morning.

3 RECORDS FALL IN GOLD COAST BOWLING LEAGUE

Three highs for the season were set in Gold Coast Major league bowling competition last night. The Joseph L. Gills, runners-up to the Budweisers in the league standing, figured in two of the records as they won two games from the Buds. Bill Hargadon of the Gills set an individual record with games of 253, 255, and 280 for a 788 series, and the Gills team set the second when they rolled a 1,237 game—which also is believed to be the best game recorded in the state this year. The Kruse Service Stations got the third, a 3,372 series on games of 1,146, 1,087, and 1,139. Pat Panzek of the Kruses rolled a 761 series. Scores:

Dog Trainers Prepare for Obedience Test

BY BOB BECKER.

Dobermann-Pinschers, German shepherds, collies, cocker spaniels, boxers, great Danes, springer spaniels, Airedale terriers, and several other breeds already have been entered in the obedience test classes sponsored by THE TRIBUNE at the International Kennel Club of Chicago dog show to be held March 30 and 31 in the International amphitheater.

Mrs. R. W. Poore, secretary of the West Point Training club, and H. E. Crebs, a professional trainer, report that their combined entries alone will total more than 20. Other training clubs and trainers also are putting the finishing touches on their dogs in preparation for the coming tests.

No Fun for George Gessner.

One of the youngest trainers who ever appeared in an obedience test will compete on an equal basis with adults in the International show. He is George Gessner, 11 years old, of Chicago. George has trained a Dobermann named Gessner's Pinnochio. He will place it in competition for the first time in the Novice A class, entries for which are well ahead of all other classes combined.

Entries already received for this class include Dobermann-Pinschers owned by Mrs. Dorothy Blount of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stiska of Chicago, Roy Howard of Palos Park, W. A. Longshaw of Berwyn, and Mrs. Helen Crebs of Oaklawn; great Danes owned by C. V. Snyder of Chicago and C. F. Ffolliott of Wheaton; cocker spaniels owned by G. C. Smith of Elmhurst and Walter Kuhn of Chicago; a springer owned by B. W. Satterlee of Chicago; a boxer owned by D. E. Kasson of Western Springs, and an Airedale owned by J. L. Lynch, Chicago.

Award 15 Trophies.

Thirteen Tribune trophies will be awarded to winners in the five obedience classes. Three will be given to the owners of dogs placing first, second and third in Novice A, Novice B, Open A, and Open B, and one will be given to the owner whose dog receives the highest rating in the utility class.

The final deadline for entering dogs in the obedience classes and for the regular bench show classes is 6 o'clock Saturday evening. Persons who desire to enter dogs or get further information concerning the show should contact William Ogilvie, 840 Exchange avenue, Union Stock Yards, Chicago.

Miama, Fla., March 19 (AP).—Napper Tandy, owned by Philip Schwartz, a rank outsider in the field of five, raced to victory by three-quarters of a length in the St. Augustine purse at Tropical Park today. Supreme Sir, the favorite, finished last.

Irving Anderson, who injured a leg in a triple spill Saturday, guided the winner over the mile and 70 yards route in 1:42 3-5. The Shady Brook farm's Visgoth took second by a half length with James Emery's Dolly Val third. The winner paid $12.20 for $2.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Tiff Denton beat Art Thurnblad, 50-42, in 65 innings.
Johnny Layton beat Welker Cochran, 50-47, in 58 innings.
Jake Schaefer beat Art Rubin, 50-34, in 57 innings.

TODAY'S GAMES.

1:30 p. m.—Otto Reiselt vs. Arthur Rubin.
3 p. m.—Joe Chamaco vs. Jake Schaefer.
8 p. m.—Allen Hall vs. Arthur Thurnblad.
9:30 p. m.—Willie Hoppe vs. Jay Bozeman.

Jay Bozeman has appointed himself as the official chaser after Willie Hoppe, who threatens to make a one man race of the world three-cushion tournament in progress at Bensinger's South Wabash avenue arena. The youngster from Vallejo, Cal., last night put Joe Chamaco, the national champion from Mexico City, in his place, scoring a 50 to 29 triumph in 40 innings.

Bozeman's quick triumph uprooted Chamaco from second place and Jay took over the spot with five victories and two defeats. Tonight Bozeman meets Hoppe cue to cue. The suave New Yorker has been successful in six consecutive matches. It is the first crucial contest that has developed between the leaders.

Bozeman Runs Six.

Bozeman asserted his superiority from the start against Chamaco, running five in the third inning. He clicked six in the seventeenth and from then on it was just a question of how long it would last.

Jake Schaefer of Cleveland scored his fifth victory in eight starts in the opening evening game, defeating Arthur Rubin, eastern title holder, 50 to 34. Jake completed his string in 57 innings and had the game's high run, a six.

The triumph put Schaefer in fourth place. It was Rubin's seventh defeat. His only triumph was scored over Welker Cochran early in the tournament.

Cochran Suffers Third Loss.

Cochran encountered further difficulties in his defense of the world title when he lost his third match in seven starts in an afternoon contest. His conqueror was Johnny Layton, the Missouri redhead. The score was 50 to 47 in 58 innings. It was Layton's fourth victory in eight games. In the afternoon opener Art Thurnblad of Kenosha, Wis., the 1931 champion, was beaten by Tiff Denton, Kansas City veteran, 50 to 42. It was a long drawn out battle that required 65 innings. Thurnblad lost eighth place to Denton.

ANGEL WILL MEET DUSEK TONIGHT ON COLISEUM MAT

French Wrestler Making His Chicago Debut.

Ha! Victory

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 19 [Special].—The Angel defeated Leo Lefebvre, 262 pound wrestler, in 6 minutes tonight to score his 30th consecutive victory in the United States. It was Lefebvre's third defeat at the hands of the Angel.

The Angel, the French freak, will make his Chicago wrestling début in a one hour bout against Rudy Dusek in the Coliseum, 15th street and Wabash avenue, tonight. It will be their second meeting, the Angel, whose real name is Maurice Tillet, having thrown the Omaha heavyweight in short order in New York last January.

Indications are, however, that the probable result is of small import. Fans have been flocking to the ticket offices in droves to view in person the 36 year old Frenchman, who has been called more grotesque than Boris Karloff, bogey man of the movies.

31st Match in United States.

The Angel will be making his 31st appearance in this country against Dusek. He remains undefeated. His victims include Leo Lefebvre, Frank Sexton, Joe Cox, and Gino Garibaldi.

Not since Primo Carnera, the freak heavyweight boxer, went on tour in this country a few years ago has a sports character attracted as much attention as the Angel.

There is a contrast between the two men, however. Carnera's outstanding characteristic was his unusual height of 6 feet 7 inches, while Tillet is only 5 feet 8¾ inches tall. At the same time, Maurice outweighs Carnera, whose fighting poundage was 264, by 10 pounds.

Visits Museum Today.

Tillet will arrive this morning from a St. Louis engagement to keep an appointment with Henry Field, curator at the Field museum. After an examination there, Maurice will head for the Illinois Athletic commission to be weighed and undergo a medical examination for tonight's match.

Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein, west side heavyweight, will meet Ole Olson of Milwaukee in a secondary feature, set for 30 minutes. Other matches will bring together Louis Thesz and Hans Kampfer, Leo Lefebvre and Seeli Samara, and Rudy Kay and Karl Pojello.

Amateur boxing shows will be held tonight in Community house, Lincoln and Pine streets in Winnetka, and the Johnny Coulon club, 1154 East 63d street. Eight fights and a wrestling bout are scheduled in Community house. Lou Angelucci, city Golden Gloves middleweight champion, is paired with Johnny Crane in a five round event. Additional matches include those between Joe Dupont, city Golden Gloves featherweight winner, and Andy Sterling; Stanley Murczek, 1940 Illinois Athletic club welterweight titleholder, and Arthur Reese, and Jack Fargo, Winnetka heavyweight, and Hosmar Wheat. The show is being held under the direction of Al Eckert and Dick Mastro. Boy Scout troop No. 585 is sponsoring the card in the Coulon gymnasium. Bob Dorgan, south side Golden Gloves qualifier, will oppose Christo Martin of Englewood. Vernel Williams, Gary Golden Gloves sectional champion, meets Jackie Cook of the south side.

San Antonio, Tex., March 19 (AP).—Three runs scored without a hit in the first inning gave the St. Louis Browns a 6 to 4 victory over the Toledo Mudhens of the American association today.

After three consecutive walks filled the bases, two infield outs and an error forced in the tallies. Toledo, Browns' farm club, tied the score in the first of the third but Sig Gryska put the Browns ahead in the last of that inning, clouting a home run with a man on base. Score:

DODGERS WIN ON HOMER.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 19 (AP).—Cookie Lavagetto smashed out an eighth inning homer with the bags loaded to give the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5 to 4 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals today. For six innings the two clubs were tangled in a scoreless tie, then the Cards got away to a one run lead. But, after the Cookie connected, the Redbirds couldn't quite recover, tho they scored three times in their half of the same inning.

Curt Davis and Clyde Shoun pitched exceptionally well for the Cards in the early innings, as did Whit Wyatt for the Dodgers. Bob Bowman was the victim of Lavagetto's blow. Score:

The two let the Bees down with six hits—all singles. Breuer pitched five innings and Reis four.

The game was scoreless until the seventh when the Bees' defense collapsed and the Yanks scored all their runs, their hitting featured by a 420 foot triple by Babe Dahlgren. Score:

MOON MULLINS—NIGHT FLIGHT

A Smoke Signal Warns of Indians on Basket Warpath

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

A smoke signal went up from Loyola university's athletic department yesterday afternoon. Many moons ago, when Chicago was a frontier outpost, a similar message along the sandy banks of Lake Michigan warned of the approach of a hostile tribe of Pottawatomies. But yesterday's bonfire designated the return of a friendly little band of Indians—the St. Francis Missions from the Rosebud reservation of South Dakota.

These Indians will not be equipped with tomahawks. Their only weapon will be a basketball, and they will attempt to show 31 of the nation's leading prep quintets that they are just as adept with it as their forefathers were with bows and arrows when the National Catholic tournament opens in Loyola university gymnasium next Wednesday.

They'll Camp in Hotel.

Indian scouts fled to various corners of the north side as the brisk March winds moved the smoke signal skyward. Wary hotel managers, elevator operators, restaurant owners, and taxicab drivers immediately went to work and their preparations to receive the redmen will be as great as the days when Capt. William Wells and other Chicago pioneer settlers awaited calling cards from the Pottawatomies, Winnebagos, Miamis, or Kickapoos.

The scouts brought tales of the Indians' tactics to Edward Schneider and John Hughes, the voices of Loyola university, and the shuddering pair started plans to erect a tepee on the school campus near the lake shore. However, the Indians, members of the Sioux tribe, will be quartered in a North Michigan avenue hotel, an arrow flight from the site of old Fort Dearborn, which fell to the Pottawatomies in the massacre of Aug. 15, 1812.

The Braves Like Elevators.

The stories of the Indians have made them the most colorful group in the tournament for several years. It was a few seasons ago when a north side hotel faced trouble with its elevator operators because the Indians forced them to ride from the top floor to the bottom almost constantly. There's another tale of the Indians building a fire in their chilly hotel room, but investigation later revealed a Chicago newspaperman prompted their act, informing the Indians it was customary to get kindling wood and start a fire in a hotel room when temperatures were low.

Another report on the conduct of the Indians yesterday came from the Rev. Edward Wiatrak, a member of St. Ignatius High school's brilliant quintet in the season of 1922-'23. Father Wiatrak last year coached the Arapahoe Indian team from St. Stephen's Mission in Wyoming. Now a teacher and basketball coach at St. Ignatius High school in Cleveland, O., Father Wiatrak sent the following communication to Indian Agents Schneider and Hughes:

Comics vs. Sky Line.

"We started out from the mission in two automobiles a week before the Loyola tournament last year and played games en route to Chicago. In Cheyenne, Wyo., the Indians saw white men wearing sun glasses. The next day on the road each wore brown glasses and it was a Herculean task to have them remove the glasses day or night. They were instructed to get out of the cars and stretch when stops were made for fuel, but at each gasoline station they would step out and then search for benches or chairs to sit down.

"As we arrived in Chicago after driving 1,532 miles, I proudly pointed to our famous skyline and began speaking about beautiful Chicago. When I turned around and looked into the back of the car the Indians were reading comic sections of newspapers purchased along the road. There was snow on the ground in Chicago, but those Indians, Martin Fast Horse, James Thunder Bird, Ben Big Eagle, Ambrose One Stall, Daniel Yellow Otter, and Francis Lone Bear, wore white summer shoes."

There are many other tales in the books of the scouts, but it's a different story when the Indians step out on the basketball court. Their long, accurate shots have thrilled thousands in Loyola's meet, and they'll be seeking a few basketball scalps come Wednesday night.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.

Bruins, 46; Washington, 36.
Harlem, 34; Syracuse, 24.

The Chicago Bruins and the Harlem Globetrotters, a Negro team from Seattle, Wash., will battle for the championship and the major share of the $15,000 prize money in the finals of the second annual national professional basketball tournament in the Madison armory tonight. They will meet at 9:30 p. m., the title game being preceded at 8:30 by a meeting of last night's losers—the Syracuse Reds and the Washington Heurichs—for third place.

Five thousand fans saw the Bruins whip Washington last night, 46 to 36, just after the Globetrotters had conquered the Syracuse, N. Y., Reds, 34 to 24, in the semi-finals.

The Bruins took an early 5 to 1 lead, but trailed, 11 to 15, at the end of the first quarter, and 21 to 24 at the half. As the second half opened Wibs Kautz, star of the tournament to date, scored from the field and Elmer Johnson followed suit to give the Bruins a 25 to 24 lead. They never were headed thereafter.

The Bruins' chances in the final suffered a blow when Mike Novak turned his ankle in the fourth period and was forced out. His successor, Vince McGowan, however, contributed four field goals in his brief period of service. Lineups:

the plate. Vaughan scratched a hit to Kennedy and Rizzo shot a line single into left, scoring Waner.

It didn't take Boyles long to get himself tangled with troubles in the fourth. Young doubled to left and Davis singled to right, scoring Gustine, who ran for Young. Schultz batted for Klinger and singled. Boyles managed to turn back the next two batters but loaded the bases with a pass to P. Waner, bringing up Vaughan, who was kind enough to sail a fly into Solters' hands.

Butcher's sixth inning troubles began with a single by Cromer. Webb fanned but Wright singled. Metha thumped a two bagger into left, Cromer scoring. Turner slapped a nice roller to Parker but the ball trickled thru the pro footballer, Wright and Metha scoring. Turner moved to third on a wild pitch and came home on a single by Silvestri, who batted for Boyles. Silvestri worked around to the plate on singles by Kolloway and Leiter.

Rigney Loses Lead.

Rigney was stung for three hits in the eighth, two runs going across to tie the score. Young beat out a roller toward third and after Bell had been retired, Gustine singled. Chuck Klein batted for Susce and singled, Yount scoring and Gustine going to third from where he counted a moment later on a fly ball dispatched to Cromer by Ray Mueller.

The Sox will exhibit in their own Pasadena camp tomorrow, the Pirates assisting in the festivities.

Godoy Ranked No. 1 by N.B.A.; So Is Milt Aron

Milwaukee, Wis., March 19 (AP).—Arturo Godoy, Chilean heavyweight who came out of obscurity to go 15 rounds with Joe Louis, heavyweight champion, today replaced Tony Galento as the National Boxing association's choice as No. 1 contender for the Brown Bomber's title.

Galento dropped to second place among the heavyweight contenders, followed in order by Bob Pastor, Lou Nova, Tommy Farr, and Max Baer. The committee placed Johnny Paycheck, Louis' next foe, in eighth place.

Champions and No. 1 contenders in other divisions, respectively, were rated as follows: Light heavyweights, Billy Conn and Gus Lesnevich; middleweights, Al Hostak and Ceferino Garcia; welterweights, Henry Armstrong and Milt Aron; bantamweights, George Pace and Lou Salica; flyweights, Little Dado and Enrico Urbinati.

Biggest jump was by Aron, from eighth place to first among welter contenders, by knocking out Fritzie Zivic. Salica got his rating by fighting a draw wth Pace.

LACK OF AIR LANE MAY STYMIE F-M, INVENTOR WARNS

It's War with Television, He Tells FCC.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 19.—The broadcasting art, thru the perfection of frequency modulation, is on the verge of its greatest development, Maj. Edwin H. Armstrong, Columbia university professor who invented the new high fidelity and staticless system, testified today.

Maj. Armstrong occupied the witness stand for the second day of hearings before the Federal Communications commission to determine the future of the system he developed. He warned that frequency modulation may be stymied unless some of the bands now allocated to television are assigned to F-M so that it may have an opportunity to expand its services.

This expression by Armstrong followed questioning by Commissioner T. A. M. Craven who asked whether Armstrong did not know that other services of radio—aviation among them—felt that they, too, needed additional allocations in the radio spectrum. Maj. Armstrong replied that he did not know about the requirements of aviation.

Finds Conflict with Television.

"But this is not a conflict with aviation radio," he said. "The conflict here is between frequency modulation and the large assignments to television. Television doesn't promise much for years to come. Frequency modulation is ready now."

Earlier Chairman James Lawrence Fly had raised the question of whether it is too early to allocate substantial additional channels to F-M. He suggested that perhaps it would be wiser for the future of F-M itself if the F-M Broadcasters, Inc., organization of the F-M interests, were to suggest a feasible program of activity before settling the future of the new system.

Maj. Armstrong's reply to this suggestion was that F-M is fully ready now, as would be demonstrated by testimony of FMBI. W-G-N, which, along with almost 100 other applicants, has an application pending for an F-M license, is a member of FMBI.

"If the commission had granted my request for five megacycles for frequency modulation in 1936," Maj. Armstrong continued, "we would not be here arguing today."

Standard Broadcasting Considered.

Much of today's testimony was devoted to consideration of what F-M would do to standard broadcasting—that is, broadcasting on the 550 to 1,600 kilocycle band—and to present transmitter and receiver equipment.

Maj. Armstrong declared that opening up frequency modulation as a regular service, contrasted with the present experimental service, immediately would have the effect of reducing congestion in the standard broadcast band.

There will be no immediate or overnight change in the present radio pattern, however, he said. The chances are, he added, that for some time a prospective set buyer may ask for a receiver that will have an F-M band in addition to the standard facilities.

Just Another Push Button.

"Frequency modulation," he told the commission, "will mean just another push button—or a switch such as is used for overseas listening."

Further questioning brought out that Armstrong received $330,000 for the rights to his superheterodyne and regenerative circuits, and $425,000 for his super-regenerative system. Practically all of this, he testified, had been plowed back into further radio researches.

His agreement with manufacturers, he said, provides that they pay him a lump sum—the maximum being $25,000—for licenses to make F-M equipment. Royalties for transmitters sold under his patents would run from $300 for a 250 watt station, to $5,000 for a 50 kilowatt station.

Tells Pact with Makers.

For a 10 kilowatt transmitter, which he said would sell for approximately $20,000, the royalty would run $2,000. To licensees, however, who demonstrated to him that they intended to engage in further F-M development and research, Maj. Armstrong said that he had agreed to waive the lump payment for licensing.

Regarding royalties from the manufacture of receivers, the Armstrong agreement with manufacturers provides for payment of 3 per cent of the licensee's selling price of each F-M set marketed in the United States, and 1½ per cent on sets exported. F-M table sets, he said, are available now for around $65, with better fidelity than many standard sets costing more. Combination standard and F-M receivers run from around $145 to $375. Mass production, he said, would greatly reduce these prices.

HARRY I. DALSEY, ARCHITECT, BABY ADVOCATE, DIES

Harry I. Dalsey, Chicago architect, died in Michael Reese hospital yesterday after an illness of three months. He was 49 years old and lived at 5800 North Spaulding avenue.

Mr. Dalsey, a native of Chicago and a graduate of Armour institute, designed many large apartment hotels and buildings here. A bachelor, he achieved wide attention in 1922 when he installed perambulator stalls in a flat building and promised each couple who moved in $25 for each arrival of the stork. "Happy families make happy children," he theorized, "make happy tenants."

Mr. Dalsey was a member of the Illinois Society of Architects and of B'nai B'rith. His mother, Mrs. Lena Dalsey, and several brothers and sisters survive. Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. today in the chapel at 3021 Lawrence avenue. Burial will be in Waldheim cemetery.

FOES OF SILVER BUYING WIN OUT IN HOT BATTLE

Repealer Bill Report Expected Today.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 19.—In a stormy session of the senate banking and currency committee today, the Roosevelt administration endeavored unsuccessfully to sidetrack the Townsend bill to repeal purchase of foreign silver on which the government already has squandered 1 billion dollars to no avail.

Senator Townsend.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, flanked by treasury experts, appeared before the committee and opposed the bill principally on the ground that the decline in the price of silver caused by cessation of American buying would affect adversely Mexico, China, and Canada, from which Washington purchases large amounts of silver. The result, he said, would be a curtailment of purchases of American goods by those countries and an impairment of our friendly relations therewith.

Stalling Tactics Denounced.

Morgenthau suggested that the bill be shelved and the whole silver policy reëxamined in connection with the study of national monetary and banking policy, which the committee has been authorized to make.

Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] then elicited from the chairman, Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], the admission that tho this study was authorized by the senate last summer, the questionnaires with which the inquiry will begin have not been formulated. Wagner said they will be completed tomorrow. Tobey charged that the administration is seeking to stall off the silver repeal to an inquiry that itself is being stalled.

"The administration doesn't want the monetary investigation in a campaign year," said Tobey. "They don't want the truth to come out."

Tobey Bolts Meeting.

At the height of his altercation with Wagner, Tobey, who previously had protested unsuccessfully against holding the session behind closed doors, stormed out of the meeting.

Despite the administration opposition, indications are that the repealer will be reported favorably by the committee at a meeting tomorrow. Of the 20 members, the following 12 indicated they will support the bill: Glass [D., Va.]; Maloney [D., Conn.]; Radcliffe [D., Md.]; Brown [D., Mich.]; Herring [D., Ia.]; Miller [D., Ark.]; Downey [D., Cal.]; Townsend [R., Del.]; Frazier [R., N. D.]; Tobey [R., N. H.]; Danaher [R., Conn.]; Taft [R., O.].

Senator Townsend submitted the following principal arguments against the continued buying of foreign silver:

"[1] It is unnecessary. The monetary base supporting the currency and banking system has expanded alarmingly since the passage of the silver purchase act in 1934, due to gold and silver purchases by the government. The country's gold stock has increased from $7,018,000,000 to $18,300,000,000.

Reserves Swollen Excessively.

"[2] It imperils the future domestic buying power of the dollar. Reserves held in the federal reserve system, swollen by the issuance of gold certificates and silver certificates, are now about $5,877,000,000 in excess of legal requirements.

"[3] It is wasteful of American resources. The purchase of foreign silver by the United States involves the bestowal of buying power on foreigners and, ultimately, the exchange of American goods and services for imported silver. In the last analysis, foreign silver is paid for in American wealth. It would be more in this country's interest to give away American products at home than to exchange them for silver which never can be resold abroad except at a great loss.

"[4] It involves bestowal of benefits abroad without considerations of reciprocity. Under this program, Japan, Russia, Italy, Germany, Nationalist Spain, and Mexico have benefited, while those countries were pursuing policies frowned upon by the American people.

Can't Buy Enough Silver.

"5. There is no prospect of fulfilling the treadmill terms of the silver purchase act of 1934. Despite the purchase of more than 2,200,000,000 ounces of silver since the act was passed, at a cost of more than $1,000,000,000, the inflow of gold has been so great that the silver purchase act today requires further silver purchases, greater in the aggregate than when it was passed in 1934.

"6. The silver purchase act is a demonstrable failure. [a] It has not achieved the objects which its sponsors promised in 1934. It has not raised the world price of silver to $1.29 an ounce. Instead, the world price of silver today is 22 per cent lower than the average price in June, 1934, notwithstanding the fact that the United States treasury today is absorbing the entire domestic production of silver as well as large amounts of foreign offerings, and notwithstanding the fact that the United States has cleaned up all available supplies of old silver in foreign countries. Margarine Tax Hit as Barrier to Free Trade

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—Representatives of the margarine and cottonseed industries contended before the monopoly committee today that multiple state restrictions and taxes on the sale of margarine constituted a major barrier to interstate trade and an economic burden on large consumer and producing groups.

John Moloney, representing the National Cottonseed Products association, and C. H. Janssen, president of the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers, asserted that taxation of margarine and restrictions on its sale served no purpose except to handicap one food product for the benefit of another.

Vast Market Visualized.

Moloney estimated that removal of all restrictions on margarine would open a potential market for 300 or 400 million pounds of cotton oil annually.

Present per capita consumption of 3 pounds annually, he told the committee, might be increased to 8 or 9 pounds. Denmark, the leading dairy country of the world in proportion to its population, had a per capita margarine consumption of 46 pounds annually, he testified.

"With cotton production limited by law," Moloney conceded, "it is not likely that the production of cottonseed oil can be greatly increased."

However, he said that cotton oil now barred from the margarine market and being forced into other outlets, such as shortening, salad oil, and salad dressing, would be available for margarine if the restrictions were lifted.

No Justification for Laws.

Janssen told the committee there was no "basis in our fundamental law, in reason or in common sense on which we can justify any legislative act that would close commerce to one product of agriculture to benefit another."

"The evidence," he added, "overwhelmingly supports the assertion that state laws, with their excise, license and use taxes and regulatory restrictions, are destructive of free trade.

EARLY RETURNS SHOW INCREASE OF 25 PCT. IN INCOME TAX RECEIPTS

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—Early returns on federal income tax collections today showed a 26 per cent increase over last year. The treasury disclosed that $319,090,247 of income taxes were recorded on the treasury books on March 16, with some of the heaviest collections yet to be reported by regional offices. On the same date last year collections amounted to $253,038,051.

In March, 1939, collections recorded in the first 16 days of the month were approximately half the $505,000,000 received during the whole month. If this year's March 16 returns are doubled at the end of the month, collections will total $638,000,000.

Since the current returns were based on 1939 incomes, officials said the larger returns reflected better business of that year. Another factor was federal taxation, for the first time, of salaries of state and local government employés.

F. F. DAVENPORT JOINS BOARD OF J. R. THOMPSON

Frank F. Davenport, Harrisburg, Pa., restaurant operator, yesterday was elected a member of the board of directors of the John R. Thompson company, Chicago restaurant chain, at the annual stockholders' meeting. Davenport also is a director of Bickford's, Inc., which has a chain of 90 restaurants on the east and west coasts.

Paul M. Moore, president of John R. Thompson, said that in electing Davenport to the Chicago company's board there was no thought of merging the Bickford and Thompson chains.

Other new directors chosen by Thompson shareholders are Robert N. Golding, attorney, and Henry M. Henriksen, former vice president of the company and one of the trustees and executors of the estate of John R. Thompson.

Moore told the shareholders the company's sales thus far in 1940 are ahead of those of early 1939, even tho there are fewer stores in operation.

REPORT OPPOSES MAKING DAIRYING BASIC COMMODITY

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—An agriculture department report opposing a bill to make dairying a basic commodity under the agriculture adjustment act was made public today at a hearing before the house agriculture committee.

The report said "parity" payments on five major crops now regarded as basic commodities were limited to 75 per cent of the parity price level, and that even if dairying were included such payments could not be made unless prices fell markedly below those of 1938 when the farm price of butterfat averaged 79 per cent of parity.

"At present the number of milk cows is fairly well in line with the upward trend," the report added, "and there is no evidence a marked expansion in dairying will take place in the next few years."

ATLAS-CURTISS MERGER STOCK TERM CORRECTED

New York, March 19 (AP).—Officials of Atlas corporation and Curtiss-Wright corporation, in agreement on a merger of the investing company and the aviation manufacturing firm gave out today a correction on details of stock interchange making the proposal even more attractive to Atlas preferred stockholders.

They said stockholders would receive for each share of 6 per cent $50 Atlas preferred one share of 5 per cent $50 par new preferred and one-quarter share of common stock of Curtiss-Wright, instead of only one share of 5 per cent $50 par Curtiss-Wright preferred, as announced in a joint statement Monday night.

Leo T. Crowley Is Elected Director of Power System

New York, March 19 [Special].—Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, was elected a director of the Northern States Power company of Delaware to succeed Gary O. House, resigned. Crowley recently was made chairman of the Standard Gas and Electric company, parent concern of Northern States Power, but is remaining in the service of the federal government temporarily to aid in certain banking matters. Ward Perrott also was elected a director of Northern States Power to succeed Henry Grenacher, resigned.

World's Markets Close to Observe Good Friday

Most of the securities and commodities markets of the world will close on March 22 in observance of Good Friday, but banks and the Chicago live stock market will operate as usual. The New York Stock exchange, the New York Curb exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade, the Chicago Stock exchange and the Chicago Mercantile exchange will be closed. In Europe, most of the financial markets will be closed also on Saturday and Monday.

Stock Market Rises as Peace 'Scare' Fades

New York, March 19 (AP).—Aircrafts and steels led the stock market on a selective upswing today that was attributed mainly to talk of broadening war pressure in Europe. Gains ran to 2 or more points for favorites, but a number of issues slipped from best levels at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished at a net advance of .2 of a point at 49.5, its first upturn since March 9. Dealings picked up a bit on the recovery, transfers totaling 654,119 shares, compared with 512,520 the day before.

Prices Soon Steady.

The list got off to a ragged start as peace thoughts refused to down. Buying in mail orders, aviations, and specialties then began to seep into the market and prices soon steadied.

The steel group came to the fore at the last as the "peace scare" seemed to fade in the wake of advices from overseas and Washington scouting any immediate cessation of the war.

Stocks well ahead included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Lockheed, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Loft, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Great Northern, Goodyear, Chrysler, and American Telephone.

Curtiss-Wright Common Active.

Curtiss-Wright common was the most active issue. It opened on a block of 10,000 shares, up ⅝ at 9⅞, following announcement of plans for the merger of this company with Atlas corporation, prominent investment concern. Atlas stock got up ⅝ at 9¾. Curtiss-Wright "A," however, lost 1⅛ at 29⅝.

American Airlines and United Air Lines edged into new highs for 1940, the theory being advanced that, even if a sudden peace should develop, passenger carrying lines, with traffic expanding briskly, should be little affected.

BANK PROPOSES TO PAY DEFAULT WITH RFC AID

St. Louis, Mo., March 19 (AP).—The First National bank in St. Louis today proposed a plan for payment of $4,597,201 principal still due on first mortgage participations which its former investment affiliate, the First National company, sold to the public. The participations were defaulted in 1933 and at that time totaled $9,577,503.

The plan for discharge of all liabilities to the 3,400 holders contemplates a loan of $3,600,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and a contribution of $2,230,000 by the bank. The money also would be used to pay other debts of the investment company, which is in process of liquidation in Circuit court.

Increase Seen in Foreign Sale of American Trucks

Detroit, Mich., March 19 (AP).—Automotive trade sources here reported today that additional inquiries for overseas shipments of trucks are being made among the commercial vehicle manufacturers.

China Again Becomes Large Purchaser of American Arms

Washington, D. C., March 19 (AP).—China is again buying American arms on a substantial scale to aid her in the war against Japan, now nearly three years old. She obtained state department licenses in February for the export of $3,911,193 worth of arms, ammunition and implements of war. Previously, her imports were averaging several hundred thousand dollars per month.

The purchase was interpreted here as an indication of China's determination to continue the war. Recently, the export-import bank arranged to grant China another credit of $20,000,000, altho this cannot be used for the purchase of military goods.

Engines Biggest Item.

The major part of China's purchases in February consisted of airplane engines which will be installed in warplanes being made in China.

France obtained licenses in February for the export of $42,854,991 worth of war materials, bringing her total for the first two months of this year to $124,437,649. She obtained delivery, however, on only $7,181,588 worth in February, making a total of $18,878,002 thus far this year. Most of her purchases were warplanes.

Great Britain was far behind France in the licenses obtained. In February, these amounted to only $495,908, and for the year, $1,404,267. Deliveries to Great Britain totaled $3,552,087 in February and for the year, $7,615,285, largely on the basis of licenses issued last year.

Finnish Purchases Heavy.

Finland received export licenses in February for $3,205,295, almost entirely for ammunition. Belgium was an unexpectedly large purchaser of American arms in February. She obtained licenses valued at $2,948,400, mostly for warplanes. Australia secured licenses totaling $1,004,415 and Canada, $648,169.

Total export licenses for February were $57,345,495, bringing the year's total to $143,450,345. Actual deliveries in the first two months were less than one-third of this total, amounting to $43,256,450.

SEARS-ROEBUCK INCOME, SALES AT PEAK LEVELS

Year's Earnings Top 37 Millions.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Merchandise sold and profits earned by Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the year ended Jan. 31 were the largest in the 54 years that the company has been in business, officials reported yesterday to stockholders.

T. J. Carney.

Results of the year's operations were made public by Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board, and Thomas J. Carney, president. They described 1939 as the company's "most successful year."

The previous high level in sales and earnings was reached in the 1937 "recovery" boom. In both 1937 and 1939 the business of the company was larger than in 1929, which was the all time peak year for most corporations in the merchandising field and in other lines.

Year's Results Summarized.

The following figures give a summary of the company's 1939 operations with comparable 1938 figures:

	1939.	1938.
Net sales	$617,414,266	$501,676,644
Net profits	37,255,274	23,354,364
Profit per share	6.60	4.18
Dividends per share	4.25	3.00
Total pay roll	96,088,000	78,171,000
Inventories	112,584,216	94,857,019
Taxes	18,818,983	13,271,534
Tax per $100 sales	3.02	2.65
Capital expendit.	11,671,361	7,596,402

The tax figures do not include social security, sales, or other taxes which are collected but not borne by the company. These amounted to $7,180,536 in 1939 and $5,751,729 in 1938. Inventory figures are as of Jan. 31.

The company operated 524 retail stores at the close of the last fiscal year, compared with 496 a year earlier, and had 10 mail order plants in both years. Its expanding business required an average of 57,029 regular employés, compared with 50,570 the year before, and an average of 15,317 extra workers, against 10,798 in 1938.

Officials said that sales and earnings so far in 1940 are satisfactory, with favorable results indicated for the first half of the company's fiscal year. Beyond that time few business men are willing to risk a prediction. The company's business normally reaches its seasonal peak in the last three months of the year.

Credit Terms More Liberal.

The more liberal credit policy adopted by the company on time payment sales was an important factor in the growth of the business last year, the officials said. Purchases of $10 or more may now be financed on time payments thru the retail store or the mail order division.

"I am pleased to report," said President Carney, "that this plan has been entirely satisfactory. Collections have more than met expectations."

The company itself finances the instalment sales by placing part of the time payment paper with banks. At one time many banks regarded such paper as a doubtful investment medium. Experience over a period of years, however, has resulted in a change in the bankers' attitude and the paper is now sought as a profitable means of employing bank funds.

The company has no intention, it was said, of raising new capital to carry all of its own instalment paper. It recently became known that Montgomery Ward & Co. would raise about $25,000,000 of new capital thru the sale of stock to finance its time sales.

Sets Up Added Reserve.

Besides its normal appropriation of $10,891,426 as reserve against the collection of doubtful accounts the company has set up an additional contingency reserve of $2,005,345 which may be used to meet "unpredictable future lapses or extraordinary expenses" in time payment collections.

The scope of the company's business was indicated in figures given by President Carney on the sources of the company's merchandise. Sears buys from 7,000 manufacturing concerns, he said.

"Of this number," he said, "about 150 concerns have been selling their products to the company for 30 years or more; 320 between 25 and 30 years; 1,100 between 15 and 25 years, and 2,000 between 10 and 15 years."

In the early years of the business the mail order companies sometimes absorbed the companies that were the principal sources of supplies. This practice has been abandoned. It is generally recognized now that the companies can best assure future supplies by allowing the manufacturing companies to stand on their own feet.

APPEAL TO HALT CHRYSLER STRIKE AWARDS DENIED

Detroit, Mich., March 19 (AP).—The appeals board of the Michigan unemployment compensation commission rejected today a petition of the Michigan Manufacturers' association to intervene in the cases of Chrysler corporation employés made idle by a labor dispute last fall.

The board dismissed the association's appeal from the decision of Charles Rubinoff, commission referee, who had awarded unemployment benefits to nearly half the workers.

Other appeals, including one by the Chrysler corporation, have held up payment of approximately $3,000,000 in benefits.

Two Business Groups Demand Revision of Federal Labor Act

Demands for revision of the national labor relations act were made yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Illinois Manufacturers association.

The Chicago group suggested 11 revisions of the present law and said efforts to muster national support for the proposed amendments will be made when delegates of the association attend the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The meeting will be held April 29 to May 2 in Washington, D. C.

Support Smith Bill.

The commerce association urged passage of the bill of Representative Howard K. Smith [D., Va.], which would make numerous revisions in the law. Changes recommended by the association would:

1. Require labor to follow procedure outlined in law to obtain bargaining rights, rather than striking illegally.
2. Apply restraints to employer and employé alike.
3. Outlaw sitdown and sympathy strikes, strikes in violation of a collective bargaining contract, and strikes to obtain recognition.
4. Abolish checkoff and the closed shop.
5. Grant employers full right to petition for an election.
6. Require union elections to be held at regular intervals, not exceeding two years, by secret ballot, in presence of umpires and watchers.
7. Abolish the provision for majority rule to the exclusion of a voice by the minority in the selection of an exclusive bargaining agent for employés.

Stand on Reinstatement.

8. Withdraw power of the labor board to reinstate employés against the will of the employer, and give the board power to order, subject to review by the courts, proper payments.
9. Authorize the board to grant or recommend to the courts remedial affirmative relief against unions.
10. Make procedural changes requiring charges against either employer or employé to be affirmative and to supply full particulars.
11. Provide that no union or other organization of employés be entitled to the benefits of the act unless and until it shall have submitted its books, accounts, and records to a proper audit.

"There will be no real and lasting business recovery until the Wagner labor relations act has been substantially amended," the manufacturers' association said.

SHIP FIRM MAY BUILD 2 BIG ORE FREIGHTERS FOR TRAFFIC ON LAKES

Cleveland, O., March 19 (AP).—Pittsburgh Steamship company, largest operator of ore freighters on the Great Lakes, contemplates construction of one and possibly two new vessels to cost approximately $1,000,000 each, it was learned in marine circles today.

Construction hinges on approval by the maritime commission of the sale of the old freighter Howard L. Shaw and the barge Bryn Mawr to the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transport Company, Ltd., of Toronto. Application for transfer of the vessels was made to the commission today.

Pittsburgh, a U. S. Steel subsidiary, recently sold the W. R. Linn to the Great Lakes Transport corporation of Detroit, which is converting it into a tanker. Last year Pittsburgh sold the George Stephenson and barge Marsala to Buckeye Steamship of Cleveland.

Two years ago Pittsburgh built four bulk boats—two at Great Lakes Engineering at Detroit and two at American Ship Building at Lorain. Each cost approximately 1 million dollars. These were the first vessels built on the lakes since 1929.

MAGILL ASSAILS DICTATORSHIP IN GOVERNMENT

Warning against the rapid growth of New Deal burocracy, Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Investors, declared yesterday that to preserve liberties, the United States must return to "true representative government by law."

He told the Medinah Shrine Lunch club meeting in the Hotel Sherman that there are "far too many government bureaus exercising authority to harass free enterprise and to snoop into the private affairs of free citizens."

Magill termed the attempt to "pack" the Supreme court "the most daring assault on free government ever attempted in America."

BRITISH POUND BREAKS AGAIN; SELLING HEAVY

Buckling under the weight of heavy selling, the British pound sterling fell 2¼ cents yesterday in the unofficial market at New York City. It closed at $3.75¼. The drop halted a two day rally which pushed the price back up nearly 7 cents from the seven year low of $3.70¾ reached last Friday.

The Canadian dollar, which usually moves with sterling, advanced ⅛ cent to 82 cents. The French franc and the Dutch guilder declined a shade, the Belgian belga made a small gain, and the Swiss franc was unchanged.

New York, March 19 [Special].—William C. Durant, former president of General Motors corporation, who was denied the privileges of the grain markets of the country by an order signed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace yesterday, will appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, according to a statement today by Jacob Gruber, his counsel. Joining with Durant in the action will be Catherine L. Durant, his wife; Clement B. Johnson and H. W. Armstrong & Co., grain brokerage house in which Mrs. Durant and Johnson are partners.

C., March 19 [Special].—The Norwegian government has raised its temporary import duty surtax on all except a few products by an estimated average of one-ninth of import charges, the department of commerce reported today. Illinois Climbs to Third Rank in Oil Output

Illinois became the third ranking oil producing state in the week ended March 16, displacing Oklahoma, the Oil and Gas Journal reported yesterday.

Production rose to a new all-time high level of 455,755 barrels daily as a result of what oil trade circles termed a "sensational" increase of 41,085 barrels a day. Only Texas and California produce more petroleum than Illinois.

Oklahoma Output Drops.

Oklahoma lost its usual rank as a result of a decline in its own flow of crude and the Illinois gain. Oklahoma output was down 10,475 barrels to an average of 416,375 barrels a day.

An increased flow in the Lake Centralia-Salem pool accounted for most of the Illinois gain, the journal said. The pool's production rose 30,785 barrels to 291,024 barrels a day, a new peak. The publication said the increase was a surprise, oil men having believed the pipe lines had been carrying a peak load.

Storage Tanks Are Filled.

The journal reported the Texas company had filled two 80,000 barrel storage tanks during the week and increased pipe line facilities near Heyworth, Ill., accounting for the larger production from its wells.

Other Illinois fields also increased their output. Illinois ranked 17th as an oil producer in 1926. Wildcat development caused production to soar in 1937.

Last week's output of oil in the United States also set a record, climbing 63,601 barrels to a total of 3,889,964 barrels a day.

The bureau of mines reported stocks of domestic and foreign crude petroleum totaled 245,762,000 barrels on March 9, an increase of 1,636,000 barrels compared with the previous week.

BOARD SUSPENDS CHICAGO GRAIN BROKER FOR YEAR

Alexander McD. Simons, a grain broker, was suspended yesterday by the directors of the Chicago Board of Trade from the privileges of membership on the exchange for the period of one year, effective at the close of business on March 21. He was charged by a committee of exchange members with irregularity in trading in grain futures.

Elmer C. Kimball, a wheat broker, was expelled from membership on the exchange on February 23. Charges are reported to have been preferred against him for violation of the Commodity exchange act. It is understood that the CEA is making an examination of the Simons case.

Rex Fisher Elected Head of Circulation Managers

Rex Fisher of the East St. Louis Journal was elected president of the Central States Circulation Managers yesterday at the opening of their two day spring meeting at the Palmer House. Other officers are Walter G. Andrews, Fort Wayne, Ind., News-Sentinel, vice president; C. K. Jefferson, Des Moines Register and Tribune, secretary-treasurer; Elmer Schroeder, Milwaukee Journal; Fred Varga, Louisville Courier Journal, and Michael Moyer, La Porte, Ind., Herald-Argus, trustees.

DOUGLAS PROFIT SETS RECORD ON AVIATION BOOM

1939 Earnings Equal $4.81 a Share.

The largest profit in the history of Douglas Aircraft Company, Inc., was reported to stockholders yesterday by Donald W. Douglas, president, in his annual report covering the year ended Nov. 30, 1939.

Donald W. Douglas.

Douglas disclosed also that the company's backlog of unfilled orders reached an all-time high level of $97,287,720 on March 8, 1940, and that in spite of war business the commercial backlog was the largest on record.

Net income was $2,884,197, equal to $4.81 a share, compared with $2,147,392, or $3.76 a share, in the preceding year. Net sales totaled $27,866,657, against $28,347,474.

More Than Half to Government.

More than half of the year's sales were in airplanes for the United States government, Douglas said, with $3,916,139 of military craft going to foreign nations.

"Significant and satisfying," Douglas wrote, "is the fact that in the face of the greatest wartime boom known to aviation, the company is able to report approximately $19,000,000 in commercial orders for air line deliveries in 1940 and 1941."

Included in the commercial orders on hand March 8, Douglas said, were 33 of the 40 Douglas DC-4 four engined, supercharged cabin air transports under construction for air lines. Sixty DC-3 transports also were on order.

"Rapid and far reaching developments of worldwide significance brought to the aircraft industry extraordinary expansion and many problems resulting from acceleration of facilities, personnel and production," Douglas said.

National Defense First Aim.

"The management's task under these conditions was somewhat clarified by adherence to the Douglas policy of recognizing first and above everything else its obligations to the national defense of our own country, and next in giving preference in production to the maintenance and development of commercial business."

The company's 1939 pay roll was $13,283,714. On March 8 employés numbered 15,559, against 6,000 a year earlier. Douglas said the company expects to have 17,000 persons on the pay roll by midsummer.

Aviation corporation and subsidiaries reported a net loss of $2,238,049 for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30. In the preceding 12 months net income was $187,909.

Victor Emanuel, president, said the loss was caused primarily by a decrease of $3,071,983 in net sales of the corporation's manufacturing subsidiary. Another factor, he said, was a loss from sale of miscellaneous marketable securities.

He said Vultee Aircraft, Inc., had a backlog of unfilled orders totaling $14,960,000 on March 1. The backlog of the Stinson Aircraft and the Lycoming divisions amounted to $4,464,000.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, March 19 (AP).—Corporate and foreign government bonds moved ahead today in a slow market. Best gains of the session were made by some Scandinavian and Latin American issues, but a few industrials also improved positions.

United States government loans on the other hand, moved unevenly, ending 9/32 point lower to 3/32 higher.

Chief among the foreign gainers were issues of Helsingfors, Copenhagen, Denmark, Montevideo, Sao Paulo, Argentina, Cuba, Colombia and Prague.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s of '62 were active and gained around a point at one time on further rumors of an interest readjustment plan, but they closed ⅛ point off after Matthew S. Sloan, president of the road, stated: "I cannot see at the moment the necessity of a financial plan, voluntary or otherwise."

Chicago Stocks.

Two issues traded on the Chicago Stock exchange rose to new 1940 high levels yesterday. They were Asbestos Manufacturing, which gained ⅛ point at 1⅜, and United Air Lines, which touched 19⅜, but closed at 18⅞, up ⅞ point. Gains predominated among the price changes, altho trends were mixed.

Bank Stocks.

Continental Illinois bank stock advanced ½ point yesterday. First National was bid 2 points higher. Prices follow:

Commodities

Lead prices declined 0.1 cent a pound delivered in New York in quiet trading in metals yesterday. Consumer buying of copper showed some increase, particularly in the outside and custom fields.

Production and domestic shipments of lead fell off in February from the previous month, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported.

World sugar futures offerings were light, and a good demand boosted prices. Hides, silk, rubber, cocoa, and cottonseed oil made slight advances. In early trading cottonseed oil hit new seasonal lows. Pressure from commission houses forced wool tops lower.

Sales of 70,000 hides were reported by Chicago packers yesterday at a top price of 12½ cents. This was ⅜ cents lower than prices obtained by the Packers Hide association last week for light native cow hides, but ½ cent higher than bids offered Monday.

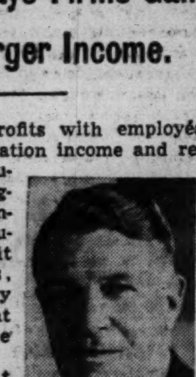
PROFIT SHARING TERMED PATH TO LABOR HARMONY

Despain Says Firms Gain Thru Larger Income.



Donald Despain.

Sharing of profits with employés increases corporation income and reduces labor trouble by encouraging loyalty, Donald Despain, authority on profit sharing plans, told the Rotary club yesterday at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman.

Thru profit sharing, more than 100 industrial institutions in the United States have achieved industrial peace, employé coöperation and efficiency, and have advanced toward stabilized profitable operation, Despain said.

He cited among these Procter & Gamble Co., Eastman Kodak company, General Electric company, Joslyn Manufacturing and Supply company, Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Jewel Tea company.

Have Best Profit Records.

A survey which Despain made for the United States senate showed, he said, that companies which adopted profit sharing have the most pronounced employé loyalty, the lowest labor turnover and the best profit records.

"With such evidence in the record," Despain said, "the man who still insists that intelligent profit sharing is impractical places himself in the company of those who still insist that the earth is flat."

Discussing the losses caused by labor troubles, Despain said:

"Few people appreciate the far reaching cost of strikes. Many read the loss of daily wages by workers and go no further in their computation of the loss to the general economy of the nation.

Extensive Losses Cited.

"In our report to the senate we attempted for the first time to survey and compute the cost of a strike to channels of distribution, advertising, financing, and transportation, as well as the loss of overhead, the losses from destruction of product, unmarketability of product, etc.

"From these computations we find that the total loss to the national economy from strikes in 1937 was 2½ billion dollars, and that for the five year period 1933-'37, inclusive, the loss was 7 1-3 billions. What is profit

Rotary club nominations for the annual election to be held April 9 were announced at the luncheon. Howard K. Jackson, western manager for Brown and Sharpe company, was nominated for president of the club, Kenneth Barnard, S. R. Clague, V. C. Nominees for vice presidents are P. Dreiske, J. W. Murphy, William Bachrach, C. N. Cahill, E. W. Ritter, and D. L. Shillinglaw. G. S. Morse was nominated for treasurer.

LOUIS CARLSON IS HONORED FOR SERVICE RECORD

When Louis Carlson of the Merchandise Mart police force left for home after his day's work yesterday he carried a bouquet of 50 red roses, one at least of which, he said, his wife would want to press. And in his pocket was a check for $500. The gifts were mementos of 50 years of service with Marshall Field & Co. They were presented to Carlson by Houghston McBain, vice president of the company. The Mart is a Field property and the company's corporate offices are housed there.

Carlson began at Field's as a doorman in the old wholesale store on Adams street when he was 21 years old. He remained there until the building was demolished six years ago.

WHEAT FUTURES SPURT ON POOR CROP PROSPECTS

Unfavorable reports on the outlook for the winter wheat crop in the west and southwest more than offset European developments as a market influence yesterday. Futures closed 1⅜ to 1½ cents higher.

Altho many professional speculators were reported out of the market pending definite developments in various efforts to end the war, commission houses bought the futures on the minor declines which appeared intermittently.

The corn market made a poor response to the department of agriculture report suggesting that 87,700,000 acres might be planted to corn this year, altho this is the smallest area since 1894. Prices held within narrow limits and closed ¼ to ⅜ cent higher.

DEALERS WARNED OF BUROCRACY IN AUTO TRADE BILL

Opponents Cite Evils of Patman Measure.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Provisions of the proposed Patman bill for the federal control of the automobile industry would put governmental burocrats in charge of dealers' affairs as well as manufacturers, opponents of the measure within the membership of the National Automobile Dealers' association declare. Its supporters in the association admit the bill is not the whole answer to the dealer-manufacturer problem, but hold passage of the bill "would force the manufacturers to recognize the dealer's right to run his own business."

The association is now taking a referendum of the 40,000 automobile dealers in the country, including its own 15,500 members, on whether they favor the proposed Patman bill, and if not whether they favor any other type of federal legislation for the control of the automobile industry.

Referendum Ends March 30.

The proposed bill was prepared by Congressman Wright Patman [D., Tex.] in collaboration with groups within the dealers' association. The referendum on it is to be completed by March 30.

Control over the automobile industry, over dealers as well as the manufacturers, would be placed in the hands of a motor vehicles division of the federal trade commission. The administrator would be a "chief administrator" at a salary not to exceed $9,000 a year.

The duty of the coördinator "would be to formulate and recommend to the commission for promulgation rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of this act; also to foster, subject to the direction and control of the commission, fair trade practices in the industry, complaints of unfair trade practices, and methods of competition to be brought to the attention of the commission."

Jail Sentences Provided.

Violations of certain provisions of the act would subject the violators to a fine of not more than $5,000 or not more than one year in jail. These penalties are directed at both manufacturer and dealer violators.

Among the violations which might land the manufacturer in jail are:

Using any "means or instruments of transportation or communication in commerce or of the mails to sell to a dealer in motor vehicles any new motor vehicle for resale," to send to a dealer motor vehicles with equipment different from that specified in current advertisments and other points connected with dealer-manufacturer contracts.

On the dealer's part jail doors might close on one who Replaces or disconnects a speedometer or changes its reading in such a way as to mislead a buyer as to usage, mileage, and condition; or who fails to give to a customer an invoice covering the purchase in such form and itemized in such detail as commission rules and regulations prescribe.

Clause for Damage Suits.

Any person injured in his business or property by reason of a violation of any provision of a dealer contract made in conformance with the act may sue for three times the damages sustained.

The Patman bill contains 17 sections, with numerous sub-sections defining and outlining manufacturer-dealer relations in minute detail.

Dealers opposing the proposed bill declare the section which authorizes the federal trade commission to prescribe such rules and regulations as it deems necessary is tantamount to giving the commission a blank check "to make rules having the full force of law." They describe it as an "art that will foster and propagate a generation of pirates, gyps, and unscrupulous fellows who will find it profitable to operate outside the law."

[This is the last of a series of articles on proposed legislation for the control of automobile manufacturer-dealer relations.]

WAGNER LABOR LAW ATTACKED AND DEFENDED

Act Is Debated Before Junior C. of C.

The Wagner labor act was attacked and defended last night at the panel discussion sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce of Chicago before 600 in the Hotel Sherman. The question involved was "Does the Wagner Act Adequately Answer the Problems Confronting Employer and Employé Today?"

On one hand, it was termed the magna carta of labor whose observance will bring industrial peace to the United States as far as it is possible for any legislative enactment to do. Twenty minutes later it was declared the instrument which contributed to the establishment of the only internal force which may destroy the government—the tremendous power of labor leaders.

Van Bittner Defends Act.

Defending the act, Van A. Bittner, national chairman of the Packinghouse Workers Organizing committee [C. I. O.], said:

"The inherent strength and the fundamental right of the act is the undisputed fact that it has worked in thousands of cases, notwithstanding the bitter fight that has been made against it by union hating employers who have spent millions of dollars of stockholders' money."

Roy C. Ingersoll, president of the Ingersoll Steel and Disc division of the Borg Warner corporation, said that by imposing restraints upon those who sit on one side of the bargaining table [employers] and leaving completely free those who sit on the other side, and by encouraging the growth of large national labor organizations, it has enabled the labor leaders to wield enormous political power which now borders on control of the national destiny.

Assails Majority Rights.

Asserting that section nine which provides that the majority of employés shall have exclusive bargaining powers, Albert J. Smith, general counsel for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, said that it enslaves the minority, giving this group only the alternatives of:

Liking the majority, quitting their jobs, joining the majority, coasting along with the fear that the majority will get a closed shop and thereby deprive the minority of their jobs, or fighting so the minority will become a majority.

Garnet L. Patterson, regional director of the National Labor Relations board, said the purpose of the act is to provide, and it does provide, he emphasized, a tribunal where remedies can be administered, subject to judicial review, for violations of the right to bargain collectively.

Declaring the act protects the employer when he enters into agreements with labor unions, Daniel D. Carmell, regional general counsel for the American Federation of Labor, praised it as a step in the right direction.

LARGEST UTILITY SYSTEM.

I have read that Electric Bond and Share is having some difficulty with the Securities and Exchange commission. What is it all about?—G. W.

Answer: Electric Bond and Share company, largest public utility holding company organization in the country, was among the first of nine major gas and electric holding company systems to be ordered by the SEC to proceed with the geographical integration and financial simplification of its structure required by section 11 of the public utility holding company act of 1935.

This section provides that public utility holding companies be limited to the control of a single coördinated and integrated utility system in the same geographical area and such other businesses as are incidental or economically necessary to the system.

The nature of the SEC action was a notice to the company and its subsidiaries that the present setup of the system does not appear to meet the law's requirements and requested the company to state what steps it intends to take to fulfill compliance. Then a public hearing will be scheduled, after which the SEC will issue an order directing the utility system to make certain readjustments—perhaps dissolution of some holding companies, sale or exchange of scattered properties, or simplification of capital structure.

The SEC may allow the system one or two years in which to enact the required changes. If the holding company system objects to the SEC's order, it may appeal to the federal courts for review.

Electric Bond and Share controls electric companies operating in 26 states and gas companies in 12 of those states, besides utility companies in 13 foreign countries which are not affected by the holding company act.

In a statement accompanying the recent annual report to stockholders, Electric Bond and Share revealed the contents of a tentative integration plan submitted to the SEC in November, 1938. Under the proposed revamping of the system, three principal geographical groups of companies—eastern, southwestern and northwestern—would be interconnected by new transmission lines at an estimated cost of $20,100,000.

Properties in Minnesota, Arizona, and Alabama would be disposed of, but 97 per cent of the present installed electric generating capacity would be retained. The plan did not deal with corporate readjustments, which were left for later consideration. The public hearing on the proposed changes has been set tentatively for April 26.

Electric Bond and Share in 1939 earned $9,709,074, equal after preferred dividends to 24 cents a common share. This compared with net income in 1938 of $9,401,251 or 18 cents a common share. Investments in subsidiaries at the end of 1939 were valued at $534,331,292 out of total assets of $557,091,477. Current assets were $22,626,067 against current liabilities of $3,536,689.

The company had no funded debt. Capital stock outstanding consisted of 300,000 shares of $5 preferred stock and 1,155,655 shares of $6 preferred stock, both of no par value, and 5,267,147 shares of $5 par common stock.

Hotbeds Aid Plants.

March 19, 1940.

HOTBEDS for starting garden seeds and for protecting annual plants started during the winter in the greenhouse are being built at the Du Page county farm this week. The gardeners expect to begin direct seedings in the hotbeds in about two weeks. They will transfer some of the plants from the greenhouse as soon as the beds are ready.

The hotbeds are of the old fashioned type, heated with manure from the horse barns. This system works satisfactorily and is less expensive than heating with electricity or steam. The beds will be filled with manure to a depth of about three feet.

Extra Depth Best.

The gardeners have found that this gives a more even temperature than where less manure is used.

One foot of manure will give a high enough maximum temperature, but it is hard to keep the beds from cooling out too much on cold nights.

The manure is tramped as the beds are filled and will be left for about 10 days before any plants or seeds are put in. This allows the temperature, which may run higher than 100 degrees after the first few days, to cool down to about 70 or 80 degrees.

Strawy manure is used to keep the beds from getting too hot. It usually settles about eight inches before time to plant the bed, leaving room for plants between the surface and the sash covering over the top. The frames extend two feet into the ground and one foot above the surface. When made of pecky cypress boards they last for several years. Less durable frames may be made from any kind of scrap lumber.

Beds Six Feet Wide.

The beds are made six feet wide, since the glass frames for the tops come in sections three feet wide and six feet long. This allows two widths of sash to a bed. The length varies according to need in multiples of six feet. The beds run east and west and the sashes are given a six inch slope to the south.

After the hotbeds are planted they are watched carefully to see that they do not get too hot on sunny days or too cold on chilly nights. The gardeners try to keep the temperature between 75 and 80 degrees during the day. It goes lower at night. The temperature is regulated by raising the sashes for additional ventilation or covering them with boards on cool nights. When the sashes are raised in daytime they are closed before sundown.

Apply Sand Covering.

A three inch layer of sand is put over the manure before flats, containing plants started in the greenhouse, are transferred to the hotbeds. The manure is covered with about six inches of fine garden soil when direct seedings are made in the hotbeds.

Tomato, cabbage, eggplant, pepper, celery, broccoli, and cauliflower plants and various kinds of annual flowers are started each year in the hotbeds.

FOES OF SILVER BUYING WIN OUT IN HOT BATTLE

Repealer Bill's Report Expected Today.

program has not encouraged other countries to restore silver to a place alongside gold as a standard of value and settler of international balances of payments. On the contrary, the American silver program has financed the demonetization of silver abroad and the abandonment of the silver standard in its last stronghold, China.

"7. There is not another country in the world that maintains a market for the world's silver. This alone should be a decisive reason for abandoning the purchasing of foreign silver, if indeed it was not a good reason for never embarking upon silver purchases.

"8. Foreign silver buying by the United States is a burden on every American. Altho no budgetary appropriation is required for foreign silver purchases, since the law authorizes the treasury to finance the purchases by issuing silver certificates [a process of inflation], the dollars received by the sellers of silver are spent in competition with the earnings of every American. Thus, the foreign seller of silver receives in exchange some form of American wealth or services paid for in the final analysis by every holder of dollars."

NEAR NORTH SIDE

Why spend time commuting when you can be having a grand and invigorating walk to and from your office? Down here you are near the lake and near so many things you wish to see and hear, and still have a full night's sleep. Top o' that, we think our studios and apartments are rather unusual. One has 2 bedrooms, living room 37 ft. long, with north and south light, fireplace plumb in the center. Others have living rooms 2 stories high, and one is like a little house in a Pomander walk at the second floor level. A few furnished and some marvelous layouts for combination home and business. All on or near North Michigan-avenue, and if you like fireplaces and such things, you'll be just our sort, too.
